Anti-Semitism In The War
They Flatter Mussolini
No Free Air For Italy
Temperature 2 Billions

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1935, by King Features Syndicate Inc., International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

CHANCELLOR HITLER should read J. B. S. Haldane's book "Callinicus," published by Dutton and company.

Haldane, who fought on the British side in the war, was gassed, laid up with shrapnel wounds, says Germany might have won the war except for bitter anti-Semitism.

A distinguished British scientist, specializing in biography, a competent judge, Haldane says Germany could have won the war but for the refusal of her military authorities to avail themselves of the services of the only man in Germany who understood physics sufficiently well, a Jewish professor.

He could have shown the Germans how to make the gas masks, now perfected, that would have enabled the German army to follow up its first gas attacks. That would have turned the tide against the allies.

Haldane's book advocates the use of gas in war as less painful and deadly than bayonets and bullets.

MUSSOLINI might have said to the League of Nations, "Gentlemen, you flatter me," when he heard that the nations had united against him, fifty-one to one.

When wise old England gets into a fight she likes plenty of company, on HER side; the fifty-one to one arrangement should suit her. She knows, however, that her neighbor, France, and others of the 51, really sympathize with Mussolini. France aides against Italy because she wants to bind England by an agreement that will compel England to fight with France against Germany, if necessary, later on.

If that necessity arises, France will learn that, getting a promise from England is one thing and securing the fullfilment of the promise is another. As before stated, it cost innocent Uncle Sam five thousand million dollars to make that discovery, which could have been made by spending twenty-five cents on a second hand book of history.

ENGLAND BEGAN "sanctions" against Italy by forbidding a spokesman for Italy to talk to American citizens via radio. This proves British intelligence. Starting a conspiracy against Italy for doing what England has done a dozen times, England reminds you of the story told by the late O. H. P. Belmont about a gambler who, told that he cheated, replied, "I know it, but I do not like to be told about it."

England does not like to be told "on the air," but refusing free speech to Italy via London's radio relay station is unlike the British. To their credit they usually encourage absolutely free speech, even in the heart of London. Anybody may get up in Hyde Park and say anything he likes, even that King George has no right to the throne.

THREE INDICTMENTS RETURNED AGAINST MISSISSIPPI MAYOR

MAGNOLIA, Miss., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Mayor Xavier A. Kramer of McComb was charged with assault and battery with intent to kill and murder, drunkenness and carrying a concealed weapon in three indictments returned today by the Pike county grand jury.

The charges grew out of an altercation that occurred here during a strike at the Magnolia cotton mills during the early part of September. During a discussion in the board room of a local bank Marshal Cullen Simmons was slightly wounded by a pistol bullet, allegedly fired by Kramer.

Manuel G. Verdia, a friend of Mayor Kramer, was indicted on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

ANTI-FASCISTS CLASH WITH HOLIDAY CROWD

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Singing the Italian Fascist song and shouting "Duce!", a Columbus day holiday crowd of 500 men marched out of Central park today after a clash with anti-Fascists had been broken up by police.

More than 4,000 persons had heard speeches by Governor Lehman and Mayor LaGuardia at Columbus circle, west entrance to the park, shortly before the fighting.

Jeers and insults shouted between the Fascist and anti-Fascist groups touched off the tilt. Two hundred police closed in, swinging nightsticks and quickly dispersed the mob.

ROBINSONS' FATE PLACED IN HANDS OF FEDERAL JURY

Judge Tells 12 Men They Can Recommend Death Penalty If They Wish

NO OPINION ON CASE IS EXPRESSED BY THE COURT

Wife And Father Of Stoll Kidnaper Accused Of Aiding In 'Snatch'

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—(AP)—The foreman tonight reported the jury which tried Thomas H. Robinson, Sr., and Mrs. Frances A. Robinson for the $50,000 Alice Speed Stoll kidnaping could not reach a verdict, and Federal Judge Elwood Hamilton late tonight ordered a recess until 9 a.m. Sunday morning.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Instructed by Judge Elwood Hamilton it could recommend the death penalty if it saw fit, a federal court jury tonight weighed the question of the guilt or innocence of two Tennesseeans tried on a charge of plotting the $50,000 kidnaping and ransoming of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll.

The government's case against Thomas H. Robinson, Sr., and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frances A. Robinson, of Nashville, went to the jury of 12 middle aged business men and farmers at 3:48 p. m. after instructions by Judge Hamilton in which the court declined to express an opinion.

Judge Hamilton said he had such "high respect and regard" for the jury system "that I will not undertake to assume any responsibility that rests on you."

The Robinsons, accused of conspiring with the fugitive Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., the son and the husband, to kidnap the Louisville society leader a year ago, were represented in the closing arguments of their counsel as merely doing what relatives of Mrs. Stoll asked to aid in recovering her. Government counsel contended they took part in a "carefully plan-

GIRL'S DROWNING STILL A MYSTERY

Young Woman Hands Sweetheart A Note And Plunges Into Murky Pool

BROOKFIELD, Mo., Oct. 12.—(AP)—In the cryptic last words of pretty, 18-year-old Thelma Wolfe and a note she left behind, authorities sought tonight to read the true story of her death in a murky pool.

"Take this, you may need it," William Correll, her 21-year-old fiance, said she told him last night as she thrust a note into his pocket a moment before leaving his car to dive into the water.

The slip of paper, waterstained and faded, was handed by Correll to Dr. H. H. Porter an hour later when he carried the drowned girl's dripping body into a Brookfield office building. It read:

"He is not guilty. Don't blame him."

Tonight, after examination of the drowning scene in a field owned by the girl's father, Cheslie Wolfe, Prosecuting Attorney Vane C. Thurlo said there was no indication of foul play

PAYMENT OF 1934 TAXES CONTINUES AT IMPROVED RATE

Payment of delinquent property taxes for 1934 continues to be received at the Ouachita parish sheriff's office at a rate considerably in advance of the rate last year or of any year since the depression was well under way.

The deadline on or before which the taxes must be paid in order to avoid costs of advertising the properties for sale is October 25. Under the law, 20 days must elapse between the date when registered notices of delinquency are mailed to property owners and the date when the properties are advertised for sale. October 1 was the deadline for paying the taxes in order to avoid receiving a registered notice. The sheriff's office prepared the notices and placed them in the mail after that date.

Some inquiries concerning tax exemptions have been received by the sheriff's office. In answer to these inquiries it was stated that the exemptions are to become effective for the year 1935, but are not effective for 1934.

'THE OWL' SHOT

Basil "The Owl" Banghart, notorious gangster and kidnaper, was shot and wounded yesterday as he attempted to escape from the southern Illinois prison.

BASIL BANGHART TRIES TO ESCAPE

'Cruelest' Of Factor Kidnapers Wounded By Illinois Prison Guards

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Crouched in the driver's seat and flanked by three prisoner companions, Basil "The Owl" Banghart, "cruelest" of the Factor kidnapers, sent a speeding commissary truck crashing through the gates of southern Illinois penitentiary today in a short-lived escape that ended in his wounding and recapture.

When Banghart rushed from the prison tailor shop, commandeered the truck and sent it racing through the prison yards he embarked upon the third and least successful of his flights from custody. In 1927 he and the notorious Gerald Chapman escaped from a federal prison at Atlanta, Ga. Recaptured at South Bend, Ind., he shot his way out of the city jail before he could be extradited.

Only one of the three prisoners who escaped with Banghart remained at large tonight. He was Cletus Stone, serving an armed robbery sentence.

Banghart and his three companions, Stone, Estelle Franklin and Earl D. Spencer, dashed from the tailor shop this morning as Edward Bartley drove by in the commissary truck. Banghart leaped to the driver's seat when his companions knocked Andy Carico,

DILLINGER BETRAYER IS DECLARED GUILTY OF MORAL TURPITUDE

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Turner Battle, assistant secretary of labor, today declared Mrs. Anna Sage, the "woman in red" who said she betrayed the gangster John Dillinger to federal agents, was guilty of moral turpitude and must be deported.

Battle denied that department of justice agents promised her she would not be deported, in return for her services in the Dillinger case.

The department of justice, he added, had no authority to offer immunity from charges not in its jurisdiction.

Mrs. Sage, waging a court fight to avoid being returned to her native Rumania on a charge she kept a brothel in Indiana, alleged she led Dillinger to his death for a $5,000 reward and a promise by Melvin Purvis, then chief "G" man in Chicago, that he would recommend she be permitted to stay in the United States.

Government Attempting To Prove Claim Of Contract Rebates

DEFENSE LAYS EMPHASIS ON CHECK TRANSACTIONS

Defendant Contends Money And Bonds Used For Campaign Purposes

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Huge cash transactions which the government charges Abraham L. Shushan, political lieutenant of the late Huey P. Long, failed to report in his income tax returns, were traced to the stout, swarthy defendant by prosecution witnesses during his tax evasion trial which ended its first week in federal court here today.

The government, bent on proving its charge that Shushan, Orleans levee board president, attempted to evade income taxes amounting to more than $50,000 during the years 1929-1933 inclusive, proceeded methodically through a long string of witnesses scattered through the east, middle west and southeast, to establish its claim that Shushan was paid rebates on contracts performed for his board by the Standard Dredging company of New York.

The opening week's testimony also revealed that Shushan intends to pitch at least a portion of his defense on the contention that the transactions disclosed by the government were in

DECLARES STORM DEATHS NEEDLESS

Witness Tells Legion Probers That Veterans Could Have Been Saved

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 12—(AP)—Hundreds of war veterans who died in the tropical hurricane that ravaged the Florida keys September 2 could and should have been saved, American Legion investigators were told here today.

Speaking with deep feeling, Arthur Brown of New York, timekeeper at Camp 3 on lower Matecumbe where 90 or 242 encamped veterans died, testified before the Legion committee:

"There was sufficient time to get all veterans out from Camp 3, and the trucks (trucks Brown said stood idle in the camps while the storm raced toward the keys) coold have picked up men at Camp 5, seven miles to the north, and prevented great loss of life there."

Brown appeared at today's initial session of the investigating committee appointed at the recent Legion convention in St. Louis to determine whether the 300 and more veterans killed in the Labor day storm died needlessly.

Major Quimby Melton, editor and publisher of the Griffin, Ga., Daily News, and chairman of the committee, said as the hearing opened:

"We have come into Florida with perfectly open minds. We are not here to whitewash anybody. If there is any blame to be fixed, we want to find on whose shoulders it properly rests."

Other members of the committee are Dr. W. E. Whitlock, High Springs, Fla., national vice commander of the Legion, and Catesby Jones, Selma,

BRIDE IS FOUND FATALLY SLASHED

Young Woman Almost Decapitated; Undertaker Gashes Self With Knife

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Her throat ripped from ear to ear with a sharp pocket knife, a 21-year-old bride was found in a hotel room here today with a Culpepper, Va., undertaker, whose own arm and wrists were hacked.

The girl, Mrs. Willie Mae Wood, was married only three weeks ago to Herbert R. Wood, of Fairfax, Va., a state highway department employe. E. H. Reaguer, 50, the undertaker, was removed to a hospital and police said he would survive.

Police quoted Wood as saying his wife had known the undertaker for many years. Although prostrated by news of his bride's death, Wood talked at length with authorities, giving what they described as "important information."

Anna O'Bannon, 17, Mrs. Wood's cousin, was found in an adjoining room in the hotel and is being held as a material witness.

No formal charges were placed against Reaguer, and members of the

DUCE BUILDS UP NAVAL DEFENSES

Strengthens Forces In Mediterranean To Meet Britain If Necessary

ROME, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini has moved to strengthen his naval defenses in the Mediterranean so that he would be able to meet Great Britain with her own weapons if necessary, it was learned tonight.

Through a series of decrees he has put high naval officers to work studying defenses and how to strengthen anti-aircraft services, especially in Sicily and Sardinia.

For anti-aircraft protection of the islands of lower Tirrmenian he called specialists of the classes of 1909, 1910 and 1912.

At the same time Il Duce signed a decree holding over in service indefinitely 300,000 men of the class of 1914 who are about to complete their normal training period.

Mussolini received Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation to the League of Nations, tonight and congratulated him warmly upon his exposition of the Italian case at Geneva.

MEAT SHIPMENT TO ITALY CANCELLED AT BUENOS AIRES

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The Anglo-Packing company, owned by British interests, today cancelled a shipment of canned meat which was to have been sent to Italy.

An official of the packing company stated that the firm's headquarters in London ordered the shipment cancelled "in view of probable sanctions."

Regarding Argentina's part in sanctions against Italy, observers regarded it as unlikely that this country would go out of its way to enforce economic sanctions unless forced to by the unanimous action of the League of Nations.

The league resolution of 1921, concerning the application of sanctions, permits various degrees of application by the smaller powers.

The large Italian colony here makes Argentina's relations with Italy closer than with many other countries. Argentina sells grains and tanning extracts to Italy.

Geneva Moves To Strike At Italians By Banning Finance Dealings

NO DECISION IS REACHED UPON ECONOMIC BOYCOTT

British Delegate Urges Crushing Embargo On Sale Of All Goods

By Wade Werner
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

GENEVA, Oct. 12.—The League of Nations moved to strike at Italy's pocketbook today by withholding all loan and bank credits to the fascist government.

A financial subcommittee of the league's general staff for sanctions recommended this action, which expected to be taken without delay. The league, with 50 nations on record for sanctions, already has placed an arms embargo upon Italy and lifted it from Ethiopia.

A sanctions committee of 17 adjourned until Monday without having reached a decision upon an economic boycott, which league leaders favor imposing upon Italy.

The general tenor of the discussion was that the problems are exceedingly complicated and require a further examination. Anthony Eden of Great Britain advanced the chief proposal—for an embargo upon purchases from Italy, along with an embargo on sale to Italy of products which might be used for the manufacture of armaments.

A resolution adopted by the financial subcommittee would forbid the following by members favoring sanction:

1. The opening of credit to Italy in any foreign country.
2. Authorization of a public issue by Italy in any foreign country.
3. Authorization of a public issue by an individual or legal entity na-

WHITE MAN SHOT IN STRIKE FIGHT

Day Passes Peacefully In Most Cities In Longshoremen's Walkout

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The International Longshoremen's association gulf ports strike reflected violence today in the port of New Orleans with a white man shot a glancing blow on the nose and an argument at Lake Charles, La.

Elsewhere in the ports affected, Gulfport, Mobile, Pensacola and the Texas ports, the day passed peacefully with picketing and on the mid-gulf ports, shipping was reported going ahead in "normal" fashion.

I. L. A. workers in Texas and Lake Charles went out on strike yesterday in protest against the refusal of the steamship authorities in New Orleans and the other ports to recognize the I. L. A. locals.

In New Orleans, Gulfport, Mobile and Pensacola ships are being worked with independent labor and sailings, the steamship men claim, are being maintained.

But in New Orleans T. J. Darcy, vice president of the International Longshoremen's association, issued a statement in which the steamship association claims were denied.

Darcy said that instead of the claimed 19 ships worked with 1,600 men employed at New Orleans yesterday, "only seven ships were worked with crippled crews of men, consisting of approximately 480 men, all inefficient labor."

"In many instances," he said, "gangs were shifted from one ship to another for effect, in order to classify them for working."

"We also note," said Darcy, "that they did not state that the crews of the steamships Point Arena, Point Gorda and Munplace walked off to-

DOUBLE FAILURE IS SEEN IN DRIVE TO END UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Work relief facts and figures gave hints today of a double failure of objectives originally set for the $4,000,000,000 drive.

Not only had the 3,500,000 job goal by the end of October been shaved to 3,150,000 by the works progress officials, but some conceded privately little likelihood of ending the federal dole by November 1. With less than three weeks remaining, only six states had been cut off direct relief.

Furthermore, delays in approving WPA projects—which must provide at least 2,500,000 jobs for the early stages of the $4,000,000,000 program—combined with the slowness of Comptroller General J. R. McCarl's office in releasing allotments to cast doubt even on attainment of the reduced 3,150,000 job goal by the end of the month.

September 10 had been set by President Roosevelt for submission of the last applications, and September 25 for the last allotments, but WPA applications still streamed in.

Italian Minister In Ethiopia Is Placed By Troops In Home Of Emperor's Kin

Selassie May Relent And Let Envoy Stay After Ordering Departure

By James A. Mills
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 12.—Italy's minister to Ethiopia, who defied an order of Emperor Haile Selassie to leave the country, was taken tonight from the legatoin and conducted by troops to the home of Ras Desta Damtou, son-in-law of the emperor.

The minister, Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, refused to receive even his colleagues at Damtou's house, where he enjoys every luxury.

His position was obscure tonight. Although Haile Selassie delivered an ultimatum demanding that the minister leave by 7 a.m. tomorrow, it appeared possible he might relent and allow Vinci-Gigliucci to stay.

Apparently the government's motive in removing the minister from the legation to the home was to give him the status of a private citizen outside the legation in accordance with his expressed desire.

Cornelius Van H. Engert, the American charge d'affaires, it was disclosed, held a special audience with Emperor Haile Selassie this afternoon. Other visitors to the palace included the British and German ministers.

Armed soldiers preceded and followed the Italian minister when he was taken from the legation, where he was a virtual prisoner, to the home.

Haile Selassie was plainly outraged by the minister's action. In a defiant letter to the Ethiopian government, the minister said:

"I am staying of my own free will despite the insistence of the authorities that I leave, awaiting the arrival of the two members of the Magalo consulate. I also declare I submit freely to any measures the government may take against me."

Vinci Is Given Every Luxury At Residence Of King's Son-In-Law

Ethiopian officials asserted, however, the minister was deliberately trying to create an incident by forcing Ethiopian soldiers to invade the legation, which is considered Italian soil.

A special train was ready to take Vinci-Gigliucci to Djibouti, French Somaliland, as ordered by Haile Selassie. The minister sent his pet leopard on it but he himself refused to go.

Members of the diplomatic corps had waited for three hours at the station under a blazing sun to bid Vinci-Gigliucci farewell. They were indignant when he did not show up.

Rumors flew fast and thick. More excitement was created when First Secretary F. de Granet of the Italian legation did not leave on the special

PAYMENT OF 1934 TAXES CONTINUES AT IMPROVED RATE

Payment of delinquent property taxes for 1934 continues to be received at the Ouachita parish sheriff's office at a rate considerably in advance of the rate last year or of any year since the depression was well under way.

The deadline on or before which the taxes must be paid in order to avoid costs of advertising the properties for sale is October 25. Under the law, 20 days must elapse between the date when registered notices of delinquency are mailed to property owners and the date when the properties are advertised for sale. October 1 was the deadline for paying the taxes in order to avoid receiving a registered notice. The sheriff's office prepared the notices and placed them in the mail after that date.

Some inquiries concerning tax exemptions have been received by the sheriff's office. In answer to these inquiries it was stated that the exemptions are to become effective for the year 1935, but are not effective for 1934

More Testimonials Added To Success Of Government Cotton Reduction Program

Tenant Farmer And Sharecropper Labeled 'Forgotten Men Of New Deal'

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Spokesmen for the cotton belt today added new testimonials to the success of the government's acreage reduction program as a cure for the economic ailments of the cotton producer as the agricultural adjustment administration's public inquiry into southern sentiment was brought to a conclusion.

The cure, however, some witnesses asserted, has not extended to the tenant farmer and sharecropper, labeled by their spokesmen as "the forgotten men" of the New Deal.

As it now operates, said H. C. Nixon, professor of political science at Tulane university, New Orleans, and planter in Alabama, the AAA program is the "landlord's code."

"The AAA program has increased purchasing power, but it has not been distributed equally among tenants and sharecroppers."

Attacking absentee ownership as the main source of labor difficulties in the south, Prof. Nixon said he favored continuance of the AAA program with more benefits to the sharecropper.

"If we degrade any section of the population," he declared, "we put a chain on every section of it. Sharecroppers do pay taxes, because some of mine have gone barefoot so I could pay the taxes."

Spokesmen for the Southern Tenant union, who announced yesterday that they would address the hearing in behalf of the sharecroppers of eastern Arkansas, did not put in an appearance today at the hearing. In a statement released yesterday, Walter Moskop of Trumann, Ark., said he would tell the hearing that "equal benefits" for the sharecropper would be necessary to prevent "continued abuse" by landlords.

Cully A. Cobb, head of the cotton section of the AAA, while not discussing the merits of the plea for the sharecropper, said that he would see that provisions of next year's AAA contracts "are enforced to the letter."

"Information obtained at this hearing will aid us in the preparation of

'THE OWL' SHOT

Basil "The Owl" Banghart, notorious gangster and kidnaper, was shot and wounded yesterday as he attempted to escape from the southern Illinois prison.

BASIL BANGHART TRIES TO ESCAPE

'Cruelest' Of Factor Kidnapers Wounded By Illinois Prison Guards

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Crouched in the driver's seat and flanked by three prisoner companions, Basil "The Owl" Banghart, "cruelest" of the Factor kidnapers, sent a speeding commissary truck crashing through the gates of southern Illinois penitentiary today in a short-lived escape that ended in his wounding and recapture.

When Banghart rushed from the prison tailor shop, commandeered the truck and sent it racing through the prison yards he embarked upon the third and least successful of his flights from custody. In 1927 he and the notorious Gerald Chapman escaped from a federal prison at Atlanta, Ga. Recaptured at South Bend, Ind., he shot his way out of the city jail before he could be extradited.

Only one of the three prisoners who escaped with Banghart remained at large tonight. He was Cletus Stone, serving an armed robbery sentence.

Banghart and his three companions, Stone, Estelle Franklin and Earl D. Spencer, dashed from the tailor shop this morning as Edward Bartley drove by in the commissary truck. Banghart leaped to the driver's seat when his companions knocked Andy Carico,

DILLINGER BETRAYER IS DECLARED GUILTY OF MORAL TURPITUDE

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Turner Battle, assistant secretary of labor, today declared Mrs. Anna Sage, the "woman in red" who said she betrayed the gangster John Dillinger to federal agents, was guilty of moral turpitude and must be deported.

Battle denied that department of justice agents promised her she would not be deported, in return for her services in the Dillinger case.

The department of justice, he added, had no authority to offer immunity from charges not in its jurisdiction.

Mrs. Sage, waging a court fight to avoid being returned to her native Rumania on a charge she kept a brothel in Indiana, alleged she led Dillinger to his death for a $5,000 reward and a promise by Melvin Purvis, then chief "G" man in Chicago, that he would recommend she be permitted to stay in the United States.

WITNESSES TRACE MORE LARGE SUMS TO A. L. SHUSHAN

Defendant Contends Money And Bonds Used For Campaign Purposes

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Huge cash transactions which the government charges Abraham L. Shushan, political lieutenant of the late Huey P. Long, failed to report in his income tax returns, were traced to the stout, swarthy defendant by prosecution witnesses during his tax evasion trial which ended its first week in federal court here today.

The government, bent on proving its charge that Shushan, Orleans levee board president, attempted to evade income taxes amounting to more than $50,000 during the years 1929-1933 inclusive, proceeded methodically through a long string of witnesses scattered through the east, middle west and southeast, to establish its claim that Shushan was paid rebates on contracts performed for his board by the Standard Dredging company of New York.

The opening week's testimony also revealed that Shushan intends to pitch at least a portion of his defense on the contention that the transactions disclosed by the government were in

Witness Tells Legion Probers That Veterans Could Have Been Saved

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 12—(AP)—Hundreds of war veterans who died in the tropical hurricane that ravaged the Florida keys September 2 could and should have been saved, American Legion investigators were told here today.

Speaking with deep feeling, Arthur Brown of New York, timekeeper at Camp 3 on lower Matecumbe where 90 or 242 encamped veterans died, testified before the Legion committee:

"There was sufficient time to get all veterans out from Camp 3, and the trucks (trucks Brown said stood idle in the camps while the storm raced toward the keys) could have picked up men at Camp 5, seven miles to the north, and prevented great loss of life there."

Brown appeared at today's initial session of the investigating committee appointed at the recent Legion convention in St. Louis to determine whether the 300 and more veterans killed in the Labor day storm died needlessly.

Major Quimby Melton, editor and publisher of the Griffin, Ga., Daily News, and chairman of the committee, said as the hearing opened:

"We have come into Florida with perfectly open minds. We are not here to whitewash anybody. If there is any blame to be fixed, we want to find on whose shoulders it properly rests."

Other members of the committee are Dr. W. E. Whitlock, High Springs, Fla., national vice commander of the Legion, and Catesby Jones, Selma,

BRIDE IS FOUND FATALLY SLASHED

Young Woman Almost Decapitated; Undertaker Gashes Self With Knife

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Her throat ripped from ear to ear with a sharp pocket knife, a 21-year-old bride was found in a hotel room here today with a Culpepper, Va., undertaker, whose own arm and wrists were hacked.

The girl, Mrs. Willie Mae Wood, was married only three weeks ago to Herbert R. Wood, of Fairfax, Va., a state highway department employe. E. H. Reaguer, 50, the undertaker, was removed to a hospital and police said he would survive.

Police quoted Wood as saying his wife had known the undertaker for many years. Although prostrated by news of his bride's death, Wood talked at length with authorities, giving what they described as "important information."

Anna O'Bannon, 17, Mrs. Wood's cousin, was found in an adjoining room in the hotel and is being held as a material witness.

DUCE BUILDS UP NAVAL DEFENSES

Strengthens Forces In Mediterranean To Meet Britain If Necessary

ROME, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini has moved to strengthen his naval defenses in the Mediterranean so that he would be able to meet Great Britain with her own weapons if necessary, it was learned tonight.

Through a series of decrees he has put high naval officers to work studying defenses and how to strengthen anti-aircraft services, especially in Sicily and Sardinia.

For anti-aircraft protection of the islands of lower Tirrmenian he called specialists of the classes of 1909, 1910 and 1912.

At the same time Il Duce signed a decree holding over in service indefinitely 300,000 men of the class of 1914 who are about to complete their normal training period.

Mussolini received Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation to the League of Nations, tonight and congratulated him warmly upon his exposition of the Italian case at Geneva.

MEAT SHIPMENT TO ITALY CANCELLED AT BUENOS AIRES

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The Anglo-Packing company, owned by British interests, today cancelled a shipment of canned meat which was to have been sent to Italy.

An official of the packing company stated that the firm's headquarters in London ordered the shipment cancelled "in view of probable sanctions."

Regarding Argentina's part in sanctions against Italy, observers regarded it as unlikely that this country would go out of its way to enforce economic sanctions unless forced to by the unanimous action of the League of Nations.

The league resolution of 1921, concerning the application of sanctions, permits various degrees of application by the smaller powers.

The large Italian colony here makes Argentina's relations with Italy closer than with many other countries. Argentina sells grains and tanning extracts to Italy.

Geneva Moves To Strike At Italians By Banning Finance Dealings

NO DECISION IS REACHED UPON ECONOMIC BOYCOTT

British Delegate Urges Crushing Embargo On Sale Of All Goods

By Wade Werner
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

GENEVA, Oct. 12.—The League of Nations moved to strike at Italy's pocketbook today by withholding all loan and bank credits to the fascist government.

A financial subcommittee of the league's general staff for sanctions recommended this action, which expected to be taken without delay. The league, with 50 nations on record for sanctions, already has placed an arms embargo upon Italy and lifted it from Ethiopia.

A sanctions committee of 17 adjourned until Monday without having reached a decision upon an economic boycott, which league leaders favor imposing upon Italy.

The general tenor of the discussion was that the problems are exceedingly complicated and require a further examination. Anthony Eden of Great Britain advanced the chief proposal—for an embargo upon purchases from Italy, along with an embargo on sale to Italy of products which might be used for the manufacture of armaments.

A resolution adopted by the financial subcommittee would forbid the following by members favoring sanction:

1. The opening of credit to Italy in any foreign country.
2. Authorization of a public issue by Italy in any foreign country.
3. Authorization of a public issue by an individual or legal entity na-

WHITE MAN SHOT IN STRIKE FIGHT

Day Passes Peacefully In Most Cities In Longshoremen's Walkout

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The International Longshoremen's association gulf ports strike reflected violence today in the port of New Orleans with a white man shot a glancing blow on the nose and an argument at Lake Charles, La.

Elsewhere in the ports affected, Gulfport, Mobile, Pensacola and the Texas ports, the day passed peacefully with picketing and on the mid-gulf ports, shipping was reported going ahead in "normal" fashion.

I. L. A. workers in Texas and Lake Charles went out on strike yesterday in protest against the refusal of the steamship authorities in New Orleans and the other ports to recognize the I. L. A. locals.

In New Orleans, Gulfport, Mobile and Pensacola ships are being worked with independent labor and sailings, the steamship men claim, are being maintained.

But in New Orleans T. J. Darcy, vice president of the International Longshoremen's association, issued a statement in which the steamship association claims were denied.

Darcy said that instead of the claimed 19 ships worked with 1,600 men employed at New Orleans yesterday, "only seven ships were worked with crippled crews of men, consisting of approximately 480 men, all inefficient labor."

"In many instances," he said, "gangs were shifted from one ship to another for effect, in order to classify them for working."

"We also note," said Darcy, "that they did not state that the crews of the steamships Point Arena, Point Gorda and Munplace walked off to-

DOUBLE FAILURE IS SEEN IN DRIVE TO END UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Work relief facts and figures gave hints today of a double failure of objectives originally set for the $4,000,000,000 drive.

Not only had the 3,500,000 job goal by the end of October been shaved to 3,150,000 by the works progress officials, but some conceded privately little likelihood of ending the federal dole by November 1. With less than three weeks remaining, only six states had been cut off direct relief.

Furthermore, delays in approving WPA projects—which must provide at least 2,500,000 jobs for the early stages of the $4,000,000,000 program—combined with the slowness of Comptroller General J. R. McCarl's office in releasing allotments to cast doubt even on attainment of the reduced 3,150,000 job goal by the end of the month.

September 10 had been set by President Roosevelt for submission of the last applications, and September 24 for the last allotments, but WPA applications still streamed in.

Italian Minister In Ethiopia Is Placed By Troops In Home Of Emperor's Kin

Selassie May Relent And Let Envoy Stay After Ordering Departure

By James A. Mills
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 12.—Italy's minister to Ethiopia, who defied an order of Emperor Haile Selassie to leave the country, was taken tonight from the legatoin and conducted by troops to the home of Ras Desta Damtou, son-in-law of the emperor.

The minister, Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, refused to receive even his colleagues at Damtou's house, where he enjoys every luxury.

His position was obscure tonight. Although Haile Selassie delivered an ultimatum demanding that the minister leave by 7 a.m. tomorrow, it appeared possible he might relent and allow Vinci-Gigliucci to stay.

Apparently the government's motive in removing the minister from the legation to the home was to give him the status of a private citizen outside the legation in accordance with his expressed desire.

Cornelius Van H. Engert, the American charge d'affaires, it was disclosed, held a special audience with Emperor Haile Selassie this afternoon. Other visitors to the palace included the British and German ministers.

Armed soldiers preceded and followed the Italian minister when he was taken from the legation, where he was a virtual prisoner, to the home.

Haile Selassie was plainly outraged by the minister's action. In a defiant letter to the Ethiopian government, the minister said:

"I am staying of my own free will despite the insistence of the authorities that I leave, awaiting the arrival of the two members of the Magalo consulate. I also declare I submit freely to any measures the government may take against me."

Vinci Is Given Every Luxury At Residence Of King's Son-In-Law

Ethiopian officials asserted, however, the minister was deliberately trying to create an incident by forcing Ethiopian soldiers to invade the legation, which is considered Italian soil.

A special train was ready to take Vinci-Gigliucci to Djibouti, French Somaliland, as ordered by Haile Selassie. The minister sent his pet leopard on it but he himself refused to go.

Members of the diplomatic corps had waited for three hours at the station under a blazing sun to bid Vinci-Gigliucci farewell. They were indignant when he did not show up.

Rumors flew fast and thick. More excitement was creafed when First Secretary F. de Granet of the Italian legation did not leave on the special

MY ANNOUNCEMENT

J. G. Bell on Tuesday formally announced his candidacy for commissioner of streets and parks in the next municipal election to be held in January, 1936.

I thought I had made it clear, he said, in my advertisements that I am going to run for commissioner of streets and parks, but some people seem to think that is a joke. I feel it is now time to make a formal announcement, and here it is.

I am a candidate for commissioner of streets and parks for the City of Monroe and am not backed by any political push or pull, and if elected will "Share the Wealth" in reality and in a practical way. I am in sympathy with Labor, organized or unorganized, knowing that such are the honey makers, IN FACT THE FLYWHEEL of the industrial world. I am an out doors man, strictly, and this street job would suit me fine, since business in my line of endeavor is on the blink. It is not a matter of what you are going to get paid for a day's work; the burning question is: where are you going to get the day's work—and Eleven Dollars a day as Street Commissioner and no capital invested looks like taking money from a blind coon. My plan is feasible and fair, although puny in volume, and yet a half loaf of actuality out-balances a ton of political promises. If elected Four Dollars a day goes to the depressed and poor—and IS AS CERTAIN AS DEATH, and will be made doubly sure with a gilt edged surety bond.

We have a 3c, 6c and 10c rate on electrical service, the poor being provided with a 10c rate. If you do not want me to filibuster for sixteen hours, days or weeks, do not elect me Commissioner; that applies to a five cent flat rate for both the rich and the poor. God Almighty said, "Let there be light," and we are going to have it, if I ever get my hooks inside the City Hall.

I am a member of the second oldest sheet metal workers Union, Kansas City No. 1. I came to Monroe thirty-three years ago and found the plumbers locked out—backed them to the tune of $500.00—the only money I had—opened an independent shop, drew $5.00 a week and slept in the shop and on the floor—and won the strike. I pay at the present time 80c for sheet metal work. Their wages were $1.00 per hour; they cut their own wages; I did not. I have never missed a single pay day—have never been sued—my checks are good throughout the business world, and have never taken the bankrupt law. I pay taxes on fourteen worthless lots, promptly; know something about economy, realizing these United States are badly out of financial balance, and that money should be a medium of exchange only, and not hoarded by million heirs.

We have at the present writing over fifteen thousand boys and girls under the age of eighteen who are on the hog in box cars and hobo camps, dirty, lousy, half-clad and winter near at hand, in a land of plenty, called Liberty, without parental care and love; no kisses, or caresses from Mother dear, no roof, no shelter in time of storm.

Hell on earth caused by polluted politics, the sidekick of Big Business, big money, corporations who insist on and are the Octopus of the industrial world—and charity as chilly as Greenland's icy mountains. Won't the good people of this town give me a fighting chance to prove that I am game to the core in behalf of humanity, down but not out. Understand, I am not asking any quarter for myself or any other able-bodied man. It's the women folks and the children that have been getting the worst of it ever since the time of Adam and Eve.

Yours sincerely,
J. G. BELL (Short Pencil)

RAPT CROWDS HEAR MOBILIZATION CALL IN ADDIS ABABA

Almost fanatic enthusiasm was fanned into flame by the reading of Emperor Haile Selassie's mobilization order calling 1,500,000 men to the colors to resist invasion by Italy. One of the typical scenes enacted in Addis Ababa as a Moslem leader read the fatal words to the rapt crowd is shown in this picture rushed to America.

Political Activities

FARR ANNOUNCES FOR CLERK OF COURT

R. D. Farr on Saturday announced that he would be a candidate for the office of clerk of the court for Ouachita parish, subject to the will of the Democratic party at the primaries to be held in January.

"I am making no absurd claims or political promises," said Mr. Farr. "I have lived in Monroe for the past 22 years. My life as lived in the past is my promise to the future, and if elected to the office, I will discharge my duty to the people with the same faithful devotion that I have practiced with my business associates and others during the past."

Mr. Farr is manager of the Monroe Marble and Granite Works.

GUERRIERO IN RACE FOR CITY JUDGE

Joseph S. Guerriero, local attorney, yesterday announced his candidacy for judge of the Monroe city court, subject to the action of the Democratic primary to be held in January.

Mr. Guerriero was born and reared in Monroe. He attended the public schools and graduated from the Ouachita parish high school in 1922. He is a graduate of the Tulane law school class of 1926, and became associated with a law firm in New Orleans. After two years in New Orleans Mr. Guerriero returned to Monroe continuing the practice of law here.

Talking of his qualifications for the office he seeks Mr. Guerriero, Saturday, commented on the need of strict law enforcement.

He emphasized the need for adherence to the traffic regulations and the adequate punishment of violators who have "no respect for the lives of school children." He called attention to the instructions given the district grand jury at the recent session of that body by Judge Garrett. "School children are at the mercy of speeders and reckless drivers," said Mr. Guerriero, "the police are more than willing to enforce the law."

"If I am elected to the office of city judge, I will personally see that these traffic laws are rigidly enforced and assure you that there will be no favoritism in my court. Any matter brought before me will be given a fair and impartial hearing as required by law.

"My family and their relatives have been residents of the city of Monroe for a period of over 35 years and have never been in any unlawful trouble, having been law-abiding citizens of the community and this record alone is enough to assure the voting citizens that I believe in law and order in the community and if elected I will see that the laws are enforced."

COLE WILL SEEK POLICE JURY POST

R. Q. Cole, local insurance man, announced Saturday that he will be a candidate for the office of police juror for ward three at the forthcoming Democratic primaries.

Mr. Cole, who is a native Louisianian, having been born in Red River parish in 1893, was prominent in the lumber industry before entering the insurance business. He came to Monroe in February, 1922, and became affiliated with the firm of Cole and Leigh, insurance agents. He has lived in ward three for the past twelve years. Mr. Cole is married and has one child, ten years old.

In making his announcement, Mr. Cole said: "If I am elected as a police juror I will administer the duties of the office honestly, to the best of my ability."

BRIDGES ANNOUNCES FOR CITY COMMISSIONER

W. C. Bridges, announcing himself a candidate for the office of commission of streets and parks, issued a statement Saturday, in which he said:

"Having been a citizen of Monroe for the past 16 years, I feel the public knows my qualifications. I was born in Mississippi and graduated in high school and afterwards attended Mississippi State college for four years, working my way through school. In January, 1920, I came to Monroe and was employed as a floor manager at The Palace. In 1926 I resigned and traveled the state of Louisiana for three years. I was later manager and buyer in the women's department of Mike John's store."

Mr. Bridges announced his platform as follows: "Higher wages for labor; raise wages instead of cutting salaries; employ only white labor for city work; cooperation with all city officials as far as possible; better understanding between politics and business; city improvements of all kinds, creating jobs for the people at wages that will justify a decent living."

SPANISH THRONE CLAIMANT WEDS

Don Juan Of Bourbon And Infanta Maria De La Esperanza Are Married

ROME, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Don Juan of Bourbon, heir pretender to the Spanish throne, and his cousin, the Infanta Maria de la Esperanza of Bourbon-Sicile, were married today in the presence of one of the greatest modern assemblages of nobility.

The young couple, in whom Spanish royalist hopes centered, were surrounded by the scions of Europe's proudest families during the ceremony in the historic church of Maria Degli Angeli, which Michelangelo long ago converted from old Roman baths into a monastery.

Thousands of persons cheered in the vast, sun-bathed piazza outside the church as Juan and his bride arrived separately.

Former King Alfonso, father of the bridegroom, also shared in the burst of the monarchists' enthusiasm.

Hundreds of Italian carabiniere formed a ring around the piazza. Pickets of fascist blackshirts composed a guard of honor.

The ceremony itself held in a setting of brilliant dress uniforms and the resplendent purple and crimson robes of the Catholic episcopacy, was extremely simple.

Cardinal Elia Della Costa, archbishop of Florence, received the couple's vows, blessed them and retired to the vestry. The couple then left the church amid great applause and turned to worship in St. Peter's.

PHANTOM SHOALS AT RIVER MOUTH HAUNT OFFICIALS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A phantom bed of shoals off the mouth of the Mississippi is haunting the coast and geodetic survey.

Captain R. R. Lukens, assistant chief of the division of hydrography and topography, says the government is sure a barrier to navigation does not exist in those waters but reports of this reef keep bobbing up.

Several searches have been made in the last 20 years for the strange reef which ships have reported but always they have come to naught. In a final effort to fathom the mystery, the survey ship Hydrographer will have another look around in the region of the "reef ghost" early in the spring.

"The phantom reef," Lukens said, "is an oddity we can't explain exactly. It was heard about most persistently between 1915 and 1920. Vessels, entering and leaving the passes of the Mississippi, time and again, sent in reports of shoal soundings. Moving through fog, these ships were sounding every foot of their way and we could not doubt the accuracy of their reports. The theory has been advanced that they might have struck mud lumps, quantities of silt matted together, but none of our vessels ever ran into such obstructions."

MY ANNOUNCEMENT

J. G. Bell on Tuesday formally announced his candidacy for commissioner of streets and parks in the next municipal election to be held in January, 1936.

I thought I had made it clear, he said, in my advertisements that I am going to run for commissioner of streets and parks, but some people seem to think that is a joke. I feel it is now time to make a formal announcement, and here it is.

I am a candidate for commissioner of streets and parks for the City of Monroe and am not backed by any political push or pull, and if elected will "Share the Wealth" in reality and in a practical way. I am in sympathy with Labor, organized or unorganized, knowing that such are the honey makers, IN FACT THE FLYWHEEL of the industrial world. I am an out doors man, strictly, and this street job would suit me fine, since business in my line of endeavor is on the blink. It is not a matter of what you are going to get paid for a day's work; the burning question is: where are you going to get the day's work—and Eleven Dollars a day as Street Commissioner and no capital invested looks like taking money from a blind coon. My plan is feasible and fair, although puny in volume, and yet a half loaf of actuality out-balances a ton of political promises. If elected Four Dollars a day goes to the depressed and poor—and IS AS CERTAIN AS DEATH, and will be made doubly sure with a gilt edged surety bond.

We have a 3c, 6c and 10c rate on electrical service, the poor being provided with a 10c rate. If you do not want me to filibuster for sixteen hours, days or weeks, do not elect me Commissioner; that applies to a five cent flat rate for both the rich and the poor. God Almighty said, "Let there be light," and we are going to have it, if I ever get my hooks inside the City Hall.

I am a member of the second oldest sheet metal workers Union, Kansas City No. 1. I came to Monroe thirty-three years ago and found the plumbers locked out—backed them to the tune of $500.00—the only money I had—opened an independent shop, drew $5.00 a week and slept in the shop and on the floor—and won the strike. I pay at the present time 80c for sheet metal work. Their wages were $1.00 per hour; they cut their own wages; I did not. I have never missed a single pay day—have never been sued—my checks are good throughout the business world, and have never taken the bankrupt law. I pay taxes on fourteen worthless lots, promptly; know something about economy, realizing these United States are badly out of financial balance, and that money should be a medium of exchange only, and not hoarded by million heirs.

We have at the present writing over fifteen thousand boys and girls under the age of eighteen who are on the hog in box cars and hobo camps, dirty, lousy, half-clad and winter near at hand, in a land of plenty, called Liberty, without parental care and love; no kisses, or caresses from Mother dear, no roof, no shelter in time of storm.

Hell on earth caused by polluted politics, the sidekick of Big Business, big money, corporations who insist on and are the Octopus of the industrial world—and charity as chilly as Greenland's icy mountains. Won't the good people of this town give me a fighting chance to prove that I am game to the core in behalf of humanity, down but not out. Understand, I am not asking any quarter for myself or any other able-bodied man. It's the women folks and the children that have been getting the worst of it ever since the time of Adam and Eve.

Yours sincerely,
J. G. BELL (Short Pencil)

RAPT CROWDS HEAR MOBILIZATION CALL IN ADDIS ABABA

Almost fanatic enthusiasm was fanned into flame by the reading of Emperor Haile Selassie's mobilization order calling 1,500,000 men to the colors to resist invasion by Italy. One of the typical scenes enacted in Addis Ababa as a Moslem leader read the fatal words to the rapt crowd is shown in this picture rushed to America.

Political Activities

FARR ANNOUNCES FOR CLERK OF COURT

R. D. Farr on Saturday announced that he would be a candidate for the office of clerk of the court for Ouachita parish, subject to the will of the Democratic party at the primaries to be held in January.

"I am making no absurd claims or political promises," said Mr. Farr. "I have lived in Monroe for the past 22 years. My life as lived in the past is my promise to the future, and if elected to the office, I will discharge my duty to the people with the same faithful devotion that I have practiced with my business associates and others during the past."

Mr. Farr is manager of the Monroe Marble and Granite Works.

GUERRIERO IN RACE FOR CITY JUDGE

Joseph S. Guerriero, local attorney, yesterday announced his candidacy for judge of the Monroe city court, subject to the action of the Democratic primary to be held in January.

Mr. Guerriero was born and reared in Monroe. He attended the public schools and graduated from the Ouachita parish high school in 1922. He is a graduate of the Tulane law school class of 1926, and became associated with a law firm in New Orleans. After two years in New Orleans Mr. Guerriero returned to Monroe continuing the practice of law here.

Talking of his qualifications for the office he seeks Mr. Guerriero, Saturday, commented on the need of strict law enforcement.

He emphasized the need for adherence to the traffic regulations and the adequate punishment of violators who have "no respect for the lives of school children." He called attention to the instructions given the district grand jury at the recent session of that body by Judge Garrett. "School children are at the mercy of speeders and reckless drivers," said Mr. Guerriero, "the police are more than willing to enforce the law."

"If I am elected to the office of city judge, I will personally see that these traffic laws are rigidly enforced and assure you that there will be no favoritism in my court. Any matter brought before me will be given a fair and impartial hearing as required by law.

"My family and their relatives have been residents of the city of Monroe for a period of over 35 years and have never been in any unlawful trouble, having been law-abiding citizens of the community and this record alone is enough to assure the voting citizens that I believe in law and order in the community and if elected I will see that the laws are enforced."

COLE WILL SEEK POLICE JURY POST

R. Q. Cole, local insurance man, announced Saturday that he will be a candidate for the office of police juror for ward three at the forthcoming Democratic primaries.

Mr. Cole, who is a native Louisianian, having been born in Red River parish in 1893, was prominent in the lumber industry before entering the insurance business. He came to Monroe in February, 1922, and became affiliated with the firm of Cole and Leigh, insurance agents. He has lived in ward three for the past twelve years. Mr. Cole is married and has one child, ten years old.

In making his announcement, Mr. Cole said: "If I am elected as a police juror I will administer the duties of the office honestly, to the best of my ability."

BRIDGES ANNOUNCES FOR CITY COMMISSIONER

W. C. Bridges, announcing himself a candidate for the office of commission of streets and parks, issued a statement Saturday, in which he said:

"Having been a citizen of Monroe for the past 16 years, I feel the public knows my qualifications. I was born in Mississippi and graduated in high school and afterwards attended Mississippi State college for four years, working my way through school. In January, 1920, I came to Monroe and was employed as a floor manager at The Palace. In 1926 I resigned and traveled the state of Louisiana for three years. I was later manager and buyer in the women's department of Mike John's store."

Mr. Bridges announced his platform as follows: "Higher wages for labor; raise wages instead of cutting salaries; employ only white labor for city work; cooperation with all city officials as far as possible; better understanding between politics and business; city improvements of all kinds, creating jobs for the people at wages that will justify a decent living."

SPANISH THRONE CLAIMANT WEDS

Don Juan Of Bourbon And Infanta Maria De La Esperanza Are Married

ROME, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Don Juan of Bourbon, heir pretender to the Spanish throne, and his cousin, the Infanta Maria de la Esperanza of Bourbon-Sicile, were married today in the presence of one of the greatest modern assemblages of nobility.

The young couple, in whom Spanish royalist hopes centered, were surrounded by the scions of Europe's proudest families during the ceremony in the historic church of Maria Degli Angeli, which Michelangelo long ago converted from old Roman baths into a monastery.

Thousands of persons cheered in the vast, sun-bathed piazza outside the church as Juan and his bride arrived separately.

Former King Alfonso, father of the bridegroom, also shared in the burst of the monarchists' enthusiasm.

Hundreds of Italian carabiniere formed a ring around the piazza. Pickets of fascist blackshirts composed a guard of honor.

The ceremony itself held in a setting of brilliant dress uniforms and the resplendent purple and crimson robes of the Catholic episcopacy, was extremely simple.

Cardinal Elia Della Costa, archbishop of Florence, received the couple's vows, blessed them and retired to the vestry. The couple then left the church amid great applause and turned to worship in St. Peter's.

PARADE GIVEN BY COUNCIL SCOUTS

Frolic Is Held To Celebrate Opening Of Annual Finance Drive

About 150 Boy Scouts of the Ouachita Valley council, headed by the drum and bugle corps of the Tallulah troop, participated in a parade downtown here yesterday afternoon and a frolic which followed on the campus of the Ouachita Parish Grammar school, in an initial step towards inaugurating the council's annual campaign for operating expenses next Friday.

The various troops were graded on their parade attendance and scores made in the frolic contests. The parade attendance was graded on "scout miles," or total number of miles each scout traveled to come here and participate in the parade. Tallulah won first prize for parade attendance, Newellton was second and Monroe was third. The Newellton troop won the highest number of points for the combined activities of the afternoon, Troop 32 of Monroe was second, the Tallulah troop was third, Troop 1 of Monroe, fourth, and Troop 31 of Monroe fifth.

In the individual fun contests the results were as follows: Chariot race—Newellton, first; Tallulah, second; Troop 32, third; hat relay—Troop 32 first; Newellton, second; Troop 31, third; tire relay—Troop 1, first; Tallulah second and third; football passing relay—Newellton first; Troop 32, second; Troop 1, third.

Scouts who won first place in the combined events for Newellton were Whitfield Butler, Byron Butler, Arnold Arduengo, Harvey Patton, Sam Alsop, J. P. Parker and Irving Broby. The scoutmaster of this troop is S. M. Harris.

The parade and frolic were the first such council events held here in the history of the scout movement. They were thoroughly enjoyed by the scouts and their leaders gave support to the suggestions of Olan H. Black, council executive, that they be made annual events.

SANITY HEARING IS GRANTED TO WOMAN

HARRISON, Mich., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Moving swiftly from one climax to another, Prosecutor Theodore Bowler cleared the way today for an inquiry into the sanity of Mrs. Elizabeth Woodin Rowland, 34, bespectacled farm wife, whose husband, Ferrin, trapper and woodsman, hanged himself in a Pontiac jail yesterday after confesisng that he drowned his wife's two daughters by a former marriage.

Bowler filed a petition for the sanity inquiry in probate court here after announcing that Mrs. Rowland had confessed she knew her husband had planned to drown her small daughters, Katherine Woodin, 6, and Virginia Woodin, 2 1-2.

The prosecutor said she also admitted that she and Rowland once considered killing her 68-year-old father, Herman Voss, but gave up the idea. "We figured he probably would die anyway during the winter," Bowler quoted her as saying.

He said she explained the drownings of the children by saying: "They were in our way." She expressed no surprise over Rowland's death, he asserted.

ALABAMA CITY IS FACING SHORTAGE IN WATER SUPPLY

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Mayor G. B. Edwards said today that lack of rainfall had reduced the city's water supply to the point where it might be necessary to start "rationing it" to the citizens within a few days.

Mayor Edwards said that the lack of water not only was a health menace but would be a major difficulty in case of fire.

The city's water supply comes from five or six "wet weather" springs whose production ranges around 90,000 to 100,000 gallons daily.

Mayor Edwards said that Tuskegee institute, nationally known negro college here, had been supplying the suburb of Greenwood with water until recently but had notified the city that its own water supply was running low and that all of the water was needed at the college.

The college notified the city, however, that it would be glad to cooperate in an emergency.

A loan for the construction of a dam and filter plant to supplement the present waterworks is pending in Washington but city officials said they had little hopes of receiving favorable action on the loan.

JACKSON WOMAN FATALLY INJURED IN CAR ACCIDENT

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Maggie McCallum, elderly Jackson woman, was run over and fatally injured by an automobile here early tonight as she was attempting to cross a street.

Guy Martin, driver of the car which struck Mrs. McCallum, appeared at police headquarters after first taking the injured woman to a local hospital where she died, and told officers that the accident was "unavoidable."

Martin said he was blinded by the lights of other cars and did not see Mrs. McCallum as she stepped directly in front of his automobile. Officers said Martin's version of the accident had been substantiated by witnesses and he was not held in custody.

Mrs. McCallum, a widow, is survived by one son, Robt. McCallum, of Jackson.

Question Of Money's Worth Seen In National Politics

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. — (AP) — Events this week fortified the opinion that a major and perhaps predominant question of the 1936 presidential campaign may be "are the people getting their money's worth from the New Deal?"

Time and again Republican leaders drilled on the theme of "extravagance" and "waste." Democratic spokesmen pointed to business progress as proving that administration policies are paying dividends in the private pocketbook.

The dollars-and-cents talk almost completely superseded, for the time at least, the protracted generalities over whether or not the Roosevelt course squares with the contsitution. Less was heard, too, about the AAA. Many agreed with former President Hoover's view that no farm issue is likely to crystallize at least until the supreme court rules on the processing taxes. December is the earliest month that this is expected.

Political relaxation appeared the tendency. Post-mortems over the opening Roosevelt campaign speeches in the west and revised budgetary estimates, and the Hoover arraignment of New Deal financing, continued without arousing any great commotion. It was recalled that the elections are more than a year off, after all, and much could happen between time to pitch the campaign on unexpected plane.

Louis McHenry Howe, long the closest political advisor to President Roosevelt, summed up the sentiments of more than one with the assertion that campaign lines can not yet be detailed.

"If there should be a real fear," he reminded pointedly, "the issues would be entirely different from those at present in sight."

Although the list of potential Republican presidential nominees seemed to be narrowing down somewhat," a "wait and see" attitude still predominated. Charles Michelson, publicity director for the Democratic national committee, in his regular weekend piece tonight spoke of Mr. Hoover's "bid" for nomination after the ex-president himself in New York had ignored inquiries from the press about his position.

Along with his name, those becoming mentioned more frequently included Colonel Frank Knox, the Chicago publisher; Governor Landon of Kansas, and Senators Borah of Idaho and Vendenberg of Michigan.

RATE PROTECTION ASKED IN PETITION

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 12.—(AP)—A petition asking that motor transport lines operating along the lines of the Missouri Pacific and Texas and Pacific railroads be required to establish rates from Baton Rouge not in excess of rates from New Orleans was filed today before the Louisiana public service commission by the Baton Rouge Chamber of Commerce.

The application stated that on Aug. 13, 1913 the railroad commission, predecessor to the public service commission, ordered the Texas and Pacific not to make charges from Baton Rouge in excess of charges from New Orleans.

It asserted that since the issuance of that order the Texas and Pacific motor transport company and the Missouri Pacific Transportation company have been formed and have been refusing to protect the rates as ordered in operating over the rail companies tracks.

MANSLAUGHTER IS CHARGED TO MAN IN ROAD TRAGEDY

ALEXANDRIA, La., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Manslaughter charges were filed against L. C. Johnson, 35, here today in connection with the death last night in LeCompte, La., of Archie Madison Stafford, 73, and his grandson, Archie Madison Jones, 13, when a wagon in which they were riding was struck from the rear by an automobile allegedly driven by Johnson.

Both men died in the LeCompte hospital shortly after the accident. Stafford died from a fractured skull, compound fracture of the left leg and multiple injuries of the body, according to Dr. S. L. Calhoun, Rapides parish coroner. The boy received a crushing wound on the chest and abdomen which caused an internal hemmorhage.

Ben F. Thompson, Jr., assistant district attorney, swore out the affidavit charging Johnson with manslaughter and he was taken into custody here.

YOUTH PLEADS NOT GUILTY OF MURDER

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Glenn Brasser, 20, appeared in city court today and pleaded innocent to a charge of first degree murder and the strangling of pretty Muriel Hall, 17-year-old high school senior.

Judge William J. Tompkins read the charge and entered the mandatory plea of not guilty as the youth stood before the bench with his lawyer, Maurice G. Lynn, who was retained by Brasser's father.

Lynn asked for an adjournment to talk with his client and decide whether to waive examination or ask for a hearing on the charge. Judge Tompkins granted his request.

Brasser was quoted by District Attorney Daniel J. O'Mara as saying the attractive brunette protested her love and promised to marry him "while I clutched her throat."

One-sixth of the railway mileage in this country is owned by companies which are insolvent.

PARADE GIVEN BY COUNCIL SCOUTS

Frolic Is Held To Celebrate Opening Of Annual Finance Drive

About 150 Boy Scouts of the Ouachita Valley council, headed by the drum and bugle corps of the Tallulah troop, participated in a parade downtown here yesterday afternoon and a frolic which followed on the campus of the Ouachita Parish Grammar school, in an initial step towards inaugurating the council's annual campaign for operating expenses next Friday.

The various troops were graded on their parade attendance and scores made in the frolic contests. The parade attendance was graded on "scout miles," or total number of miles each scout traveled to come here and participate in the parade. Tallulah won first prize for parade attendance, Newellton was second and Monroe was third. The Newellton troop won the highest number of points for the combined activities of the afternoon, Troop 32 of Monroe was second, the Tallulah troop was third, Troop 1 of Monroe, fourth, and Troop 31 of Monroe fifth.

In the individual fun contests the results were as follows: Chariot race—Newellton, first; Tallulah, second; Troop 32, third; hat relay—Troop 32 first; Newellton, second; Troop 31, third; tire relay—Troop 1, first; Tallulah second and third; football passing relay—Newellton first; Troop 32, second; Troop 1, third.

Scouts who won first place in the combined events for Newellton were Whitfield Butler, Byron Butler, Arnold Arduengo, Harvey Patton, Sam Alsop, J. P. Parker and Irving Broby. The scoutmaster of this troop is S. M. Harris.

The parade and frolic were the first such council events held here in the history of the scout movement. They were thoroughly enjoyed by the scouts and their leaders gave support to the suggestions of Olan H. Black, council executive, that they be made annual events.

Glenna Collett's 'Sermon'

"I never fuss. Little things don't matter."

So said Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, national woman golf champion, in an interview recently. She was accounting for the fact that she was able to find time to do so much—be a golf champion, write books, be a mother, a wife, the mistress of a big house, besides half a dozen other interests which take time. Quite without knowing it, she then and there added one more thing to her accomplishments—preaching a sermon.

"I never fuss. Little things don't matter." It was preached in just those few words. And how many people, women especially, need it. How many lives are worn out long before they should be, stewing over every little thing that happens in the day, and even crossing bridges before they come to them in order to fuss more. Yet all it ever accomplishes is to rob the fretters of serenity, and burn up a lot of energy and nerve power which might be conserved, controlled and put to use in the bigger, more important things only, where it would really do some good.

Long ago it was proven that the motor car driver who dashed along noticing all the little things in the way and risking his own life and the necks of everyone else, really reached his destination no quicker than the driver who went along at a steady pace, sure and serene.

Well, life ought to be like that, too. A steady driving toward the ends to be accomplished, without deviating to take notice of the things the dasher is always seeing, driving on and over and around recklessly, for what? The final result is gained just as surely and much more safely, by the one who keeps the objective in mind and goes steadily toward it, disregarding the little things that don't matter. The dasher simply makes more splutter and that is all, unless it be to make a nervous wreck of himself to no purpose in the end.

"I never fuss. Little things don't matter." Take Glenna Collett's little sermon to heart. Watch yourself for just one month and see how many things you fuss about that are really of no consequence at all. See how many high mountains you make of tiny molehills. You can test them by their importance to your life a week, or even two or three days later. By then you probably will have forgotten all about them. So were they worth the importance you briefly gave them?

It is the little things, the little annoyances, the little disagreements, frictions, fears, disappointments that eat time. They do steal from time and thought and energy you would be giving to the bigger things that you want to accomplish. If you want to succeed and triumph, let them slide and see how much more you can get done without them.

BLIND MOTHER LOVE

The New Jersey mother who for 18 hours refused to let her daughter be taken to a hospital for an emergency operation made necessary by a ruptured appendix is a tragic example of the way in which a sincere and protective love can go astray and do more harm than good.

This mother feared hospitals and operations. She loved her daughter as truly as any other mother in the land, and she wanted to protect her, to save her from danger, just as every mother does.

But how frightfully mistaken was the way in which she tried to do it!

Her daughter suffered from an acute ailment for which an immediate operation was the only possible cure. Mother love, twisted out of shape by an unreasoning fear, stood between the girl and the one thing that could help her.

It was a tragic illustration of the fact that the purest devotion can be useless unless it be mixed with a little common sense.

IMMORAL GLANDS

A few medical specialists are of the opinion that moral defects and personal maladjustments can be corrected through treatment of the endocrine glands. Favorable results are reported in a number of cases.

It is an attractive idea, but most people of cautious mentality will be disposed to await confirmation by the medical profession before pinning too much faith in such a procedure.

However, if the time ever comes when misconduct can thus be remedied by the surgeon's knife, the old world should undergo quite an improvement. Al Capone, Benito Mussolini and other enemies of mankind might be speedily transformed into leading exponents of civilized behavior.

The glyptodont, an animal that lived thousands of years ago, used its tail as a club. When attacked, it drew its head and legs into its shell, and swung its tail at the enemy.

Porcupines travel backwards when attacking.

The hawthorn grows leaves on its spines.

ON GUARD

I love to look across the track
And watch the semaphores
Where traffic grinds and roars.
A noisy freight comes clanking by,
Expresses thunder through,
But when aloft I turn my eye
I gain a finer view.

The green lights and the red lights,
That twinkle in the dark;
Each seems to me
At night to be
A silent, dancing spark,
They line the way
As if to say
"What need has man to fear?
Move on, you trains,
O'er hills and plains,
We semaphores are here!"

These little dots of dancing flame
Are always wide awake,
They seem to play a happy game
Of railroad hide and seek.
They thrust their warning fingers forth,
When twilight dims the day,
And east and west and south and north
The rumbling trains obey.
You'll find them on the prairies,
They overlook the streams,
While here and there
And everywhere
Their warning flints and gleams.
They stand aloof
And blizzard-proof,
Come darkness or the dawn;
Through hail or snow
Or storm or blow
They bravely carry on.

Romantic Adventure

BY BRUCE CATTON

Few books have ever been quite so energetically and cleverly press-agented as has the "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," written by England's famous revolt-maker, the late E. T. Lawrence. The redeeming feature is that not many books are so much worth reading as this one, either.

This is the bulky volume of which the famous "Revolt in the Desert" was a condensation.

In it, Lawrence tells how he went into Arabia to see how England could capitalize on the tribesmen's dissatisfaction with Turkish rule.

He got the tribal leaders together and induced them to fight for a free and independent Arabia; he directed their military efforts with rare skill, doing much to produce that behind-the-lines confusion on the Turkish front which helped make possible Allenby's great triumphs in Syria; and at the peace conference he saw his country's statesmen sell the Arabs down the river with cynical disregard of their promises.

He saw this betrayal coming long before it happened; and his book is full of bitterness, bitterness at British statesmen for defrauding the Arabs and at himself for unintentionally assisting in the fraud.

It is also full of profoundly exciting accounts of desert warfare, of deeply interesting discussions of desert life, and of a living prose which entitles this book to rank with the great literature on Arabia by Doughty and Burton.

Beyond all that, the book is a fascinating revelation of Lawrence's own mysterious and tortured personality.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher
(Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—Not many years ago a Morgan partner slumbered frequently at the White House. The name of the great banking firm at Broad and Wall has always been a familiar one in these parts.

Never before, however, has the House of Morgan been the subject of so many backstage whispers in an administration or involved—and annoyed—in so many fields of federal action.

"The New Deal versus Morgan" would be a plausible title, especially to those Democrats and progressives who see the firm, with its fingers in hundreds of corporations and utilities, as a bulwark of reactionary capitalism opposed to liberal reform. Anyway, no end of people here are "talking Morgan."

One returned here to find a general craning of necks toward that "security graveyard" in New York where the Morgans were to auction off collateral carrying control of the $3,000,000,000 Van Sweringen railroad empore, following default on a $48,000,000 loan.

The collateral, consisting of control stock in a bankrupt company, presumably would be worthless to the buyers unless they could get the RFC and ICC to agree to a reorganization plan for the Missouri Pacific which would leave them in control.

There has been plenty of suppressed excitement over whether the Van Sweringens would have the seemingly essential support of Jesse Jones in their effort to retain control and whether the Vans wouldn't still be in hock to Morgan with the $48,000,000 loan largely unpaid.

Dig For Sensations

Senate munitions committee investigators are still deep in the Morgan pre-war and wartime records and act as if they would have something sensational to tell in a few weeks.

You'll be surprised to learn the extent to which personal fortunes of Morgan partners were pledged for the Allies and how important it was for them to have the Allies win—though you won't learn that this led them to egg Washington into the conflict.

Possibly there'll be some heretofore secret history of unfriendly post-war relations between Secretary McAdoo and Morgan which will seem especially interesting when you recall that McAdoo lost the Democratic nomination in 1924 to a Morgan lawyer—a dark horse named John W. Davis.

Relations between the Morgans and the Van Sweringens and certain government officials are being uncovered by the committee under Senator Wheeler, now investigating railroad financing, which means more sensations coming up.

Can't Stop 'Em

Creation of Morgan, Stanley & Co.—operated and owned by Morgan partners and fronted by a son of J. P. Morgan himself—to carry on a security investment business (from which the Morgan company itself is barred as long as it engages in banking) caused sardonic comment here. Especially among such optimistic New Dealers as had thought, after Morgan lobbyists were defeated recently in their attempt to change the law, they had ended the evils of combined commercial banking and investment banking.

It is recalled that the law prohibiting railroad mergers and consolidations without ICC approval was neatly evaded when Wall Street lawyers told the Vans—with Morgan floating their securities and acting as their bankers—how to buy up control of railroads by purchasing stock through holding companies.

Davis Goes Into Action

Now comes John W. Davis, tops among the expensive Morgan lawyers, to challenge constitutionality of the public utilities act in the Baltimore federal court.

It may or may not be important to remember at this point that the heaviest lobbying in the last days of the holding company bill fight was done on behalf of two Morgan companies, United Gas Improvement and Commonwealth and Southern, in the hope that the new law could be made inapplicable to them—which it wasn't.

But Mr. Davis isn't appearing officially for Morgan, U. G. I, Commonwealth and Southern, or even the Edison Electric institute, which recently hired him.

He represents Mr. Lautenbach, a $2,500 creditor of the bankrupt American States Public Service Co., a holding company, and comes in to agree with counsel for trustees who say the law would interfere with reorganization, is unconstitutional, and should be thrown out.

The Morgans are interested in so many things that you'll probably never hear the last of them. They're fairly sure to appear, for instance, in the investigation of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. by the federal communications commission, and that of the food industries by the federal trade commission.

Some American Indian tribes of the old days manufactured their arrow poison from rattlesnake venom and raw liver. The snake was made to bite the liver until it was saturated with the venom and it was then buried and left to decompose. After decomposition, the liver was dug up and smeared on the arrows.

PRIVATE COAL MINE—It was not until William Leaver was finishing the cellar of his two story frame house in Shawnee, Oklahoma, that he discovered his property was exactly on top of a rich vein of coal. Digging into the cellar wall he found the coal deposit that has provided him with all fuel for his furnace and cookstoves. All he needs is a pickaxe and wheelbarrow. The mine likewise air-cools his house by nature. During the hot summer months, there is a perpetual cool draft blowing from the mine, and by keeping his cellar doors open, it circulates through the entire house.

Lights Of New York

By George Ross

NEW YORK—When a chorus girl takes to reading Schopenhauer and guest-starring at the Ladies' Day Nursery, it is the custom to look for a press agent in the woodpile. A wise policy, but sometimes that dizzy blonde, brunette or what-have-you, amazingly ungarbed in a Brodway musical, is not so dizzy after all.

Exhibit A: Five times a day, Gypsy Rose Lee, highest-paid chassis demonstrator on the burlesque runways, lowers her shoulder straps to her anskles in an atmosphere of mild sin and vicarious iniquity. When her art modeling is done, Gypsy goes home to a tasteful studio and continues her researches in Huneker, Dreiser, O'Neill and the modern painters. And she knows a Van Gogh and a Cezanne when she sees one.

Exhibit B: Over at the Hollywood cabaret where Broadway is paying its respect and minimum charges to a new floorshow, four famous chorus girls are seriously considering retirement on the income of their savings. They are the Misses Marion Martin, Cackle O'Neill, Brownie Walsh and Dorothy Chilton, bodies beautiful. For exhibiting their handsome torsoes to countless customers during the past six years, these shapely ladies not only contribute art for art's sake but get big money for it. Two are married happily and all four have bank accounts exceeding $15,000, money they saved out of their pay envelopes and not out of breach of promise suits. The unwed pair want to marry shortly; their fiances aren't flighty playboys or senile bachelors but suitors who have been long-time sweethearts.

Quiet, Please!

Now that Mayor LaGuardia has the city silenced, and the Noise Abatement Commission says so, it is time to tell one on the "Little Flower."

When he broached the matter of less noise to his constituents over the municipal radio station last week, the mayor was unaware, perhaps, that he was up against a case of self-defeatism. Because across the courtyard from this department, a receiving set, tuned high, rent the air with the mayor's rasping plea for quiet. "For Pete's sake," came a shrill yell from the upper story, "will 'ya shut that blasted thing off!"

Deadheads

Only the other night came the gruesome realization that a once-popular night club, Le Boeuf Sur Le Toit, adjoins a hospital morgue. And that the ragtime we tapped our toes to disturbed the peace of the next-door corpses.

Reflecting about the Baer-Louis fracas, one cab driver in town can only wag his head while telling about two last-minute-men he picked up in an off-Broadway ticket office, after they had purchased a couple of $25 ducats for $250. This was an hour and a half before the massacre and they ordered the hack to step on it. The meter read $1.95 when he rushed them to the front gate of the stadium. They handed him a two-dollar bill and beat it. . . . Before me is a come-on letter from Belle Levy, woman detective, offering me her services. "Women," the lady snoops explains in her sales-talk, "make the best detectives because they are born nosey-bodies, gossipers and naturally inquisitive." I'd rather be trailed by a G-Man. . . .

The current Maharajah epidemic in the city is breaking out on numerous corners. Turbaned fakers—not fakirs—set their stands up on the curb, look furtively around for any enemy blue uniforms and mumbo-jumbo their crowds together with a line of utter gibberish. Their racket consists of dipping a piece of plain papyrus, inscribed with invisible ink, into a moist glass cylinder, incanting phoney hocus-pocus and exracting a message of personal importance for any gullible pedestrian. Its the old sideshow gag; but the suckers are biting. Destiny for a dime.

Interest Flicker Out

NORTH LOUISIANA FIREMEN CONDUCT MEETING AT HOMER

HOMER, Oct. 12.—(Special)—A delegation of 67 firemen attended the North Louisiana Firemen's association held here Thursday evening at the city hall. J. L. Kendrick, fire chief of Homer, was elected president of the association for the ensuing year, with Chief Davis of Minden, vice-president.

Chief C. Davis of Ruston, president, presided, J. C. McEachern, fire chief of Haynesville, gave the principal address. Band music by the Haynesville band, routine reports and discussions, and a luncheon served by the firemen's wives were features of the program.

Representatives were in attendance from Minden, Ruston, Arcadia, Dubach, Gibsland, Haynesville and Homer. The next meeting will be held in January at Gibsland.

to benefit, without British interference. Perhaps he will find a way to let Mussolini talk through the air, directly to anybody anywhere, without permission of England. The British, needless to say, have a perfect right to refuse use of their radio facilities in war.

MORE INTERESTING than war news, which future history will dismiss contemptuously as it will dismiss fights among dinosaurs and wolves, is the announcement by Dr. Sterne, of Harvard observatory, that the heat of the stars, suns like our own, some of them millions of times bigger than our sun, runs as high as two billion degrees centigrade.

To know that water boils at 110 degrees centigrade sheds no light on "two billion degrees centigrade." That is beyond our feeble minds.

It is like saying that 100 cents make a dollar and asking you to understand the meaning of "two billions."

PROFESSOR JEANS recently estimated the temperature of our sun's interior at forty million degrees centigrade, attributing the loss in the sun's weight, about 250,000,000 tons every minute, and the sun's radiation of heat and light, to the fact that the sun's atoms are constantly breaking down, throwing off their electrons into space. Scientists say that the stars MUST be throwing off energy to create heat, because "so far as known no appreciable energy enters a star from outer space."

A WHALE in the Arctic ocean uses up a great deal of energy, and the Eskimo does not see that the whale gathers in energy from the outside. But it does. The hanging groves of whalebone in its cavernous mouth catch endless millions of minute marine creatures that supply the whale with energy. Perhaps our sun and the thirty thousand million others in the milky way absorb and transform cosmic matter from "outer space" as they journey through the ocean of ether, some four hundred degrees colder than the Arctic ocean.

Microbes eat, mice and men eat, the whale eats, why shouldn't the great suns also "eat?"

This is the bulky volume of which the famous "Revolt in the Desert" was a condensation.

In it, Lawrence tells how he went into Arabia to see how England could capitalize on the tribesmen's dissatisfaction with Turkish rule.

He got the tribal leaders together and induced them to fight for a free and independent Arabia; he directed their military efforts with rare skill, doing much to produce that behind-the-lines confusion on the Turkish front which helped make possible Allenby's great triumphs in Syria; and at the peace conference he saw his country's statesmen sell the Arabs down the river with cynical disregard of their promises.

He saw this betrayal coming long before it happened; and his book is full of bitterness, bitterness at British statesmen for defrauding the Arabs and at himself for unintentionally assisting in the fraud.

It is also full of profoundly exciting accounts of desert warfare, of deeply interesting discussions of desert life, and of a living prose which entitles this book to rank with the great literature on Arabia by Doughty and Burton.

Beyond all that, the book is a fascinating revelation of Lawrence's own mysterious and tortured personality.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher
(Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—Not many years ago a Morgan partner slumbered frequently at the White House. The name of the great banking firm at Broad and Wall has always been a familiar one in these parts.

Never before, however, has the House of Morgan been the subject of so many backstage whispers in an administration or involved—and annoyed—in so many fields of federal action.

"The New Deal versus Morgan" would be a plausible title, especially to those Democrats and progressives who see the firm, with its fingers in hundreds of corporations and utilities, as a bulwark of reactionary capitalism opposed to liberal reform. Anyway, no end of people here are "talking Morgan."

One returned here to find a general craning of necks toward that "security graveyard" in New York where the Morgans were to auction off collateral carrying control of the $3,000,000,000 Van Sweringen railroad empore, following default on a $48,000,000 loan.

The collateral, consisting of control stock in a bankrupt company, presumably would be worthless to the buyers unless they could get the RFC and ICC to agree to a reorganization plan for the Missouri Pacific which would leave them in control.

There has been plenty of suppressed excitement over whether the Van Sweringens would have the seemingly essential support of Jesse Jones in their effort to retain control and whether the Vans wouldn't still be in hock to Morgan with the $48,000,000 loan largely unpaid.

Dig For Sensations

Senate munitions committee investigators are still deep in the Morgan pre-war and wartime records and act as if they would have something sensational to tell in a few weeks.

You'll be surprised to learn the extent to which personal fortunes of Morgan partners were pledged for the Allies and how important it was for them to have the Allies win—though you won't learn that this led them to egg Washington into the conflict.

Possibly there'll be some heretofore steret history of unfriendly post-war relations between Secretary McAdoo and Morgan which will seem especially interesting when you recall that McAdoo lost the Democratic nomination in 1924 to a Morgan lawyer—a dark horse named John W. Davis.

Relations between the Morgans and the Van Sweringens and certain government officials are being uncovered by the committee under Senator Wheeler, now investigating railroad financing, which means more sensations coming up.

Can't Stop 'Em

Creation of Morgan, Stanley & Co.—operated and owned by Morgan partners and fronted by a son of J. P. Morgan himself—to carry on a security investment business (from which the Morgan company itself is barred as long as it engages in banking) caused sardonic comment here. Especially among such optimistic New Dealers as had thought, after Morgan lobbyists were defeated recently in their attempt to change the law, they had ended the evils of combined commercial banking and investment banking.

It is recalled that the law prohibiting railroad mergers and consolidations without ICC approval was neatly evaded when Wall Street lawyers told the Vans—with Morgan floating their securities and acting as their bankers—how to buy up control of railroads by purchasing stock through holding companies.

Davis Goes Into Action

Now comes John W. Davis, tops among the expensive Morgan lawyers, to challenge constitutionality of the public utilities act in the Baltimore federal court.

It may or may not be important to remember at this point that the heaviest lobbying in the last days of the holding company bill fight was done on behalf of two Morgan companies, United Gas Improvement and Commonwealth and Southern, in the hope that the new law could be made inapplicable to them—which it wasn't.

But Mr. Davis isn't appearing officially for Morgan, U. G. I, Commonwealth and Southern, or even the Edison Electric institute, which recently hired him.

He represents Mr. Lautenbach, a $2,500 creditor of the bankrupt American States Public Service Co., a holding company, and comes in to agree with counsel for trustees who say the law would interfere with reorganization, is unconstitutional, and should be thrown out.

The Morgans are interested in so many things that you'll probably never hear the last of them. They're fairly sure to appear, for instance, in the investigation of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. by the federal communications commission, and that of the food industries by the federal trade commission.

Only parish bred and owned cattle will be entered in the show. C. H. Staples, head of the dairy department of L. S. U., will be the judge of the show.

A farmers' judging contest will be held on the last day, and demonstrations will be conducted by George White of the Claiborne creamery.

F. E. Gandy of Athens is general chairman of the show, Brodie Pugh is secretary and A. D. Fitzgerald is superintendent.

Awards will be made in various classifications of cattle.

Some American Indian tribes of the old days manufactured their arrow poison from rattlesnake venom and raw liver. The snake was made to bite the liver until it was saturated with the venom and it was then buried and left to decompose. After decomposition, the liver was dug up and smeared on the arrows.

PRIVATE COAL MINE—It was not until William Leaver was finishing the cellar of his two story frame house in Shawnee, Oklahoma, that he discovered his property was exactly on top of a rich vein of coal. Digging into the cellar wall he found the coal deposit that has provided him with all fuel for his furnace and cookstoves. All he needs is a pickaxe and wheelbarrow. The mine likewise air-cools his house by nature. During the hot summer months, there is a perpetual cool draft blowing from the mine, and by keeping his cellar doors open, it circulates through the entire house.

Lights Of New York

By George Ross

NEW YORK—When a chorus girl takes to reading Schopenhauer and guest-starring at the Ladies' Day Nursery, it is the custom to look for a press agent in the woodpile. A wise policy, but sometimes that dizzy blonde, brunette or what-have-you, amazingly ungarbed in a Brodway musical, is not so dizzy after all.

Exhibit A: Five times a day, Gypsy Rose Lee, highest-paid chassis demonstrator on the burlesque runways, lowers her shoulder straps to her anskles in an atmosphere of mild sin and vicarious iniquity. When her art modeling is done, Gypsy goes home to a tasteful studio and continues her researches in Huneker, Dreiser, O'Neill and the modern painters. And she knows a Van Gogh and a Cezanne when she sees one.

Exhibit B: Over at the Hollywood cabaret where Broadway is paying its respect and minimum charges to a new floorshow, four famous chorus girls are seriously considering retirement on the income of their savings. They are the Misses Marion Martin, Cackle O'Neill, Brownie Walsh and Dorothy Chilton, bodies beautiful. For exhibiting their handsome torsoes to countless customers during the past six years, these shapely ladies not only contribute art for art's sake but get big money for it. Two are married happily and all four have bank accounts exceeding $15,000, money they saved out of their pay envelopes and not out of breach of promise suits. The unwed pair want to marry shortly; their fiances aren't flighty playboys or senile bachelors but suitors who have been long-time sweethearts.

Quiet, Please!

Now that Mayor LaGuardia has the city silenced, and the Noise Abatement Commission says so, it is time to tell one on the "Little Flower."

When he broached the matter of less noise to his constituents over the municipal radio station last week, the mayor was unaware, perhaps, that he was up against a case of self-defeatism. Because across the courtyard from this department, a receiving set, tuned high, rent the air with the mayor's rasping plea for quiet. "For Pete's sake," came a shrill yell from the upper story, "will 'ya shut that blasted thing off!"

Deadheads

Only the other night came the gruesome realization that a once-popular night club, Le Boeuf Sur Le Toit, adjoins a hospital morgue. And that the ragtime we tapped our toes to disturbed the peace of the next-door corpses.

Reflecting about the Baer-Louis fracas, one cab driver in town can only wag his head while telling about two last-minute-men he picked up in an off-Broadway ticket office, after they had purchased a couple of $25 ducats for $250. This was an hour and a half before the massacre and they ordered the hack to step on it. The meter read $1.95 when he rushed them to the front gate of the stadium. They handed him a two-dollar bill and beat it. . . . Before me is a come-on letter from Belle Levy, woman detective, offering me her services. "Women," the lady snoops explains in her sales-talk, "make the best detectives because they are born nosey-bodies, gossipers and naturally inquisitive." I'd rather be trailed by a G-Man. . . .

The current Maharajah epidemic in the city is breaking out on numerous corners. Turbaned fakers—not fakirs—set their stands up on the curb, look furtively around for any enemy blue uniforms and mumbo-jumbo their crowds together with a line of utter gibberish. Their racket consists of dipping a piece of plain papyrus, inscribed with invisible ink, into a moist glass cylinder, incanting phoney hocus-pocus and exracting a message of personal importance for any gullible pedestrian. Its the old sideshow gag; but the suckers are biting. Destiny for a dime.

Interest Flicker Out

Manhattan has been experiencing hectic social life, what with cocktail parties being tossed left and right for Leslie Howard, Joan Crawford, Franchot Tone and other visiting celebrities. But it still hasn't been determined why Mickey Mouse's seventh birthday party at a local hotel the other day was a fiasco. Places were set for 80 in honor of the animated rodent. Eight arrived. And there have been no blizzards.

NORTH LOUISIANA FIREMEN CONDUCT MEETING AT HOMER

HOMER, Oct. 12.—(Special)—A delegation of 67 firemen attended the North Louisiana Firemen's association held here Thursday evening at the city hall. J. L. Kendrick, fire chief of Homer, was elected president of the association for the ensuing year, with Chief Davis of Minden, vice-president.

Chief C. Davis of Ruston, president, presided. J. C. McEachern, fire chief of Haynesville, gave the principal address. Band music by the Haynesville band, routine reports and discussions, and a luncheon served by the firemen's wives were features of the program.

Representatives were in attendance from Minden, Ruston, Arcadia, Dubach, Gibsland, Haynesville and Homer. The next meeting will be held in January at Gibsland.

to benefit, without British interference. Perhaps he will find a way to let Mussolini talk through the air, directly to anybody anywhere, without permission of England. The British, needless to say, have a perfect right to refuse use of their radio facilities in war.

MORE INTERESTING than war news, which future history will dismiss contemptuously as it will dismiss fights among dinosaurs and wolves, is the announcement by Dr. Sterne, of Harvard observatory, that the heat of the stars, suns like our own, some of them millions of times bigger than our sun, runs as high as two billion degrees centigrade.

To know that water boils at 110 degrees centigrade sheds no light on "two billion degrees centigrade." That is beyond our feeble minds.

It is like saying that 100 cents make a dollar and asking you to understand the meaning of "two billions."

PROFESSOR JEANS recently estimated the temperature of our sun's interior at forty million degrees centigrade, attributing the loss in the sun's weight, about 250,000,000 tons every minute, and the sun's radiation of heat and light, to the fact that the sun's atoms are constantly breaking down, throwing off their electrons into space. Scientists say that the stars MUST be throwing off energy to create heat, because "so far as known no appreciable energy enters a star from outer space."

A WHALE in the Arctic ocean uses up a great deal of energy, and the Eskimo does not see that the whale gathers in energy from the outside. But it does. The hanging groves of whalebone in its cavernous mouth catch endless millions of minute marine creatures that supply the whale with energy. Perhaps our sun and the thirty thousand million others in the milky way absorb and transform cosmic matter from "outer space" as they journey through the ocean of ether, some four hundred degrees colder than the Arctic ocean.

Microbes eat, mice and men eat, the whale eats, why shouldn't the great suns also "eat?"

The general staff believed the Ethiopians would submit more easily to soldiers of their own color than to white troops, particularly as their chieftains had stirred them up against Italians.

In many cases the devotion of these askaris has already been reported. One askar advanced in the front ranks against Aduwa even though he knew his own family lived there. To his joy he found his family intact when Italian troops took the city.

When the column under General Maravigna crossed the frontier and took Aduwa, a blind old native was brought to the general, weeping tears of joy from his sightless eyes. The native had served as an askar in the Italian colonial service, and had been a soldier in the Italian army in Libya.

The two native divisions in the central column total about 30,000 men. Thousands of other askaris, however, have been sent from Eritrea to Somaliland, where the climate is much more difficult for white troops to bear than Eritreans.

day to a man and they were not working."

The man shot here was identified by the police as Henry Hayes, 36. A bullet grazed his nose and it was fired by a policeman who was guarding an automobile load of dock workers en route to work at the Galvez street docks.

The police said that two automobile loads of workers were stoned by a street crowd and that shots were fired. Officer William Hines fired at the crowd and hit Hayes.

Hayes was treated at Charity hospital and later was charged with six others with shooting with intent to kill.

Heavy picket lines were established at Lake Charles and a rice truck driver reported to police that his truck was halted last night near the docks and said he was beaten by longshoremen.

But Sheriff Henry Reid, of Calcasieu parish, said his own deputies stopped the truck and admonished the driver not to drive so fast.

Shipping interests at Gulfport reported today that the picketing there was peaceful and that loading of the steamship, "Eli," was being completed. Local officers were in charge of the situation and I. L. A. spokesman said they would not attempt to breach the peace, but would depend upon plans for a boycott of all vessels loaded by workers who were not members of the I. L. A.

Haile Selassie had ordered Vinci-Gigliucci to leave, charging that the legation was the center of Italian espionage and that Vinci-Gigliucci's presence was embarrassing.

Ethiopian officials said de Granet, the first secretary, after boarding the train, tried to leave and rejoin the minister. They said Ethiopian police discovered him hiding in a corner, holding a revolver, and forced him to reboard the train, accompanied by armed guards.

Haile Selassie declined flatly yesterday to receive Vinci-Gigliucci in a farewell audience. One Ethiopian official said the minister had a case of "fascist heroics." Vinci-Gigliucci had said that like the captain of the ship he would leave only when every other Italian was safe.

He had turned over the keys of the legation to the French minister last night.

The only other Italians now in Ethiopia except for the two consular representatives and the military attaches are about 40 Catholic missionary fathers.

In view of the pope's declination to recall them on the ground they are in the service of the church, the emperor intends to deport them en masse. He wishes to avoid responsibility for their lives when hostilities rage.

The former Touhy gangster sent the truck roaring at full speed in a wide circle around the prison yards, running over an unidentifeld prisoner in the flight. Racing down the front of the yard, the convicts crashed the truck head-on into the heavy prison gates, ripping one from its hinges, and careened south on a highway, a car of armed guards in close pursuit.

After sideswiping an automobile and injuring one of its two occupants, the truck turned off the main highway and soon was overhauled by the guards, who rescued Bartley and captured Spencer and Franklin. They were armed with scissors.

Banghart fled to a nearby woods, where he was shot and captured a few minutes later.

DUCE BUILDS UP NAVAL DEFENSES

50 league powers imposing sanctions, was shown clearly tonight.

Italy will meet "threat with threat," authoritative quarters disclosed. Officials repeated what newspapers declared: "Italy will remember the friends that help her and the enemies that hurt her."

Italians accused Great Britain of shielding her interests behind the league, and league members of attacking Italy because of "her poverty."

Sources close to the government scoffed at the idea Italy should be starved into submission. They echoed Premier Mussolini's frequent phrase: "Live dangerously!"

Italy is ready for an economic emergency, they asserted, with exports, imports, production and the cost of living already controlled.

Italian authorities said they relied upon three things:

1. The smooth functioning of the Fascist organization of the country's whole life.
2. Patriotism, which Fascists claim Il Duce has brought to one of the highest points in history.
3. Italians' known ability to live comfortably on extremely little.

Long ago Mussolini began cutting off imports of luxuries by the quota system. English tobacco, for instance, is being sold out with the knowledge there will be no more.

Ethiopian officials said de Granet, the first secretary, after boarding the train, tried to leave and rejoin the minister. They said Ethiopian police discovered him hiding in a corner, holding a revolver, and forced him to reboard the train, accompanied by armed guards.

Haile Selassie declined flatly yesterday to receive Vinci-Gigliucci in a farewell audience. One Ethiopian official said the minister had a case of "fascist heroics." Vinci-Gigliucci had said that like the captain of the ship he would leave only when every other Italian was safe.

He had turned over the keys of the legation to the French minister last night.

The only other Italians now in Ethiopia except for the two consular representatives and the military attaches are about 40 Catholic missionary fathers.

In view of the pope's declination to recall them on the ground they are in the service of the church, the emperor intends to deport them en masse. He wishes to avoid responsibility for their lives when hostilities rage.

a guard, unconscious and forced Bartley into the van of the vehicle.

The former Touhy gangster sent the truck roaring at full speed in a wide circle around the prison yards, running over an unidentifeid prisoner in the flight. Racing down the front of the yard, the convicts crashed the truck head-on into the heavy prison gates, ripping one from its hinges, and careened south on a highway, a car of armed guards in close pursuit.

After sideswiping an automobile and injuring one of its two occupants, the truck turned off the main highway and soon was overhauled by the guards, who rescued Bartley and captured Spencer and Franklin. They were armed with scissors.

Banghart fled to a nearby woods, where he was shot and captured a few minutes later.

DUCE BUILDS UP NAVAL DEFENSES

50 league powers imposing sanctions, was shown clearly tonight.

Italy will meet "threat with threat," authoritative quarters disclosed. Officials repeated what newspapers declared: "Italy will remember the friends that help her and the enemies that hurt her."

Italians accused Great Britain of shielding her interests behind the league, and league members of attacking Italy because of "her poverty."

Sources close to the government scoffed at the idea Italy should be starved into submission. They echoed Premier Mussolini's frequent phrase: "Live dangerously!"

Italy is ready for an economic emergency, they asserted, with exports, imports, production and the cost of living already controlled.

Italian authorities said they relied upon three things:

1. The smooth functioning of the Fascist organization of the country's whole life.

2. Patriotism, which Fascists claim Il Duce has brought to one of the highest points in history.

3. Italians' known ability to live comfortably on extremely little.

Long ago Mussolini began cutting off imports of luxuries by the quota system. English tobacco, for instance, is being sold out with the knowledge there will be no more.

day to a man and they were not working."

The man shot here was identified by the police as Henry Hayes, 36. A bullet grazed his nose and it was fired by a policeman who was guarding an automobile load of dock workers en route to work at the Galvez street docks.

The police said that two automobile loads of workers were stoned by a street crowd and that shots were fired. Officer William Hines fired at the crowd and hit Hayes.

Hayes was treated at Charity hospital and later was charged with six others with shooting with intent to kill.

Heavy picket lines were established at Lake Charles and a rice truck driver reported to police that his truck was halted last night near the docks and said he was beaten by longshoremen.

But Sheriff Henry Reid, of Calcasieu parish, said his own deputies stopped the truck and admonished the driver not to drive so fast.

Shipping interests at Gulfport reported today that the picketing there was peaceful and that loading of the steamship, "Eli," was being completed. Local officers were in charge of the situation and I. L. A. spokesman said they would not attempt to breach the peace, but would depend upon plans for a boycott of all vessels loaded by workers who were not members of the I. L. A.

It is easier to thread a needle if the end of the thread is cut on a bias.

the new contracts," he said. "It is our intention that the contracts will be fair and equitable."

During the two-day hearing, scores of witnesses from every state in the south have appeared to lend their endorsement to the acreage control program as the means of continuing the southern farmer on the road toward prosperity. Abandonment, they testified, would wreck the financial structure of the agricultural south.

Aiding the southerners' case were two residents of Iowa, O. L. Brownlee of Sioux City and Fred K. Hawley of Larens, who said residents of the northwest believe in the processing tax "as a matter of principle," and as necessary to increase the buying power of the south.

The American Cotton Shippers association appealed through its counsel, John C. White, for increased production allotments next year.

A parity price, he said, can be brought about as well "by increasing consumption as by decreasing production."

Gill, Monroe, 269; S. Dawson' Kennedy, West Monroe, 262; J. Brice Burroughs, West Monroe, 256; Robin Redditt, Monroe, 254; Robert McGowen, Rt. 3, West Monroe, 221; A Scherek Bogen, Monroe, 220; H. S. In the Purdue placement English test, a grade of 150 is the college average. High scorers in the test at the college here were Neva Pearl Worthington, Monroe, 211; Martha Helen Routon, Monroe, 205; Maude S. Gill, Monroe, 194; Joe Haynes, Monroe, 192; S. High scorers in the Nelson-Denny college read test, which has a grade of 55 for its average, were: J. Brice Burroughs, West Monroe, 137; A. Scherek Bogan, Monroe, 125; S. Dawson Kennedy, West Monroe, 124; Robert McGowen, Rt. 3, West Monroe, 123; Neva Worthington, Monroe, 118; Robin Redditt, Monroe, 116; H. S. Coleman, West Monroe, 111; Maude S. Gill, Monroe, 110.

COURT'S DECISION LEAVES BRUNO RESTING 'HOPE IN GOD'

When New Jersey's highest tribunal—the court of errors and appeals—up held the conviction of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, he was left meager legal recourse to escape the electric chair for the kidnaping and murder of the Li ndbergh baby. "I don't know what we will do now, but Richard and I will continue to hope in God," said Mrs. Hauptmann, who is shown with their sm all son Mannfried in her Bronx apartment. Meanwhile, Bruno remains behind bars in the state prison at Trenton, as shown at left, to await the le gal formality of re-sentence to death which will be pronounced by Trial Judge Thomas W. tional of Italy or of either acting as an intermediary in one of the league's states.

4. Opening of bank credits in favor of Italy in any league country.

5. Opening of bank credit without any commercial character in favor of any individual or legal entity national of Italy or of either of them acting as Italy's intermediary in one of the league's states.

6. Opening of credits similar to those referred to in paragraph five but having the appearance of a commercial credit.

7. Opening of normal commercial credits, details of which will be worked out by the committee.

Referring to the last interdiction, No. 7, the report said: "This prohibition would tend to bring about an almost complete stoppage of trade in the country concerned."

An official said a discussion of the complicated and dangerous issues involved in sanctions disclosed that they would fall naturally into these categories:

"1. 'Butterfly' sanctions, nice on paper but hardly likely to pierce Italy's economic skin.

"2. 'Boomerang' sanctions, likely to hit back hard at those who apply them.

"3. 'Bull-dog' sanctions, designed to hamper and eventually paralyze Premier Mussolini's military operations."

Eden bitterly opposed any idea of remaining content with "butterfly" sanctions. He advocated the immediate prohibition by league states of all imports from Italy.

Eden claimed for his "buy nothing from Italy" campaign the advantage that it could be put into effect immediately. Since league states buy 70 per cent of Italy's exports, he argued, a boycott would immediately have a smashing effect.

The French position, however, was that the cutting off of products should come only after a deprivation of war materials had failed to bring Mussolini to terms.

Rumania and Greece also cautioned against a boycott so smashing in effect that it might dislocate not only Italy's economic structure but that of all Europe.

The Rumanian delegate suggested that a committee be created to study means of compensating countries like his, which stands to lose heavily if cut off from the Italian market.

The Italian delegation announced that its head, Baron Pompeo Aloisi, would broadcast from Rome tomorrow night to the United States. This will be the speech which the British post office refused to rebroadcast from Geneva two nights ago—the first application of a sanction against Italy.

Aloisi can speak directly to the United States from Rome without sending his words by England.

In London there were more and more indications of an increase in war sentiment. What turn it will take can not yet be foretold; but England is beginning to think definitely in terms of war possibilities.

London afternoon newspapers "played" the twentieth anniversary of the shooting of Edith Cavell, English World war nurse who was shot by the Germans as a spy. They linked that tragic episode with the possibilities of a new "European conflagration" arising from two dynamite-loaded questions:

1. Will Italy allow ships carrying arms and munitions to Ethiopia to proceed unmolested through the Red sea?

2. Will the League of Nations powers attempt to enforce the arms embargo against Italy by searching ships bound for Italian ports?

It was pointed out in the London papers that complications of this precise nature strained relations between Great Britain and the United States during the World war almost to the breaking point.

There were other martial signs in the British capital.

Industry's spokesman, Sir Francis Joseph, pledged to the government full cooperation in supplying "the sinews of war—adequate armaments."

The leader of the opposition in England, C. R. Attlee, pledged labor's support to sanctions against Italy, and spoke stirringly of "this filthy butchery in Abyssinia."

The British air defense ministry decided to organize a training center for instruction in methods of meeting air raids and gas attacks—unusual measures for peace times.

There was a report that British warships are making arrangements to remove 800 British civil employes with their wives and children from the Island of Malta—one of England's outposts in the Mediterranean, and dangerously close to the Italian mainland.

homicide squad said charges probably would not be filed in the case before the inquest, probably early next week.

The undertaker, who is married and has two daughters, was in a frenzy of excitement when seized by police, and shouted wildly from the stretcher to which he had been strapped. Authorities said he would be questioned as soon as his condition would permit. He was weakened by loss of blood, but was expected to regain strength quickly.

The killing occurred early today and was discovered when a hotel guest heard piercing screams. The guest called hotel attaches, who investigated and summoned police.

Registering as "Mr. Thomas and family of Richmond, Va.," the undertaker and the two girls came to the hotel last night.

Wood said his wife left their home in Fairfax county yesterday morning to drive to Washington, Mrs. Wood and Miss O'Bannon were to meet the former's mother, Mrs. J. W. Fletcher, in the town of Fairfax. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher reside near Culpepper.

Police said they found the girl lying on the floor with Reaguer, face down, near her.

the nature of "political contributions" to Long's Louisiana organization and merely passed through the defendant's hands.

The name of the late Sam Beasley, purchasing agent for the Louisiana Highway department, and a "king pin" in the Long organization, twice was injected into the proceedings today by defense counsel in substantiation of its contention that Shushan received money and bonds from the New York concern for campaign purposes.

Great emphasis was laid by the defense on one check introduced by the government bearing the following notation on its back: "Political donation, H. L. governor."

The check was dated in 1930 at the time Long was campaigning for the senate.

The initial group of government witnesses testified to an agreement between the Standard Dredging company and Shushan whereby the defendant received two cents per cubic yard for dredging done on the Lake Pontchartrain seawall and Shushan airport developments at New Orleans.

Officials of the Standard Dredging company charged Shushan was paid $129,000 in rebates on the airport project alone.

Other government witnesses, principally Adam V. Keller and Harry E. Shill, who said they served as the defendant's New York agents, testified that they handled transactions through which Shushan exchanged large sums of cash for their personal checks.

The amount of cash handled by Keller was fixed at approximately $88,000, while Shill declared he performed similar transactions amounting to more than $60,000.

Shill, subjected to a severe cross-examination by Defense Counsel Hugh M. Wilkinson, testified it was his "understanding" the money he handled for Shushan "would go to Beasley." It developed that the witness was testifying from hearsay, and the presiding judge, William H. Barrett, ordered the jury to disregard it.

The cash-check transactions related by Schill and Keller, Chief Government Prosecutor Amos W. W. Woodcock charged were an asserted effort by the defendant to conceal his income.

Shushan is the second Long associate to be tried on income tax evasion charges, the first being State Representative Joseph Fisher, who was convicted last April and is serving an 18-month sentence in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Several other political allies of the late Louisiana "dictator," including Seymour Weiss, New Orleans hotel man and treasurer of the Long organization, and State Senator Jules Fisher, uncle of Joe Fisher, have been indicted.

Shushan, nattily dressed, remained close at his attorney's side throughout the first week of the trial. He conferred in whispered tones frequently with his attorneys and auditors and gave each bit of testimony his closest attention.

Government attorneys today predicted that the case would require a month to complete. The jury is composed of eleven white business men and a negro dentist.

Helping Mothers to Cut Down On Family's Colds

Unique Formula for Nose and Throat Helps to Prevent Colds—And to Throw Off Head Colds at the Start.

SOON CLEARS "STUFFY HEAD"

Mothers are so often worried about their families' colds that they find special comfort in this unique aid for preventing colds—Vicks Va-tro-nol.

Especially designed for nose and upper throat, where most colds start, Va-tro-nol stimulates the functions provided by Nature—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

Used in time—at the first sniffle, sneeze or nasal irritation—just a few drops up each nostril—Va-tro-nol helps to avoid many colds.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Va-tro-nol spreads through the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

A Practical Guide for Mothers

Each year, more and more families are being helped to fewer colds, shorter colds and milder colds by following Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Vicks Plan has been clinically tested by practicing physicians, and further proved in everyday home use throughout the country. Full details of the Plan come in each package of Vicks Va-tro-nol.

ned scheme" to abduct her for ransom.

Judge Hamilton discussed in detail the two counts of the indictment against the Robinsons, one charging conspiracy and the other aiding and abetting in an interstate kidnaping. Mrs. Stoll was held captive by the kidnaper in an Indianapolis apartment for six days after the kidnaping October 10, 1934. He carefully defined "conspiracy."

The court instructed the jury it could return a verdict on either or both counts. The judge said that if the jury concluded that the defendants, or either of them, conspired to commit the overt acts alleged it was immaterial whether the name of Mrs. Stoll was substituted for that of her father-in-law, C. C. Stoll, in the ransom note.

in the girl's death and no reason to doubt Correll's half-hysterical story.

An inquest will be held Monday.

Thurlo said the families of both Correll and Miss Wolfe were inclined to believe she committed suicide but could suggest no motive.

Thurlo, after talking with Correll at the farm home of his father today, said the boy told of receiving a telephone call from the girl in Brookfield yesterday asking him to come to town and take her home for the week-end.

As they were driving home, the boy related, he out into a field where he said Miss Wolfe told him her father was waiting.

He stopped his car on the banks of Yellow creek, near a dam which formed the 8-foot-deep pool. He left the car and called. There was no response.

Without warning, Thurlo said young Correll told him, the girl thrust the note into his pocket as he returned to the car and plunged into the water.

After hearings in Miami and Tallahassee on the storm disaster, the board will proceed to North Carolina to investigate conditions in veterans camps there.

Witnesses appearing before the commission, which sat first in the Key West high school, included Commander J. J. Trevor, of the Key West Legion post, and George D. Kennedy, weather observer here.

Trevor gave his testimony in an executive session, and it was understood he supplied chiefly background material to enable the committee better to grasp the situation.

Kennedy testified he warned Ray Shelton, second in command of the key camps, that "it looks pretty bad" at 5 a.m. Sunday, September 1, 35 hours before the camps began feeling the storm's lash.

CHAPTER I

Two young men leaving an eastern army camp in the fall of 1917, both in a great hurry, both carrying suitcases and wearing on their collars the shining new bars of second lieutenancy, bumped squarely into one another. Each muttered, "Pardon!" at the same time and hastened on his way. Each was about to be sent overseas. Each was going home first, for a brief visit with an adored wife and child. Each, during that visit, took on his knees his baby daughter and caressed her, and wondered if he would come back to the things he loved—home and wife and child.

Brian Chalmers, turning 2-year-old Elaine back to her sedate English nurse, pulled one of the child's sunny curls teasingly. "Goodby, Beautiful! You'll be asleep when I pull out in the morning. If I don't come back, don't take any wooden nickels or stepfathers!"

The child laughed with delight at the jolly, meaningless words her father was saying. She liked his pungent, tobaccoish, shaving-cream smell, and the feel of his lean, hard cheek against her own. She liked his big polished boots and the funny belt that went around his waist and up over one shoulder. "'By, Daddy!" she said, kissing him rapturously.

"She likes men," the child's mother drawled. She was a beautiful woman in a clinging sea-green negligee, with a face that was rather soft and petulant. "She's going to be man-hungry, that girl. A little witch. I'm already jealous of her."

The man drew his wife to the arm of his chair and buried his face in the scented lace of her negligee. "You like men, too," he accused. "If I'm blown to atoms over there you'll select the best-looking mourning in town. You'll wear it becomingly for a year, and the day you step out of it you'll marry Higate Deal!"

"Darling!" she remonstrated. "Must you be spiteful about all the men who have nice safe jobs in Washington?"

"No" answered Brian Chalmers. "Only when they're your old suitors and still in love with you. Gwen, you'll take good care of Elaine, won't you?"

The woman's eyes opened in surprise. "What a thing to say to the child's own mother! Please remember, dear, that I love her, too. I put in hours and hours selecting her little frocks and toys."

"I know," the man nodded impatiently. "But I'm thinking of her character, Gwen, and things like that. I want her to grow up to be fine and straight and dependable." He paused uncertainly and lit a cigaret. "Lord! What DO I want for her?" He looked after the lovely child as she toddled up the broad stairway, holding tightly to her nurse's hand. "I suppose I just want her to have anything in this world that will make her happy. Yes," he repeated it, rather like a prayer, "—anything in the world that will make her happy."

The other young man was named George Woodson. He and his wife, Eleanor, were so beautifully and simply in love with each other that this short leave of his was like a bit of heaven in a sea of horror. Through every hour of its radiance sounded the relentless drum-beat of approaching separation, of submarine-infested seas, and a war to be fought.

They were restless in their love and foreboding. George said, "Let's walk along the river this evening. "It's swell in October—"

"I'd thought of a picnic supper there," Eleanor replied. "At the little cove where we used to go when we were engaged. But there's Baby Ruth, dear. She has a croupy cough and we shouldn't leave her. Mrs. Gary would come in to look after her, but I'm just afraid—do you mind terribly? I've a party for us in the icebox. A cold chicken and all the things you love—"

George Woodson took his wife in his arms. "Mind, dear? It doesn't matter to me where I am, just so you are near enough to touch. Tell me, Eleanor! If I don't come back, will you promise—?"

Her dark eyes widened in pain and she quickly laid her hand over his mouth. "Don't say it!" she begged. "Don't think it!"

"I will!" he replied stubbornly. "It's got to be said. We've evaded it long enough. If I fail to come back, you're ready to go on gamely. That will be your duty, just as it's mine to go out and die, if necessary, to get this bloody war ended."

She replied in a muffled voice from his arms. "Your part is easier than mine, George. I'd rather go and fight than wait here. I'd rather die in battle than be left without my very heart."

"I know," he said soothingly. "I know. To himself he was thinking: "War is hellish. Just three years ago we found each other. It was in the fall, like this. I loved the way she walked along picking up red leaves, sticking them in her hat, in her dress. I loved the way she laughed and the way she sang, a little off key, like a happy child. I loved the way she closed her eyes when she kissed me. I still love these things in her. I'd like to go on loving them forever. Instead I'm going off to a dizzy war that somebody else started, and maybe have my guts torn out with a cold steel bayonet—"

"George," Eleanor said, "you're shivering. Are you cold?"

"No," he replied. "You're imagining things. What I started out to say, dear, is this. If I shouldn't come back, you'll have Ruth to take care of. It's not as if we had parents and brothers and sisters to help you. There's nobody you'll have any real claim on. But there'll be my insurance. My war risk insurance, and $2,000 more, of the regular kind. I'll show you the papers tonight—"

"There's no use in your urging me to live on," she said, "if you don't come back to me. I wouldn't. I couldn't. I would go to you, wherever you might be. Someone else would care for Ruth—"

He loved her the more, even for this weakness, this inconsistency. "All within five minutes," he pointed out, "you've refused to leave your baby for a picnic because she has croup, and you've refused to live for her if I die. That's logic for you."

They laughed together, rather shakily, and she pushed him down into his favorite chair and filled his pipe for him. He said, "Isn't that a new dress you're wearing?"

She answered, "Of course. If you hadn't noticed it, I was going to put poison in your tea. I'm making over the yellow flannel into a coat for Ruth. It's going to have cunning beaver collar and cuffs, made out of my neckpiece."

"More inconsistencies," he remarked, raising one eyebrow. "What'll you do for a neck-piece?"

Eleanor answered, "I'll wrap up in a muffler, I suppose. And I've done something else reckless, dear. I've bought six bronze chrysanthemums for the supper table, because we both love them so. And wait! That's not the worst. I've made two kinds of cake for tonight. The government may get me for that, but this is a celebration. I'll go make the coffee now, and you can read the paper—"

But he did not read the paper. He went into the bedroom and looked at his child in her crib. He marveled at the smallness of the two hands that lay outside the covers, and at the softness of the round, flushed cheeks. The dark eyes, closed in sleep, were like her mother's. But he knew that the wide, engaging mouth and the squareness of the little chin were his own contribution. "Funny little mixture," he mused, looking down at her.

And then, strangely, he said something that the other young father had said of his child: "I want her to have whatever it takes to make her happy. Whatever it takes!"

Though they never encountered each other again, Brian Chalmers and George Woodson had two things in common: a rendezvous with death on a distant Flanders field, and the wish they had made for their children. It was the fault of fate that these two children, in the distant year marked 1935, should find themselves in the same place, wanting the same thing. . . . Which of you wished harder, oh gallant young fathers?

CHAPTER II

Ruth Woodson stooped to pick up a red maple leaf from the ground and realized that fall had come.

"Fall and no job yet!" Well, what could she expect when she'd not had a business course, or any special training? She'd heard countless stories of girls like herself walking their shoes thin, and not getting anywhere. "And it's no idle tale, my girl" she murmured to herself as she stepped on a pebble and felt its sharp prod against the sole of her foot. "These shoes have got to be half-soled soon, or I'll have stone bruises."

The shoes were trim enough to look at, however, and covered a shapely, well-arched foot. Nor were her feet the only points of interest which the girl possessed. She had a slender, nicely poised body and a face that made a passer-by want to stop and look again. Not because of any startling beauty, but because of an inner radiance and a piquancy of expression that she wore. The eyes were dark and nicely lashed. The hair was dark and waving. The nose was short and straight, the chin square, and between the two was a mouth that was too wide, like a small boy's, but alluringly shaped. Today a brave dash of lipstick caused the mouth to match exactly in color the gay, blood-red leaf which she had just fastened in the lapel of her suit.

Ruth sat down on a park bench and opened the newspaper she had bought on the corner. She turned to the column that said "Help Wanted, Female." She saw there was nothing new there—nothing she had not already followed up or eliminated as out of her range. With a sharp little sight she laid the paper down and let her thoughts run riot. . . . "I can't afford lunch today. Thirty cents saved is 30 cents made. . . . I must go to one of the 10-cent stores and buy narcissus bulbs for Cousin Bessie's birthday. . . ."

Cousin Bessie, of the impending birthday, was the widowed relative with whom Ruth lived in a small, artistic and very crowded flat in Brooklyn. Mrs. Lawrence read manuscripts for a tottering publishing house in New York and was very poorly paid indeed. With this inadequate salary she supported herself, an 18-year-old daughter, and a 16-year-old son. For some months now she had been supporting Ruth Woodson as well, at least as far as food and shelter were concerned. It was this thought that made Ruth a little desperate when she had time to think about it, as she was doing now.

Ruth had been "passed around" since her fourth birthday. George Woodson, her father, had gone to his brave death just before the armistice. Eleanor Woodson had eventually followed him, as she had told him she would do. It took long months of grieving assisted by nervous exhaustion and pneumonia to turn the trick, but in the end she had died with a triumphant smile on her face and a feeling of release in her heart. She was off to find her lover.

The child, Ruth, and George's insurance went to Great-Aunt Sarah Woodson, who accepted them as a sacred trust and a terrible burden. Great-Aunt Sarah lived several years to do her duty by Ruth before dying and passing her on to another great-aunt whom Ruth affectionately recalled as "Aunt Matilda." At Aunt Matilda's death the child's real troubles began. She was 10 years old and, as she naively expressed it at the time, she had "run out of aunts." She had also run out of money, for the two old ladies between them had invested the little competence unsoundly.

Ruth was then passed about among several cousins of her parents' with more speed than tact. A child of less character might have been broken in spirit and have become a self-pitying, shrinking little introvert. Or she might have developed into a pushing, obnoxious little aggressive, snatching advantage where she might. But Ruth Woodson did neither. As her body grew straight and true, so did her naturally sunny disposition. The knowledge that she was a moneyless orphan whom no one needed did not embitter her. It only made her a little more watchful and well-mannered than most children. She learned to squeeze into corners, as it were, and to make herself useful where she could.

He said, "I'm on my way to a late lunch, I wonder if you will join me?"

When Ruth finished high school in the little upstate town where she had grown up, there was no job available for her, so she came to New York to the one relative who remained untried—Cousin Bessie Lawrence. The cousins in Worthville waved her off with finality and ill-concealed relief, for they had broods of their own and they regarded Ruth as "a problem." The girl had an excess of high spirits and a taste for adventure which upset and annoyed them.

Cousin Bessie, to whom Ruth had come so eagerly that day two summers ago, was kindness itself. Unfortunately, she was also inefficient and impractical. She had spoiled her own two children beyond reason, and she dashed from home to office every day, and back again, like a rabbit pursued by hounds—the hounds of work and debt and possible failure.

Bessie Lawrence managed to give Ruth the wrong advice at every turn. Instead of arranging for the girl to borrow money for a short and thorough business course or for some vocational training, she allowed her to take temporary jobs for which she was unsuited and which soon "petered out," leaving Ruth discouraged and dismayed. For weeks now she had had nothing at all to do. The dwindling change in her pocketbook was there because she had been able to reline a coat for a woman in the apartment above them.

Ruth got up from the bench to go and noticed that a figure was standing in front of her. It was an exceedingly well-dressed man, not old, not young. He was looking at her, and as she looked at him he took off his hat courteously.

He said, "I'm on my way to a late lunch at the Casino. I wonder if you will join me?"

The casualness of the attack impressed Ruth more than any maneuvering on his part would have done. She looked at him with interest and found him to be rather handsome and impressive. He might even be a gentleman. She thought, "I'm hungry. Why not? Besides, it's an adventure. Imagine being asked to the Casino, just like that!" She'd never been inside the doors, of course.

The man said, "Girls who look like Claudette Colbert expect to be admired by strangers, naturally."

Ruth again felt a prick of admiration for his cleverness. She knew there was a haunting resemblance to Colbert's face in her own. This observing man might be entertaining. Certainly he was flattering. And then, struggling up from some deeper consciousness of her mind, there came this warning, like a little bell in some far away temple garden:

"Wrong things begin this way. Careful, Ruth! You're about to be picked up! Once done, it gets easier and easier!"

She looked at the man for a moment, coolly. Then she said to him, "I hope you'll enjoy your lunch. Don't let me detain you."

He smiled guardedly. "I'm sorry," he replied. "Now and then one tries the wrong girl. No offense, I hope?"

"None at all," Ruth told him. "And thank you for saying I look like Claudette." She smiled as she turned and left him, but it was a clear-cut smile of dismissal.

In the 5-and-10 she bought a chocolate bar when she selected Cousin Bessie's narcissus bulbs. The bar was her lunch, and she came out of he store nibbling it. It tasted heavenly. She had sold no part of herself to obtain it, not even her pride.

Your Monroe Baker Explains the Toasting Qualities of Their BREADS

People often wonder why there should be a difference in the toasting quality of various breads. It is caused by the difference in the combination of ingredients used in making it. Bread made from a rich formula—one with a substantial percentage of milk, sugar and shortening—makes the type of toast preferred by most people.

Several complex changes take place when bread is toasted. The six principal proteins are changed somewhat by the application of heat and assume a new and delicious flavor that permeates the slice. The change in color and added flavor are brought about through the caramelizing of the sugar and the changing of starch into sugar called dextrin which in turn is also caramelized.

THE AMERICAN PUBLIC IS PARTICULAR ABOUT THEIR TOASTED BREADS

It is impossible to set down rules for making toast that will please everyone, however research indicates that the American public prefers a toast that is between the soft crisp-crusted slice and the slice that is toasted through and through. It should be freshly made, have a golden brown color and be uniformly toasted.

Bread today has better toasting qualities than formerly. A pound loaf of 1935 baker's bread contains an average of one ounce more or richer ingredients than the loaf of 1913. These ingredients cost from two to five times as much as the flour which they replaced.

Not only is today's bread better for toasting but it is more nutritious, more easily digested and has a greater vitamin content. In the past, toast was thought of principally as a breakfast food but now it is coming more and more into use for sandwiches both for luncheon and to be served during an evening of bridge.

CHAPTER I

Two young men leaving an eastern army camp in the fall of 1917, both in a great hurry, both carrying suitcases and wearing on their collars the shining new bars of second lieutenancy, bumped squarely into one another. Each muttered, "Pardon!" at the same time and hastened on his way. Each was about to be sent overseas. Each was going home first, for a brief visit with an adored wife and child. Each, during that visit, took on his knees his baby daughter and caressed her, and wondered if he would come back to the things he loved—home and wife and child.

Brian Chalmers, turning 2-year-old Elaine back to her sedate English nurse, pulled one of the child's sunny curls teasingly. "Goodby, Beautiful! You'll be asleep when I pull out in the morning. If I don't come back, don't take any wooden nickels or stepfathers!"

The child laughed with delight at the jolly, meaningless words her father was saying. She liked his pungent, tobaccoish, shaving-cream smell, and the feel of his lean, hard cheek against her own. She liked his big polished boots and the funny belt that went around his waist and up over one shoulder. "'By, Daddy!" she said, kissing him rapturously.

"She likes men," the child's mother drawled. She was a beautiful woman in a clinging sea-green negligee, with a face that was rather soft and petulant. "She's going to be man-hungry, that girl. A little witch. I'm already jealous of her."

The man drew his wife to the arm of his chair and buried his face in the scented lace of her negligee. "You like men, too," he accused. "If I'm blown to atoms over there you'll select the best-looking mourning in town. You'll wear it becomingly for a year, and the day you step out of it you'll marry Higate Deal!"

"Darling!" she remonstrated. "Must you be spiteful about all the men who have nice safe jobs in Washington?"

"No" answered Brian Chalmers. "Only when they're your old suitors and still in love with you. Gwen, you'll take good care of Elaine, won't you?"

The woman's eyes opened in surprise. "What a thing to say to the child's own mother! Please remember, dear, that I love her, too. I put in hours and hours selecting her little frocks and toys."

"I know," the man nodded impatiently. "But I'm thinking of her character, Gwen, and things like that. I want her to grow up to be fine and straight and dependable." He paused uncertainly and lit a cigaret. "Lord! What DO I want for her?" He looked after the lovely child as she toddled up the broad stairway, holding tightly to her nurse's hand. "I suppose I just want her to have anything in this world that will make her happy. Yes," he repeated it, rather like a prayer, "—anything in the world that will make her happy."

George Woodson took his wife in his arms. "Mind, dear? It doesn't matter to me where I am, just so you are near enough to touch. Tell me, Eleanor! If I don't come back, will you promise—?"

Her dark eyes widened in pain and she quickly laid her hand over his mouth. "Don't say it!" she begged. "Don't think it!"

"I will!" he replied stubbornly. "It's got to be said. We've evaded it long enough. If I fail to come back, you're ready to go on gamely. That will be your duty, just as it's mine to go out and die, if necessary, to get this bloody war ended."

"No," he replied. "You're imagining things. What I started out to say, dear, is this. If I shouldn't come back, you'll have Ruth to take care of. It's not as if we had parents and brothers and sisters to help you. There's nobody you'll have any real claim on. But there'll be my insurance. My war risk insurance, and $2,000 more, of the regular kind. I'll show you the papers tonight—"

"There's no use in your urging me to live on," she said, "if you don't come back to me. I wouldn't. I couldn't. I would go to you, wherever you might be. Someone else would care for Ruth—"

He loved her the more, even for this weakness, this inconsistency. "All within five minutes," he pointed out, "you've refused to leave your baby for a picnic because she has croup, and you've refused to live for her if I die. That's logic for you."

They laughed together, rather shakily, and she pushed him down into his favorite chair and filled his pipe for him. He said, "Isn't that a new dress you're wearing?"

She answered, "Of course. If you hadn't noticed it, I was going to put poison in your tea. I'm making over the yellow flannel into a coat for Ruth. It's going to have cunning beaver collar and cuffs, made out of my neckpiece."

"More inconsistencies," he remarked, raising one eyebrow. "What'll you do for a neck-piece?"

Eleanor answered, "I'll wrap up in a muffler, I suppose. And I've done something else reckless, dear. I've bought six bronze chrysanthemums for the supper table, because we both love them so. And wait! That's not the worst. I've made two kinds of cake for tonight. The government may get me for that, but this is a celebration. I'll go make the coffee now, and you can read the paper—"

Bread made from a rich formula—one with a substantial percentage of milk, sugar and shortening—makes the type of toast preferred by most people.

Several complex changes take place when bread is toasted. The six principal proteins are changed somewhat by the application of heat and assume a new and delicious flavor that permeates the slice. The change in color and added flavor are brought about through the caramelizing of the sugar and the changing of starch into sugar called dextrin which in turn is also caramelized.

THE AMERICAN PUBLIC IS PARTICULAR ABOUT THEIR TOASTED BREADS

It is impossible to set down rules for making toast that will please everyone, however research indicates that the American public prefers a toast that is between the soft crisp-crusted slice and the slice that is toasted through and through. It should be freshly made, have a golden brown color and be uniformly toasted.

Bread today has better toasting qualities than formerly. A pound loaf of 1935 baker's bread contains an average of one ounce more or richer ingredients than the loaf of 1913. These ingredients cost from two to five times as much as the flour which they replaced.

Not only is today's bread better for toasting but it is more nutritious, more easily digested and has a greater vitamin content. In the past, toast was thought of principally as a breakfast food but now it is coming more and more into use for sandwiches both for luncheon and to be served during an evening of bridge.

MICKAL, CRASS LEAD TIGERS IN IMPRESSIVE WIN

Passes Account For All But One Score As Jaspers Are Routed

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The Louisiana State Tigers strayed from the jungles of the bayou country today, filled the Brooklyn air with passes and smothered a helpless Manhattan college eleven, 32 to 0.

For the benefit of an audience of 20,000 fans, the Tigers, led by Abe Mickal, No. 1 man of the colorful 1934 eleven, and Big Bill Crass, the hard hitting fullback from the plains of Texas, uncorked one of the most brilliant overhead offensives the east has seen in years to run wild and score almost at will over the best Manhattan team in four years.

The southerners counted in every period except the first and passes—long, short, high and low—accounted for all but one of the scores. To add to the gloom in Flatbush tonight, two of the visiting tallies were rolled up by the visiting third team, which galloped into action at the start of the last quarter and carried on as effectively as the more seasoned performers on the first and second squads.

When their running attack failed to click in the first period, Coach Bernie Moore ordered his Bengals into the atmosphere and they lingered there the rest of the afternoon. They scored twice in the second, once in the third and twice in the fourth.

The statistics tell how smoothly the Tiger overhead offensive functioned. They completed eight out of eleven attempts for a total of 193 yards. Manhattan, on the other hand, tried only three passes, of which two were made good for a gain of 16 yards.

Louisiana State gained 207 yards on the ground to 110 for Manhattan. First downs were doubled, 12 to 6 for the visitors.

With the powerful Crass and his fellow backs having little or no luck against the Manhattan line, Mickal, back in action again after a long hospital seige, went into the game in the second and promptly fired two leaves that spelled touchdowns. His first shot was to Arthur Morton, Tallulah, La., sophomore, who scored after a 20-yard run and the second a 6-yarder—fell into the waiting arms of Jess Fatherree, who fell across the line for the touchdown. Mickal's kick was wide.

Crass took up the burden in the third, shot one 31 yards to Fatherree for another touchdown and then personally kicked the goal. The batting in this quarter was so savage, three of the Tigers had their jerseys ripped from their backs and had to don new shirts in midfield.

Then the little Bengals took charge, headed by Jack Coffee and Charlie Rohm they skipped onto the field and promptly rolled up two more scores. Coffee passed 31 yards to Rohm who tallied merely by stepping over the line. A few minutes later, Rohm got loose around left end for 6 yards, the day's longest run, for the last score. Coffee failed to convert in each instance.

Rose Bowl Teams Defeated In Saturday Football Upsets

SCRAMBLED

The Southeastern conference football race is getting more complicated as the season advances. Yesterday's games didn't help unscramble the dope any.

Alabama, Louisiana State, Tulane and Tennessee were figured as the four leading contenders when the call to arms sounded on Labor day, yet Alabama and Tulane already have been eliminated and Tennessee has been trounced by North Carolina, a Southern conference club. It looks like a good spot for Bernie Moore's Tigers, but four conference games in a row against tough opposition, plus that final battle with Tulane after a "breather," may furnish an upset for Tiger fans to chew on.

Auburn looked like a real contender after trouncing Tulane, yet the Plainsmen were beaten yesterday by Tennessee. And Mississippi State, which upset Alabama yesterday, was nosed out by Vanderbilt a week ago.

Kentucky looked good in holding Ohio State to a low score last week and then trimming Georgia Tech yesterday. Georgia has two impressive victories, but the Bulldogs haven't encountered any opposition in their own loop. And both face plenty of tough ones to come, including Georgia's games with L. S. U. and Tulane, and Kentucky's annual brush with the Green Wave.

Louisiana State's early season performances speak well for the Tigers' chances. However, they meet Vanderbilt, Auburn, Mississippi State and Georgia in that order, and then close against Tulane two weeks after the Georgia game. That's a large order for any football team to fill.

GUESSING BEGINS

The annual guess 'em game begins this week. Three prizes will be offered each week for the fans who guess the most winners out of 25 or more football games. The usual blank will appear Tuesday morning, and winners will be announced each Sunday. We're pleased to report many requests for the contest again this year.

J. J. Martin, the sports-minded manager of J. C. Penney company, is cooperating with the sports department in sponsoring the contest this year. Penney's will donate the three prizes each week for the entire season. The contest will be called the World-Penney Football club. Sit in on the first meeting Tuesday.

FAT ON THE FIRE

The World Series is over and Series talk has just about run its course, but there will be plenty of conversation for stove league sessions this winter. At least a dozen of the 16 major league clubs are expected to figure in some wholesale swapping before the contracts are sent out for 1936.

The most discussed deal, of course, is that which appears certain to be consummated between the Red Sox and the Athletics. Jimmy Foxx is the big fish that Mr. Yawkey is angling for, although one or two other stars of the A's may accompany the slugger, when and if he departs for Fenway park. The latest report is that Foxx has been sold to the Red Sox for $50,000, the deal to be announced in December, but we haven't heard anything about Mr. Mack losing his mind lately. $150,000 would be more like it. On the other hand, the White Sox made plenty of dough in 1935 and Manager Dykes would like to see his old teammate in a Pale Hose uniform. With Comiskey and Yawkey bidding against each other, Mr. Mack seems to be in a nice spot as far as Foxx is concerned.

The Tigers and Cubs aren't expected to do anything drastic about shaking up their championship clubs, but each is expected to bolster some of the weaker spots. Before the series, it appeared a certainty that Chuck Klein would leave the Cubs, with the probability that he would hang his hat in the Cardinals' clubhouse, but his fine showing in the Detroit battles may change Charley Grimm's plans. Al Simmons, another former "big name," seems likely to be missing when the White Sox are herded together next spring, and it wouldn't be surprising to see him performing his chores for Mickey Cochrane, his old pal of former days.

The Giants will go into the house-cleaning business in a big way, and an important deal already may have been closed with the Phils. Terry is anxious that Dolph Camili succeed him at first base, and is reported willing to give up Roy Parmelee, Phil Weintraub and a bale of frog skins in return for the young first sacker. Terry also is in a receptive mood for a deal with the Cardinals, from whom he would like to get Burgess Whitehead, Pepper Martin and Ripper Collins, if the Camili trade falls flat.

The Yankees are competing with the Red Sox for the services of Roger Cramer and Wally Moses, both of whom are now drawing pay from Connie Mack, but if the venerable pilot of the A's sells Foxx, Cramer, and Moses, together with Marcum and Higgins, who also have been mentioned in trade talk, he might as well close up shop at Shibe park.

Practically every other club in the big time has been mentioned as seeking reinforcements. Just as soon as the football teams drop off the sports pages, you can look for plenty of news from the fellows who do the trading in baseball headquarters.

KRUEGER TAKES LOUISVILLE LEAD

Wisconsin Pro Noses Out Paul Runyan In Open Meet With 136

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Alvin "Butch" Krueger, Beloit, Wis., semi-pro baseball player, blasted three strokes from par on the second nine today to score 33, turning in an 18-hole total of 69 for the day to nose out Paul Runyan, national P. G. A. champion, for the lead in the $5,000 Louisville open golf tournament.

Krueger's 36-hole score was 136, five under par. Runyan came in with a 70. This figure, plus his 67 of Thursday, gave him a 36-hole total of 137.

Next in line came Ed Dudley, Philadelphia; Frank Walsh, Chicago, and Jimmy Hines, Garden, City., N. Y., with 141. Horton Smith, defending champion, and Johnny Farrell, Springfield, N. J., were deadlocked at 143.

Those carding 150 or better qualified to play the final 36 holes tomorrow. Five of the British Ryder cup team members made the grade. They are Ernest Whitcombe, William Cox, Richard Burton, C. Whitcombe and Reginald White.

Johnny Camet, of Baton Rouge, La., cut a stroke from his 76 of yesterday for a total of 76-75—151 but missed the qualifying line by a single stroke.

STANFORD, 'BAMA BEATEN; BIG TEN TEAMS TRIUMPH

Louisiana State Helps Make Things Miserable For Eastern Teams

By Herbert W. Barker
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Rose Bowl finalists of last New Year's day went down to unexpected defeat yesterday in another smashing country-wide display of intercollegiate football at its best, with the Big Ten conference as a group and the Elis of Yale individually earning most of the laurels.

A few hours after Major Ralph I. Sasse's Mississippit Sate hopefuls had given Alabama, Rose Bowl champion, a 20 to 7 lacing, Stanford, victims of Alabama at Pasadena, took a beating from the University of California at Los Angeles, 7-6. Mississippi State, aiming at real football power under Maj. Sasse's leadership, caught Alabama with a furious first-half offensive and then hung on to win. Stanford had expected trouble from Bill Spaulding's Uclans and got more than they bargained for. The winners piled up Stanford's offense every time the desperate Cardinals got within scoring range, once they had grabbed that one-point lead.

Meanwhile, rumors that the Big Ten, as a whole, was much weaker than usual, proved entirely unfounded as Purdue and Iowa accounted for the scalps of two previously unbeaten eastern powers; Illinois halted Southern California, and Minnesota abruptly checked Nebraska's bid for the national championship.

Purdue invaded New York and trounced Jimmy Crowley's Fordham Rams, 20-0, while Iowa's Hawkeyes, a powerful outfit, turned back Colgate's Red Raiders, 12-6. Illinois took advantage of all the breaks and walloped Southern California 19-0, while Minnesota toppled Nebraska, 17-7, after a ding-dong struggle in which the Cornhuskers tossed away several opportunities to push over the winning score.

With Ohio State's Buckeyes running up an 85-7 count on Drake, Wisconsin's Badgers were the only Big Ten losers in outside competition, taking a bad 27-0 beating from Notre Dame. Michigan surprised by taking Indiana over the hurdles, 7-0, in the only conference game of the day.

The most spectacular game of the day, however, was fought at Philadelphia before 62,000 spectators, Yale's flashing offensive carrying the Elis to a 31-20 triumph over Pennsylvania after the Quakers had scored two touchdowns early in the first quarter.

While Army and Dartmouth were hanging up one-sided triumphs in the east, Manhattan took a bad 32-0 beating from strong Louisiana State university to make it a ruinous day for eastern football all around.

A few of the leaders—Holy Cross, Columbia, Pitt, Princeton and Syracuse—came through but some of them had their troubles, Princeton had to play up to its best form to turn back a good Williams outfit, 14-7, and Holy Cross was hard-pressed to whip Harvard, 13-0. Columbia was too good for Rutgers, 20-6, and Pitt rolled over West Virginia, 24-6. One of the best efforts of the day was New York university's surprisingly one-sided vic-

DUKE AND TARHEELS LEAD IN SOUTHERN

(By Associated Press)

The booming guns of Duke and North Carolina rumbled over the Southern conference battleground yesterday with the two Old North State elevens, each eyeing the Rose Bowl, vaulting into the joint leadership in the championship race with smashing victories over previously undefeated contenders.

North Carolina knocked off Maryland at Baltimore, 33 to 0, while Duke didn't even need the services of the great Ace Parker in humbling Clemson's game but outclassed Tigers, 38 to 12.

Striking three times in the opening quarter, North Carolina let Maryland know in a hurry yesterday the fate in store for the Old Liners and the Duke Blue Devils, also starting fast, took a two touchdown lead in the opening frame.

South Carolina's little eleven suffered a 13 to 6 defeat at the hands of Davidson while the two conference members who went forth to battle in the Old Dominion had nothing to crow about. Richmond's Spiders for the fifth consecutive year defeated Virginia Military institute's flying squadron 13-6 and Virginia Tech was battled to a scoreless tie by a stubborn William and Mary eleven which turned on a passing attack in the last quarter that almost upset the Techmen.

BAYLOR DEFEATS ARKANSAS, 13 TO 6

Recovered Fumble And 53-Yard Run Give Bears Close Victory

WACO, Texas, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A magnificent second period break and one of football's greatest thrills, a 53-yard run with only three minutes to play, gave Baylor university a 13-to-6 victory tonight over a stout fighting University of Arkansas team that was virtually eliminated from the Southwest conference championship by the defeat.

The break occurred in the second period when Baylor was trailing, 6 to 0. After a gallant goal line stand that repulsed Baylor's attack, Jack Holt, attempting to punt from behind Arkansas' goal line, fumbled the ball and John Williams pounced on it for a touchdown to tie the score at 6-all.

The run that brought an estimated crowd of five thousand up with cheers happened with only three minutes to play when Bob Masters, Baylor halfback, reached into the air and intercepted Jack Robbins' forward pass and raced untouched for 53 yards, a touchdown and a Baylor victory. Clarence Gernand kicked goal from placement.

The remaining minutes of the game did not matter for no team could have scored on the inspired Bears—and certainly not the bewildered Razorbacks who in the space of a few flying seconds saw a green streak go down the field to take away all their marvelous playing of the night.

TECH PREPARES FOR INVASION OF UNION BULLDOGS

Elated Over Two Victories, Ruston Fans Expect Hard Battle

RUSTON, La., Oct. 12.—(Special)—That "grand and glorious" feeling that a winning football team can give is pervading the campus of Louisiana Tech today, as the loyal supporters of the local college eleven eagerly await the coming of the Bulldogs of Union university next Friday night.

The Techmen's two decisive victories over S. I. A. A. opponents here on successive Friday nights have put a new brand of sports enthusiasm in the air, not only on the college grounds but in the town of Ruston as well. It seems to be just what the folks here have been looking for—a better football team at Louisiana Tech. Although the season is yet young, the fans already have seen enough to convince themselves that Tech can play football.

In their first game of the season on October 4, the local varsity gridders swamped Tennessee Tech by a score of 44-0. Then, this past Friday night, they helped dedicate their new stadium with a 25-0 victory over Southwestern Louisiana institute.

From start to finish, the struggle with S. L. I. kept the fans squirming on their seats. The scoreless tie of the first quarter was the result of terrific battling in which both teams fought on even terms. Tech scored two touchdowns in the second period and one in the third, with their final marker and an extra point coming in the fourth quarter. "General" Zoch, Southwestern's star fullback, slunk along almost unnoticed during the first half, but in the third and fourth periods he rallied desperately, thrilling the spectators especially with his hard hitting and long forward passes.

On a comparative basis of first downs, Tech won the first half of the tilt with Southwestern, with the statistics being seven to one. In the second half, however, Southwestern made eight first downs, while Tech made five.

Union university, Tech's third consecutive S. I. A. A. opponent, is expected to provide what Coach Eddie McLane calls the local's "hardest game of the season." The coming Tennesseeans use the Notre Dame style of football, the same type employed by the Techmen.

Experts Believe Braddock's Challenge Reveals He Sees Handwriting On Wall

By John J. Romano

"Joe Louis can be beat and I am the man who can do it!"

With these words, Champion James J. Braddock did something new for a titleholder in assuming the role of a challenger. The general rule followed by those who went before him is for the champion to take things easy and let the challengers eliminate each other and if the public will stand for it, as it usually does, accept the one less likely to win the title.

Braddock had a close-up view of Joe Louis as the latter left-handed Max Baer into defeat. Those who marveled at the mastery of the negro scrutinized every move closely and went away with a deep-seated conviction that the Detroit Bomber failed to disclose any weakness in his fighting armor. Just what Braddock observed, which others did not, is a secret Jimmy refuses to disclose until he squares off against the logical contender for the title.

Baer never professed to be a boxer. It was expected that in a battle of wits and left hands Louis would win. The right was something else again. Some thought that Baer's speed in delivering his overhand swing would beat the negro's countering left and give him the edge in that department of the hit-and-take game. But Louis crossed up pre-battle predictions by not only beating Baer to the punch, but by rendering him supine under the hard shots propelled by his iron fists.

Braddock's method of boxing is a stiff arm left, something on the style of a battering ram. There is nothing speedy about it and unless an opponent is coming in the effect of the blow is negligible. True, Jimmy has a good right. He has to bring it back and throw it a long distance. But in so doing he would be more open to the counter left hook Louis employs than even Baer was and that was plenty.

Digesting Jimmy's opinion of Louis, one is not so much impressed with the champion's confidence to beat Joe to the punch, but one is convinced that he won't act like Louis's past opponents, and that goes for Baer, too, who were scared stiff when they entered the ring. If Braddock has anything, it is calm reasoning, and his makeup is absolutely devoid of fear. As Artie King, an old-time boxer and fine judge of fighting men said, "One thing about Braddock you may depend on and that is he has a heart as big as his body. That Irishman absolutely fears no one. That's his best chance against Louis."

There is absolute truth in King's words. No one who knows Braddock questions his courage under fire. His record is studded with technical knockouts because he was unable to continue some of his fights. When a man will enter the ring knowing the small bones in his right hand had been set wrong, not being able to afford an operation, deliberately breaks the hand on the hard head of an opponent, you are convinced that he has plenty of nerve.

Needs More Than Courage

Braddock was calm in the face of ridicule when he was matched to fight Max Baer. The sympathy of his well wishers was wasted on the determined Irishman who went about his training with but one purpose in mind—to keep punching all the time he was in the ring and leave the outcome in the hands of the gods. What happened is past history, and it is listed as the most surprising upset in the history of heavyweight boxing championships.

Courage alone, however, is not going to win against Joe Louis. Fast thinking and the ability to carry out each move is sort of second nature with him. The way his hands move at the slightest move of a rival reminds you of a cat. Every paw of his gloves is done so swiftly that the eye seldom follows the course of the blow. Take the first punch he delivered in the fight with Baer. Max came out, bobbed his head a trifle and made as if to feint. Before the eye could follow, Louis drove in with a fast left hook which caught Baer squarely in the mouth and jarred what little confidence the Californian possessed in his ability to outrough the mild-mannered negro.

Louis Seen the Tops

It was the same every time Baer attempted a lead and before he realized fully what it was all about, he was down on one knee and foolishly waving to the spectators. If this was meant to delude Louis into thinking that the fight was only beginning, Baer was only fooling himself because the Detroiter stuck to the task in hand and registered the first and only knockout scored against the Livermore playboy in his eventful career.

Braddock has but one chance of escaping with his title intact next year. That is an absolute reversal of form on the part of the negro. For a man who has been fighting professionally for but 14 months, Joe Louis has made faster progress than any fighter within the memory of oldtimers, who were not convinced the Detroiter was as good as pictured until they saw him against Max Baer. The completeness of the job sent them away arguing among themselves whether or not the negro was greater than the immortal John L. Sullivan, Jim Corbett, and the rest.

That is the picture Joe Louis presents today, and it will take some mighty good fighting on the part of James J. Braddock to make them think otherwise.

L. S. U. AERIAL ATTACK CRUSHES MANHATTAN, 32-0

Passes Account For All But One Score As Jaspers Are Routed

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The Louisiana State Tigers strayed from the jungles of the bayou country today, filled the Brooklyn air with passes and smothered a helpless Manhattan college eleven, 32 to 0.

For the benefit of an audience of 20,000 fans, the Tigers, led by Abe Mickal, No. 1 man of the colorful 1934 eleven, and Big Bill Crass, the hard hitting fullback from the plains of Texas, uncorked one of the most brilliant overhead offensives the east has seen in years to run wild and score almost at will over the best Manhattan team in four years.

The southerners counted in every period except the first and passes—long, short, high and low—accounted for all but one of the scores. To add to the gloom in Flatbush tonight, two of the visiting tallies were rolled up by the visiting third team, which galloped into action at the start of the last quarter and carried on as effectively as the more seasoned performers on the first and second squads.

When their running attack failed to click in the first period, Coach Bernie Moore ordered his Bengals into the atmosphere and they lingered there the rest of the afternoon. They scored twice in the second, once in the third and twice in the fourth.

The statistics tell how smoothly the Tiger overhead offensive functioned. They completed eight out of eleven attempts for a total of 193 yards. Manhattan, on the other hand, tried only three passes, of which two were made good for a gain of 16 yards.

Louisiana State gained 207 yards on the ground to 110 for Manhattan. First downs were doubled, 12 to 6 for the visitors.

With the powerful Crass and his fellow backs having little or no luck against the Manhattan line, Mickal, back in action again after a long hospital seige, went into the game in the second and promptly fired two leaves that spelled touchdowns. His first shot was to Arthur Morton, Tallulah, La., sophomore, who scored after a 20-yard run and the second a 5-yarder—fell into the waiting arms of Jess Fatherree, who fell across the line for the touchdown. Mickal's kick was wide.

Crass took up the burden in the third, shot one 31 yards to Fatherree for another touchdown and then personally kicked the goal. The batting in this quarter was so savage, three of the Tigers had their jerseys ripped from their backs and had to don new shirts in midfield.

Then the little Bengals took charge. Headed by Jack Coffee and Charlie Ohm they skipped onto the field and promptly rolled up two more scores. Coffee passed 31 yards to Ohm who tallied merely by stepping over the line. A few minutes later, Ohm got loose around left end for the last score. Coffee failed to convert in each instance.

SPORTS CHATTER

SCRAMBLED

The Southeastern conference football race is getting more complicated as the season advances. Yesterday's games didn't help unscramble the dope any.

Alabama, Louisiana State, Tulane and Tennessee were figured as the four leading contenders when the call to arms sounded on Labor day, yet Alabama and Tulane already have been eliminated and Tennessee has been trounced by North Carolina, a Southern conference club. It looks like a good spot for Bernie Moore's Tigers, but four conference games in a row against tough opposition, plus that final battle with Tulane after a "breather," may furnish an upset for Tiger fans to chew on.

Auburn looked like a real contender after trouncing Tulane, yet the Plainsmen were beaten yesterday by Tennessee. And Mississippi State, which upset Alabama yesterday, was nosed out by Vanderbilt a week ago.

Kentucky looked good in holding Ohio State to a low score last week and then trimming Georgia Tech yesterday. Georgia has two impressive victories, but the Bulldogs haven't encountered any opposition in their own loop. And both face plenty of tough ones to come, including Georgia's games with L. S. U. and Tulane, and Kentucky's annual brush with the Green Wave.

Louisiana State's early season performances speak well for the Tigers' chances. However, they meet Vanderbilt, Auburn, Mississippi State and Georgia in that order, and then close against Tulane two weeks after the Georgia game. That's a large order for any football team to fill.

GUESSING BEGINS

The annual guess 'em game begins this week. Three prizes will be offered each week for the fans who guess the most winners out of 25 or more football games. The usual blank will appear Tuesday morning, and winners will be announced each Sunday. We're pleased to report many requests for the contest again this year.

J. J. Martin, the sports-minded manager of J. C. Penney company, is cooperating with the sports department in sponsoring the contest this year. Penney's will donate the three prizes each week for the entire season. The contest will be called the World-Penney Football club. Sit in on the first meeting Tuesday.

FAT ON THE FIRE

The World Series is over and Series talk has just about run its course, but there will be plenty of conversation for stove league sessions this winter. At least a dozen of the 16 major league clubs are expected to figure in some wholesale swapping before the contracts are sent out for 1936.

The most discussed deal, of course, is that which appears certain to be consummated between the Red Sox and the Athletics. Jimmy Foxx is the big fish that Mr. Yawkey is angling for, although one or two other stars of the A's may accompany the slugger, when and if he departs for Fenway park. The latest report is that Foxx has been sold to the Red Sox for $50,000, the deal to be announced in December, but we haven't heard anything about Mr. Mack losing his mind lately. $150,000 would be more like it. On the other hand, the White Sox made plenty of dough in 1935 and Manager Dykes would like to see his old teammate in a Pale Hose uniform. With Comiskey and Yawkey bidding against each other, Mr. Mack seems to be in a nice spot as far as Foxx is concerned.

The Tigers and Cubs aren't expected to do anything drastic about shaking up their championship clubs, but each is expected to bolster some of the weaker spots. Before the series, it appeared a certainty that Chuck Klein would leave the Cubs, with the probability that he would hang his hat in the Cardinals' clubhouse, but his fine showing in the Detroit battles may change Charley Grimm's plans. Al Simmons, another former "big name," seems likely to be missing when the White Sox are herded together next spring, and it wouldn't be surprising to see him performing his chores for Mickey Cochrane, his old pal of former days.

The Giants will go into the house-cleaning business in a big way, and an important deal already may have been closed with the Phils. Terry is anxious that Dolph Camili succeed him at first base, and is reported willing to give up Roy Parmelee, Phil Weintraub and a bale of frog skins in return for the young first sacker. Terry also is in a receptive mood for a deal with the Cardinals, from whom he would like to get Burgess Whitehead, Pepper Martin and Ripper Collins, if the Camili trade falls flat.

The Yankees are competing with the Red Sox for the services of Roger Cramer and Wally Moses, both of whom are now drawing pay from Connie Mack, but if the venerable pilot of the A's sells Foxx, Cramer, and Moses, together with Marcum and Higgins, who also have been mentioned in trade talk, he might as well close up shop at Shibe park.

Practically every other club in the big time has been mentioned as seeking reinforcements. Just as soon as the football teams drop off the sports pages, you can look for plenty of news from the fellows who do the trading in baseball headquarters.

KRUEGER TAKES LOUISVILLE LEAD

Wisconsin Pro Noses Out Paul Runyan In Open Meet With 136

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Alvin "Butch" Krueger, Beloit, Wis., semi-pro baseball player, blasted three strokes from par on the second nine today to score 33, turning in an 18-hole total of 69 for the day to nose out Paul Runyan, national P. G. A. champion, for the lead in the $5,000 Louisville open golf tournament.

Krueger's 36-hole score was 136, five under par. Runyan came in with a 70. This figure, plus his 67 of Thursday, gave him a 36-hole total of 137.

Next in line came Ed Dudley, Philadelphia; Frank Walsh, Chicago, and Jimmy Hines, Garden, City., N. Y., with 141. Horton Smith, defending champion, and Johnny Farrell, Springfield, N. J., were deadlocked at 143.

Those carding 150 or better qualified to play the final 36 holes tomorrow. Five of the British Ryder cup team members made the grade. They are Ernest Whitcombe, William Cox, Richard Burton, C. Whitcombe and Reginald White.

Johnny Camet, of Baton Rouge, La., cut a stroke from his 76 of yesterday for a total of 76-75—151 but missed the qualifying line by a single stroke.

STANFORD, 'BAMA BEATEN; BIG TEN TEAMS TRIUMPH

Louisiana State Helps Make Things Miserable For Eastern Teams

By Herbert W. Barker
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Rose Bowl finalists of last New Year's day went down to unexpected defeat yesterday in another smashing country-wide display of intercollegiate football at its best, with the Big Ten conference as a group and the Elis of Yale individually earning most of the laurels.

A few hours after Major Ralph I. Sasse's Mississippit Sate hopefuls had given Alabama, Rose Bowl champion, a 20 to 7 lacing, Stanford, victims of Alabama at Pasadena, took a beating from the University of California at Los Angeles, 7-6. Mississippi State, aiming at real football power under Maj. Sasse's leadership, caught Alabama with a furious first-half offensive and then hung on to win. Stanford had expected trouble from Bill Spaulding's Uclans and got more than they bargained for. The winners piled up Stanford's offense every time the desperate Cardinals got within scoring range, once they had grabbed that one-point lead.

Meanwhile, rumors that the Big Ten, as a whole, was much weaker than usual, proved entirely unfounded as Purdue and Iowa accounted for the scalps of two previously unbeaten eastern powers; Illinois halted Southern California, and Minnesota abruptly checked Nebraska's bid for the national championship.

Purdue invaded New York and trounced Jimmy Crowley's Fordham Rams, 20-0, while Iowa's Hawkeyes, a powerful outfit, turned back Colgate's Red Raiders, 12-6. Illinois took advantage of all the breaks and walloped Southern California 19-0, while Minnesota toppled Nebraska, 17-7, after a ding-dong struggle in which the Cornhuskers tossed away several opportunities to push over the winning score.

With Ohio State's Buckeyes running up an 85-7 count on Drake, Wisconsin's Badgers were the only Big Ten losers in outside competition, taking a bad 27-0 beating from Notre Dame. Michigan surprised by taking Indiana over the hurdles, 7-0, in the only conference game of the day.

The most spectacular game of the day, however, was fought at Philadelphia before 62,000 spectators, Yale's flashing offensive carrying the Elis to a 31-20 triumph over Pennsylvania after the Quakers had scored two touchdowns early in the first quarter.

While Army and Dartmouth were hanging up one-sided triumphs in the east, Manhattan took a bad 32-0 beating from strong Louisiana State university to make it a ruinous day for eastern football all around.

A few of the leaders—Holy Cross, Columbia, Pitt, Princeton and Syracuse—came through but some of them had their troubles, Princeton had to play up to its best form to turn back a good Williams outfit, 14-7, and Holy Cross was hard-pressed to whip Harvard, 13-0. Columbia was too good for Rutgers, 20-6, and Pitt rolled over West Virginia, 24-6. One of the best efforts of the day was New York university's surprisingly one-sided vic-

DUKE AND TARHEELS LEAD IN SOUTHERN

(By Associated Press)

The booming guns of Duke and North Carolina rumbled over the Southern conference battleground yesterday with the two Old North State elevens, each eyeing the Rose Bowl, vaulting into the joint leadership in the championship race with smashing victories over previously undefeated contenders.

North Carolina knocked off Maryland at Baltimore, 33 to 0, while Duke didn't even need the services of the great Ace Parker in humbling Clemson's game but outclassed Tigers, 38 to 12.

Striking three times in the opening quarter, North Carolina let Maryland know in a hurry yesterday the fate in store for the Old Liners and the Duke Blue Devils, also starting fast, took a two touchdown lead in the opening frame.

South Carolina's little eleven suffered a 13 to 6 defeat at the hands of Davidson while the two conference members who went forth to battle in the Old Dominion had nothing to crow about. Richmond's Spiders for the fifth consecutive year defeated Virginia Military institute's flying squadron 13-6 and Virginia Tech was battled to a scoreless tie by a stubborn William and Mary eleven which turned on a passing attack in the last quarter that almost upset the Techmen.

Recovered Fumble And 53-Yard Run Give Bears Close Victory

WACO, Texas, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A magnificent second period break and one of football's greatest thrills, a 53-yard run with only three minutes to play, gave Baylor university a 13-to-6 victory tonight over a stout fighting University of Arkansas team that was virtually eliminated from the Southwest conference championship by the defeat.

The break occurred in the second period when Baylor was trailing, 6 to 0. After a gallant goal line stand that repulsed Baylor's attack, Jack Holt, attempting to punt from behind Arkansas' goal line, fumbled the ball and John Williams pounced on it for a touchdown to tie the score at 6-all.

The run that brought an estimated crowd of five thousand up with cheers happened with only three minutes to play when Bob Masters, Baylor halfback, reached into the air and intercepted Jack Robbins' forward pass and raced untouched for 53 yards, a touchdown and a Baylor victory. Clarence Gernand kicked goal from placement.

The remaining minutes of the game did not matter for no team could have scored on the inspired Bears—and certainly not the bewildered Razorbacks who in the space of a few flying seconds saw a green streak go down the field to take away all their marvelous playing of the night.

TECH PREPARES FOR INVASION OF UNION BULLDOGS

Elated Over Two Victories Ruston Fans Expect Hard Battle

RUSTON, La., Oct. 12.—(Special)—That "grand and glorious" feeling that a winning football team can give is pervading the campus of Louisiana Tech today, as the loyal supporters of the local college eleven eagerly await the coming of the Bulldogs of Union university next Friday night.

The Techmen's two decisive victories over S. I. A. A. opponents here on successive Friday nights have put a new brand of sports enthusiasm in the air, not only on the college grounds but in the town of Ruston as well. It seems to be just what the folks here have been looking for—a better football team at Louisiana Tech. Although the season is yet young, the fans already have seen enough to convince themselves that Tech can play football.

In their first game of the season on October 4, the local varsity gridders swamped Tennessee Tech by a score of 44-0. Then, this past Friday night, they helped dedicate their new stadium with a 25-0 victory over Southwestern Louisiana institute.

From start to finish, the struggle with S. L. I. kept the fans squirming on their seats. The scoreless tie of the first quarter was the result of terrific battling in which both teams fought on even terms. Tech scored two touchdowns in the second period and one in the third, with their final marker and an extra point coming in the fourth quarter. "General" Zoch, Southwestern's star fullback, slunk along almost unnoticed during the first half, but in the third and fourth periods he rallied desperately, thrilling the spectators especially with his hard hitting and long forward passes.

On a comparative basis of first downs, Tech won the first half of the tilt with Southwestern, with the statistics being seven to one. In the second half, however, Southwestern made eight first downs, while Tech made five.

Union university, Tech's third consecutive S. I. A. A. opponent, is expected to provide what Coach Eddie McLane calls the local's "hardest game of the season." The coming Tennesseeans use the Notre Dame style of football, the same type employed by the Techmen.

Experts Believe Braddock's Challenge Reveals He Sees Handwriting On Wall

By John J. Romano

"Joe Louis can be beat and I am the man who can do it!"

With these words, Champion James J. Braddock did something new for a titleholder in assuming the role of a challenger. The general rule followed by those who went before him is for the champion to take things easy and let the challengers eliminate each other and if the public will stand for it, as it usually does, accept the one less likely to win the title.

Braddock had a close-up view of Joe Louis as the latter left-handed Max Baer into defeat. Those who marveled at the mastery of the negro scrutinized every move closely and went away with a deep-seated conviction that the Detroit Bomber failed to disclose any weakness in his fighting armor. Just what Braddock observed, which others did not, is a secret Jimmy refuses to disclose until he squares off against the logical contender for the title.

Baer never professed to be a boxer. It was expected that in a battle of wits and left hands Louis would win. The right was something else again. Some thought that Baer's speed in delivering his overhand swing would beat the negro's countering left and give him the edge in that department of the hit-and-take game. But Louis crossed up pre-battle predictions by not only beating Baer to the punch, but by rendering him supine under the hard shots propelled by his iron fists.

Braddock's method of boxing is a stiff arm left, something on the style of a battering ram. There is nothing speedy about it and unless an opponent is coming in the effect of the blow is negligible. True, Jimmy has a good right. He has to bring it back and throw it a long distance. But in so doing he would be more open to the counter left hook Louis employs than even Baer was and that was plenty.

Digesting Jimmy's opinion of Louis, one is not so much impressed with the champion's confidence to beat Joe to the punch, but one is convinced that he won't act like Louis's past opponents, and that goes for Baer, too, who were scared stiff when they entered the ring. If Braddock has anything, it is calm reasoning, and his makeup is absolutely devoid of fear. As Artie King, an old-time boxer and fine judge of fighting men said, "One thing about Braddock you may depend on and that is he has a heart as big as his body. That Irishman absolutely fears no one. That's his best chance against Louis."

There is absolute truth in King's words. No one who knows Braddock questions his courage under fire. His record is studded with technical knockouts because he was unable to continue some of his fights. When a man will enter the ring knowing the small bones in his right hand had been set wrong, not being able to afford an operation, deliberately breaks the hand on the hard head of an opponent, you are convinced that he has plenty of nerve.

Needs More Than Courage

Braddock was calm in the face of ridicule when he was matched to fight Max Baer. The sympathy of his well wishers was wasted on the determined Irishman who went about his training with but one purpose in mind—to keep punching all the time he was in the ring and leave the outcome in the hands of the gods. What happened is past history, and it is listed as the most surprising upset in the history of heavyweight boxing championships.

Courage alone, however, is not going to win against Joe Louis. Fast thinking and the ability to carry out each move is sort of second nature with him. The way his hands move at the slightest move of a rival reminds you of a cat. Every paw of his gloves is done so swiftly that the eye seldom follows the course of the blow. Take the first punch he delivered in the fight with Baer. Max came out, bobbed his head a trifle and made as if to feint. Before the eye could follow, Louis drove in with a fast left hook which caught Baer squarely in the mouth and jarred what little confidence the Californian possessed in his ability to outrough the mild-mannered negro.

It was the same every time Baer attempted a lead and before he realized fully what it was all about, he was down on one knee and foolishly waving to the spectators. If this was meant to delude Louis into thinking that the fight was only beginning, Baer was only fooling himself because the Detroiter stuck to the task in hand and registered the first and only knockout scored against the Livermore playboy in his eventful career.

Braddock has but one chance of escaping with his title intact next year. That is an absolute reversal of form on the part of the negro. For a man who has been fighting professionally for but 14 months, Joe Louis has made faster progress than any fighter within the memory of old-timers, who were not convinced the Detroiter was as good as pictured until they saw him against Max Baer. The completeness of the job sent them away arguing among themselves whether or not the negro was greater than the immortal John L. Sullivan, Jim Corbett, and the rest.

That is the picture Joe Louis presents today, and it will take some mighty good fighting on the part of James J. Braddock to make them think otherwise.

MISSISSIPPI STATE TROUNCES ALABAMA, 20 TO 7

MAROONS SCORE EARLY TO ROUT FAVORED TIDE

Sasse's Warriors Play Spectacular Football To Trim Crimsons

By T. M. Davenport
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

DENNY STADIUM, TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Quick accurate aerial thrusts, coming as a surprise attack, brought realization today to a 20-year-dream of a scrappy Mississippi State football team.

The Maroon-clad warriors of Major Ralph Sasse, genial pilot of Mississippi State, rolled relentlessly over the Crimson Tide, 20 to 7, this afternoon, leaving stunned a horde of Alabama spectators who clamored for victory.

It was the first defeat for Alabama since October in 1933 at New York when the Fordham Rams rang up a 2 to 0 triumph. It was the first time the Crimson colors had been lowered at home, upon the sod of Denny stadium where the Crimson Tide had rung up an enviable record.

The sheer daring of the first State thrust stunned the stands. Only one exchange of punts and the Maroon march began. Armstrong and Pickle shared in carrying the ball into Crimson territory and the former tossed the pass to Galatka for 12 yards, catching the Crimson secondary flat-footed.

Then the Maroons, on a triple pass, Thames to Armstrong to Pickle, scored as the latter took the ball on Alabama's nine on the run and crossed the goal line standing up. Armstrong converted.

State gambled for victory, gambled with sheer daring, and four plays after the kickoff scored another touchdown. Stapp fumbled on his own 35, and State recovered. Two plays later, a backward pass, Steadman to Armstrong, was completed and Thames raced across the field to take it and sped across the goal line. Armstrong's placement for conversion was low.

Then Alabama rallied, but a penalty may have been the turning point. Young Boozer, the Dothan dervish, had replaced Angelich for the Crimsons. Riley, sub for Stapp, faded back and flipped a 10 yard pass to Boozer, his fellow townsman.

Boozer shook off two tacklers and sold out 40 yards to the goal line. A clipping penalty nullified the attempt.

The Crimsons drove back, but Harbison, sub for Thames, nipped the drive by intercepting a pass. Then Pickle punted 64 yards dead to the Alabama one yard line. Riley Smith punted out and Hight, sub for Armstrong, signalled for a fair catch on Alabama's 34.

Two passes put the ball on the Crimson six, and Pickle went over for a touchdown after two line smashes put the ball on the Crimson two yard stripe. Pickle converted.

Later as Pickle dropped back to kick from his eight, big Jim Whatley, Alabama tackle, playing one of his best games, broke through to block the kick. Hillman Walker, sub for Bryant, picked up the ball and ran across the goal line.

The scoring was over as State nursed its lead. Alabama tried desperately to overcome the advantage.

Near the end of the game, Ward, sub for Pickle, reached into the air deep in Alabama territory to snare a pass from Riley and raced 25 yards across the goal line, but an over-anxious linesman was offside and the play was called back, State taking a five yard penalty.

Riley punted out of danger, and a moment later delirious State supporters surged on the field as the game ended to carry their heroes off the field on their shoulders—a dream of 22 years had come true.

State registered nine first downs to Alabama seven and made a total yardage gain of 321 to 198, including punt and kickoff returns.

State's running plays from scrimmage totaled 213, to 118 for Alabama with 98 yards from passes and only 80 for Alabama.

WILD DEMONSTRATION

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Oct. 12.—(AP)—What few Mississippi State students were left on the campus today joined with Starkville citizens in a wild demonstration of joy over the Maroons' 20-7 victory over University of Alabama.

The humiliation of crushing defeat at the hands of the redoubtable Tide in recent years gave way to frenzied celebration over the first victory State has scored over the Capstone crew since 1911. Practically all students and about 1,000 other local supporters, playing a hunch, were in the stands, and all others were tensely grouped around radios as the minutes clicked away to the final whistle.

Business was practically paralyzed in Starkville where nothing seemed to matter except the coveted victory which the Maroons won in a reverberating upset.

Not since the signing of the Armistice have the college and townspeople been worked into such a frenzy of joy.

GREENIES FLASH STRONG RUNNING ATTACK TO WIN

Wave Scores Twice In Second Period After 'Gators Tally In First

By Ralph Wheatley
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

TULANE STADIUM, NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Tulane's running attack was too strong for the Florida 'Gators and they went down 19 to 7 here today before a crowd of 10,000.

The 'Gators opened a flashy aerial attack and scored in the first quarter. In the air Florida bettered Tulane, gaining 150 yards to Tulane's 73, but they were unable to complete passes on pay dirt.

But Florida's running attack was smothered by Tulane, the Green Wave gaining 157 yards to the 'Gators' 65. Tulane smashed the line and drove fast end runs home while the Florida backs were slow in ground offense and frequently were thrown for losses.

Tulane aided the visitors with fumbles, making eight against Florida's two. Florida's lone touchdown was set up from a fumble by Douglas Johnson on Tulane's 20-yard line. Chase threw a high forward pass to Floyd Christian, end, who caught it behind the goal line for a touchdown. Al Hickland kicked the extra point.

The 'Gators held the Wave in hand to the end of the first quarter and they were romping as victors. But in the second period Tulane opened a terrific running attack, mixed with a baffling passing offense.

Louis Thames, substituting for Johnson, threw a pass from the 32-yard line to Billy Henderson, substituting for Mintz, for Tulane's first touchdown. Dick Page, the quarterback, converted the extra point, tying the score.

With fight in their hearts, Tulane swept on for another touchdown. Mintz, who returned to the game, threw a pass to Pete Dalovisio, substitute end, who carried it to Florida's nine yard line. Mintz smashed the line for four yards and then swept left end for a touchdown. Mintz missed the kick for the extra point.

The third quarter was scoreless but in the fourth quarter John Andrews, Wave fullback, began a series of brilliant line smashes that carried the ball to Florida's 13-yard line where Mintz again circled left end for a touchdown, but for a second time failed to convert the extra point.

GOING IT TOOTH AND NAIL

YALE RALLIES TO DEFEAT PENN IN WILD TILT, 31-20

Bulldogs Stage Late Drive That Thrills Crowd Of 62,000

By Edward J. Neill
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A bruised, man-handled Yale team suddenly found wings on its feet and bullseyes at the end of its pitching arm today to thrill a huge crowd of 62,000 in sun-drenched Franklin field with a fantastic 31 to 20 victory over Pennsylvania—most spectacular Eli offensive display since the great little Albie Booth was taking Yale's football enemies apart single-handed.

Whipped 20 to 12 at the end of the first half of the first game Yale has played here in 46 years, the courageous youngsters from New Haven shredded the huge Quakers, outweighing them 14 pounds to a man, in the second half, scoring three touchdowns, stirring rival students to such a pitch that for half an hour after it was over, fist fights raged up and down the field for possession of the goal posts.

Two brilliant individual plays, perfectly executed, kept the Elis in the ball game through a terrible first half when the burly Penn backs were tearing the Yale tacklers apart. Three passes, each more spectacular than the one that preceded it, swamped the Quakers in the second half, when the Elis, solving the heavy Penn attacks, went to town in their first major victory of the season, and Penn's second straight defeat.

Al Hessberg, a 19-year-old 164-pounder from Albany, N. Y., ran 57 yards for one touchdown in the second quarter, after Clint Frank, from Evanston, Ill., sprinted 49 yards for the first Yale score, then came back in the third quarter to dash 62 yards for the touchdown that put Yale back in the ball game.

Still trailing 18 to 20 after these magnificent bursts because of inability to kick points after touchdowns, Yale called on ever reliable Larry Kelley, the big end, and to close out the spectacular show the Irishman from Williamsport, Pa., caught two touchdown passes that looked like mirages to the thrill saturated throng.

Neville Expects Hard Battle With Winnfield

Southwestern Turns On The Power In Second Half To Win, 20-0

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Changing sweaters and mental attitudes at the half, the Lynx of Southwestern came roaring back in the last half to crush the Millsaps Majors of Jackson, Miss., 20 to 0 today before 1,500 shirt-sleeved fans, and wipe out the scoreless tie of last year.

Unable to make any headway in the first two periods, the Lynx took the ball in the third quarter and punched over a touchdown in one sustained 70-yard drive, Nickells carrying the ball on the scoring play. Prewitt and Owen added the last two in the final period. Millsaps made but one scoring threat.

The Lynx fumbled away their scoring chances in the first half with both teams playing ragged ball.

Coach Shorty Propst had his Lynx change jerseys at the half, and apparently clothed them with new determination, for Nickells, Prewitt and Owen alternated in tearing through Millsaps' line for the first touchdown.

The Majors clicked with their passing attack consistently but bogged down when in scoring distance. Taking the ball in the fourth period, the Lynx rallied deep into Millsaps' territory, and Prewitt circled end for the score. Owen followed with another a few minues later with a plunge through the line.

Prewitt added one point from placement and plunged over for the other extra point.

Brown To Send Squad Through Stiff Practice Drills This Week

Up from Winnfield next Friday night will come a vengeful band of Winnfield high school Tigers bent on stopping the stride of the Neville Tigers, who won their third class A victory last Friday afternoon from the Ruston Bearcats. The game is scheduled to be played at Brown field, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Coach Percy Brown, of Neville, is more than a little bit worried over the impending battle. From all appearances, the Winnfield game is slated to be the toughest the Bengals have had this season, even harder than their Minden skirmish and maybe as disastrous as their Arkansas invasion earlier in the season when they were beaten by Camden.

If comparative scores mean anything at all, then the showing of the Winnfield and Neville teams against Ruston's Bearcats should give a good idea of what can be expected Friday. Winnfield beat Ruston 13 to 6, and Neville came through by the skin of their teeth to get a 12 to 7 victory over the 'Cats.

Viewing the battles with Ruston as test games, the coaches of the Neville and Winnfield camps should start plenty of activity in their workouts this week in preparation for the contest. The hardest workouts either eleven has had this season is in prospect for the next three days.

Last year the local Tigers handed the Winnfield aggregation a 12 to 0 defeat on their own field, and the invaders are pointing toward evening that score. Another thing that is worrying the locals is the fact that the Winn parish outfit has practically the same team back this year that they had last season, while Neville lost practically its entire line and has had to rebuild that unit almost to a man.

Neville has gained very little yardage through line plays this year, almost all its big gains coming on long end runs by Richard Basco and Pete Haddad, or the occasioanl connecting of a pass, Hadded to Joe Gimler. End run after end run by the fleet Neville backs has whipped down the stronger lines that opposed them, but they will be faced with a dose of their own medicine Friday, according to reports.

Winnfield also goes in for long end runs and boast a speedy halfback, Tucker, who has never failed the Winn eleven yet in adding yardage on long looping treks around either end. Tucker, it seems, is the main cog in the Winnfield backfield and is adept at fake reverse plays that have continually baffled opposing elevens.

Ben Cameron, former Centenary star, took over the coaching duties of the Winnfield squad this year and already has his Tigers looking their best in years.

The Neville team came out of the Ruston battle in good shape, although Haddad's knee is still bothering him some, Coach Brown said. However, the fast-stepping quarterback is expected to see plenty of action against Winnfield. Crews is back at his guard post, too, and the local Tigers should at least be able to present their full strength against the invaders.

COLORED HIGH TEAM WALLOPS ALEXANDRIA

Running behind a highly geared forward wall, the Monroe Colored high school Bulldogs' all-state backfield buried the highly touted Peabody Tigers, of Alexandria, beneath an avalanche of 55 points Friday night. The game was played at Forsythe park under the lights.

The game was the second for the Bulldogs for this season. Last Friday they played a scoreless tie against Second Ward high at Lake Charles.

Joe Gulley, L. C. Thomas, William McAdoo, Avery Lewis and Henry Johnson, veteran linemen, completely outplayed their heavier opponents and bottled up the Peabody running attack. Schwartz, Purnell, Washington, Van Buren and Edwards were constant backfield threats.

The Bulldogs will play the Arkansas State college freshman team here next Friday night, it was announced by Coaches Henry Carroll and Hayward Jackson.

'BAMA'S DEFEAT FEATURES PLAY IN CONFERENCE

(By Associated Press)

Rising from the ashes of an early season defeat by Vanderbilt, Mississippi State overwhelmed Alabama, last year's Rose Bowl champions, 20 to 7, Saturday as Tennessee downed Auburn 13 to 6.

Alabama's loss dashed championship hopes of supporters of the team that swept to national honors last year while Tennessee's victory over the strong Auburn outfit placed it in a position of a leading contender for Southeastern conference honors in spite of a trouncing by North Carolina of the Southern conference.

Kentucky, rated as one of the Southeast's powers this year, showed to good advantage in its first conference test by whipping Georgia Tech, 25 to 6. Kentucky has lost only to Ohio State of the Big Ten conference.

The chances of the University of Georgia also were rated higher and the Bulldogs took on the look of a possible dark horse Saturday after defeating Furman, 31 to 7, in a homecoming tilt at Athens. Although Georgia has yet to meet a conference foe, supporters regard its early performances as impressive.

Louisiana State retained its previous rating among the best of the southern teams with a 32 to 0 march over Manhattan. L. S. U. is still to get a test in the conference.

Tulane, smarting from the drubbing Auburn gave it, took its revenge on Florida by defeating the 'Gators 19 to 7. Saturday's game was Florida's first in the S. E. C.

Friday night Vanderbilt got a 6 to 3 setback in an intersectional clash with Temple but remains in the conference race with a victory over Mississippi State, Mississippi easily routed Sewanee, 33 to 0, Friday night and also is unbeaten in the conference.

KENTUCKY TROUNCES GEORGIA TECH, 25-6

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Kentucky's Wildcats wrecked Georgia Tech's Rambling Yellow Jackets on Stoll field here this afternoon by the score of 25 to 6, and served notice on Southeastern conference football championship aspirants that the Blue Grass squad must be reckoned with.

The Wildcats played without the services of their stellar halfback and all-American candidate, Bert Johnson, who is laid up with a leg ailment. In Johnson's absence Halfback Bob Davis scored three of Kentucky's four touchdowns and wore the visitors out by his broken-field running.

Pelicans Come From Behind To Trounce Lumberjack Eleven

CLARKS, La., Oct. 12.—(Special)—After being scored on in the first four minutes of play, the L. T. I. Pelicans unleashed a powerful attack in the last half to trim the Clarks Lumberjacks, 25 to 6, here Saturday.

After an exchange of punts, Clarks carried the ball from their own 42 to the Pelicans' goal line, Corbin taking it over on a wide end sweep. The try for extra point was blocked.

Midway in the second quarter, L. T. I. took a punt on the 50, and two passes and five running plays advanced it to Clarks' 5. On the next play Dedman took it over and then Spann hit the middle of the line for the extra point. The Pels led 7-6 at the half.

After each team had fumbled at the start of the second half, L. T. I. took the ball on their own 45, advanced to the Lumberjacks' 21, and then Spann hit the center of the line for the remaining yardage. The third touchdown was scored by Brouilette, who ran 15 yards for the score. The Pelicans' second team was sent in at the fourth quarter and scored L. T. I.'s final touchdown.

Major League Ball Clubs Had Nice Profits For '35

At Least Eleven Of Sixteen Teams Made Money Last Season

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A marked decline in red ink consumption in the business offices of major league baseball clubs was one feature of the 1935 season which left the owners' faces wreathed in smiles which they refused officially to divulge their profit and loss figures.

While the magnates were cautious about mentioning definite amounts, an Associated Press survey disclosed today that at least 11 of the 16 major league clubs finished "in the black" or with nelgigible losses.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who began with the prestige of the 1934 world championship and neared the finish with a keen pennant fight with the Giants and Cubs, already have declared an estimated $100,000 dividend.

The Cards, the Detroit Tigers, newly crowned world champions, and the New York Giants apparently were the big money makers. The battered Boston Braves and the two Philadelphia clubs suffered the only serious losses.

The Cincinnati experiment with night baseball was profitable. The Reds paid for their $50,000 floodflighting equipment thrice over and finished about $50,000 or $75,000 to the good for the year. In 1934 the club lost $229,161.

The best estimates from St. Louis were that the Cards made a profit of about $300,000 for the year, but had to put around $50,000 back into their "chain store" system. The Browns not only picked up as drawing cards but probably made some money in the ivory market. The best estimates indicate a profit of $50,000 or more.

The Giants admitted their season was "very successful" financially and they drew well all through the year. Frank J. Navin, Tigers' owner, also reported a good year. The Tigers drew more than 1,000,000 customers at home but didn't do so well on the road.

Boston's Red Sox didn't draw quite as well as in 1934, but took in about $250,000 above the costs of operation.

The Chicago White Sox showed about 50 per cent improvement in drawing power.

The Braves, about $20,000 ahead July 1, wound up some $50,000 in the red after desperate late season appeals to the stockholders for enough cash to finish out the schedule. No comments could be obtained from either the Phillies or Athletics, but it seemed quite certain that neither made money with hopeless second division clubs.

The Indians, also keeping their silence, apparently should be listed among the losers. Clark Griffith of the Senators, admitted that Washington "finished on the wrong side of the ledger, but not enough to hurt us much."

The Yankees made some money but not as much as their early season success led them to hope for. The Dodgers showed their usual unimpressive but clear profit.

ILLINOIS WHIPS TROJANS, 19-0

Zuppke's Team Plays Perfect Football To Defeat Southern Cal.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Illinois unleashed an amazing display of football pyrotechnics to defeat Southern California here today, 19 to 0, in the west's first big intersectional encounter of the season.

Fifty thousand persons watched the fighting Illini play almost letter-perfect football as they passed their more ponderous opponents dizzy.

In the second period a blocked punt paved the way for Coach Bob Zuppke's eleven to score its initial touchdown. The second came directly from a blocked punt and the final counter, in the third period, was indirectly the result of the flying trapeze play.

Sasse's Warriors Play Spectacular Football To Trim Crimsons

By T. M. Davenport
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

DENNY STADIUM, TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Quick accurate aerial thrusts, coming as a surprise attack, brought realization today to a 20-year-dream of a scrappy Mississippi State football team.

The Maroon-clad warriors of Major Ralph Sasse, genial pilot of Mississippi State, rolled relentlessly over the Crimson Tide, 20 to 7, this afternoon, leaving stunned a horde of Alabama spectators who clamored for victory.

It was the first defeat for Alabama since October in 1933 at New York when the Fordham Rams rang up a 2 to 0 triumph. It was the first time the Crimson colors had been lowered at home, upon the sod of Denny stadium where the Crimson Tide had rung up an enviable record.

The sheer daring of the first State thrust stunned the stands. Only one exchange of punts and the Maroon march began. Armstrong and Pickle shared in carrying the ball into Crimson territory and the former tossed the pass to Galatka for 12 yards, catching the Crimson secondary flat-footed.

Then the Maroons, on a triple pass, Thames to Armstrong to Pickle, scored as the latter took the ball on Alabama's nine on the run and crossed the goal line standing up. Armstrong converted.

State gambled for victory, gambled with sheer daring, and four plays after the kickoff scored another touchdown. Stapp fumbled on his own 35, and State recovered. Two plays later, a backward pass, Steadman to Armstrong, was completed and Thames raced across the field to take it and sped across the goal line. Armstrong's placement for conversion was low.

Then Alabama rallied, but a penalty may have been the turning point. Young Boozer, the Dothan dervish, had replaced Angelich for the Crimsons. Riley, sub for Stapp, faded back and flipped a 10 yard pass to Boozer, his fellow townsman.

Boozer shook off two tacklers and sold out 40 yards to the goal line. A clipping penalty nullified the attempt.

The Crimsons drove back, but Harbison, sub for Thames, nipped the drive by intercepting a pass. Then Pickle punted 64 yards dead to the Alabama one yard line. Riley Smith punted out and Hight, sub for Armstrong, signalled for a fair catch on Alabama's 34.

Two passes put the ball on the Crimson six, and Pickle went over for a touchdown after two line smashes put the ball on the Crimson two yard stripe. Pickle converted.

Later as Pickle dropped back to kick from his eight, big Jim Whatley, Alabama tackle, playing one of his best games, broke through to block the kick. Hillman Walker, sub for Bryant, picked up the ball and ran across the goal line.

The scoring was over as State nursed its lead. Alabama tried desperately to overcome the advantage.

Near the end of the game, Ward, sub for Pickle, reached into the air deep in Alabama territory to snare a pass from Riley and raced 25 yards across the goal line, but an over-anxious linesman was offside and the play was called back, State taking a five yard penalty.

Riley punted out of danger, and a moment later delirious State supporters surged on the field as the game ended to carry their heroes off the field on their shoulders—a dream of 20 years had come true.

State registered nine first downs to Alabama seven and made a total yardage gain of 321 to 198, including punt and kickoff returns.

WILD DEMONSTRATION

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Oct. 12.—(AP)—What few Mississippi State students were left on the campus today joined with Starkville citizens in a wild demonstration of joy over the Maroons' 20-7 victory over University of Alabama.

The humiliation of crushing defeat at the hands of the redoubtable Tide in recent years gave way to frenzied celebration over the first victory State has scored over the Capstone crew since 1911. Practically all students and about 1,000 other local supporters, playing a hunch, were in the stands, and all others were tensely grouped around radios as the minutes clicked away to the final whistle.

Business was practically paralyzed in Starkville where nothing seemed to matter except the coveted victory which the Maroons won in a reverberating upset.

Not since the signing of the Armistice have the college and townspeople been worked into such a frenzy of jo-

GOING IT TOOTH AND NAIL

GREENIES FLASH STRONG RUNNING ATTACK TO WIN

By Ralph Wheatley
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

TULANE STADIUM, NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Tulane's running attack was too strong for the Florida 'Gators and they went down 19 to 7 here today before a crowd of 10,000.

The 'Gators opened a flashy aerial attack and scored in the first quarter. In the air Florida bettered Tulane, gaining 150 yards to Tulane's 73, but they were unable to complete passes on pay dirt.

But Florida's running attack was smothered by Tulane, the Green Wave gaining 157 yards to the 'Gators' 65. Tulane smashed the line and drove fast end runs home while the Florida backs were slow in ground offense and frequently were thrown for losses.

Tulane aided the visitors with fumbles, making eight against Florida's two. Florida's lone touchdown was set up from a fumble by Douglas Johnson on Tulane's 20-yard line. Chase threw a high forward pass to Floyd Christian, end, who caught it behind the goal line for a touchdown. Al Hickland kicked the extra point.

The 'Gators held the Wave in hand to the end of the first quarter and they were romping as victors. But in the second period Tulane opened a terrific running attack, mixed with a baffling passing offense.

Louis Thames, substituting for Johnson, threw a pass from the 32-yard line to Billy Henderson, substituting for Mintz, for Tulane's first touchdown. Dick Page, the quarterback, converted the extra point, tying the score.

With fight in their hearts, Tulane swept on for another touchdown. Mintz, who returned to the game, threw a pass to Pete Dalovisio, substitute end, who carried it to Florida's nine yard line. Mintz smashed the line for four yards and then swept left end for a touchdown. Mintz missed the kick for the extra point.

The third quarter was scoreless but in the fourth quarter John Andrews, Wave fullback, began a series of brilliant line smashes that carried the ball to Florida's 13-yard line where Mintz again circled left end for a touchdown, but for a second time failed to convert the extra point.

YALE RALLIES TO DEFEAT PENN IN WILD TILT, 31-20

By Edward J. Neill
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A bruised, man-handled Yale team suddenly found wings on its feet and bullseyes at the end of its pitching arm today to thrill a huge crowd of 62,000 in sun-drenched Franklin field with a fantastic 31 to 20 victory over Pennsylvania—most spectacular Eli offensive display since the great little Albie Booth was taking Yale's football enemies apart single-handed.

Whipped 20 to 12 at the end of the first half of the first game Yale has played here in 46 years, the courageous youngsters from New Haven shredded the huge Quakers, outweighing them 14 pounds to a man, in the second half, scoring three touchdowns, stirring rival students to such a pitch that for half an hour after it was over, fist fights raged up and down the field for possession of the goal posts.

Two brilliant individual plays, perfectly executed, kept the Elis in the ball game through a terrible first half when the burly Penn backs were tearing the Yale tacklers apart. Three passes, each more spectacular than the one that preceded it, swamped the Quakers in the second half, when the Elis, solving the heavy Penn attacks, went to town in their first major victory of the season, and Penn's second straight defeat.

Al Hessberg, a 19-year-old 164-pounder from Albany, N. Y., ran 57 yards for one touchdown in the second quarter, after Clint Frank, from Evanston, Ill., sprinted 49 yards for the first Yale score, then came back in the third quarter to dash 62 yards for the touchdown that put Yale back in the ball game.

Still trailing 18 to 20 after these magnificent bursts because of inability to kick points after touchdowns, Yale called on ever reliable Larry Kelley, the big end, and to close out the spectacular show the Irishman from Williamsport, Pa., caught two touchdown passes that looked like mirages to the thrill saturated throng.

Neville Expects Hard Battle With Winnfield

Southwestern Turns On The Power In Second Half To Win, 20-0

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Changing sweaters and mental attitudes at the half, the Lynx of Southwestern came roaring back in the last half to crush the Millsaps Majors of Jackson, Miss., 20 to 0 today before 1,500 shirt-sleeved fans, and wipe out the scoreless tie of last year.

Unable to make any headway in the first two periods, the Lynx took the ball in the third quarter and punched over a touchdown in one sustained 70-yard drive, Nickells carrying the ball on the scoring play. Prewitt and Owen added the last two in the final period. Millsaps made but one scoring threat.

The Lynx fumbled away their scoring chances in the first half with both teams playing ragged ball.

Coach Shorty Propst had his Lynx change jerseys at the half, and apparently clothed them with new determination, for Nickells, Prewitt and Owen alternated in tearing through Millsaps' line for the first touchdown.

The Majors clicked with their passing attack consistently but bogged down when in scoring distance. Taking the ball in the fourth period, the Lynx rallied deep into Millsaps' territory, and Prewitt circled end for the score. Owen followed with another a few minues later with a plunge through the line.

Prewitt added one point from placement and plunged over for the other extra point.

Brown To Send Squad Through Stiff Practice Drills This Week

Up from Winnfield next Friday night will come a vengeful band of Winnfield high school Tigers bent on stopping the stride of the Neville Tigers, who won their third class A victory last Friday afternoon from the Ruston Bearcats. The game is scheduled to be played at Brown field, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Coach Percy Brown, of Neville, is more than a little bit worried over the impending battle. From all appearances, the Winnfield game is slated to be the toughest the Bengals have had this season, even harder than their Minden skirmish and maybe as disastrous as their Arkansas invasion earlier in the season when they were beaten by Camden.

If comparative scores mean anything at all, then the showing of the Winnfield and Neville teams against Ruston's Bearcats should give a good idea of what can be expected Friday. Winnfield beat Ruston 13 to 6, and Neville came through by the skin of their teeth to get a 12 to 7 victory over the 'Cats.

Viewing the battles with Ruston as test games, the coaches of the Neville and Winnfield camps should start plenty of activity in their workouts this week in preparation for the contest. The hardest workouts either eleven has had this season is in prospect for the next three days.

Last year the local Tigers handed the Winnfield aggregation a 12 to 0 defeat on their own field, and the invaders are pointing toward evening that score. Another thing that is worrying the locals is the fact that the Winn parish outfit has practically the same team back this year that they had last season, while Neville lost practically its entire line and has had to rebuild that unit almost to a man.

Neville has gained very little yardage through line plays this year, almost all its big gains coming on long end runs by Richard Basco and Pete Haddad, or the occasioanl connecting of a pass, Hadded to Joe Gimler. End run after end run by the fleet Neville backs has whipped down the stronger lines that opposed them, but they will be faced with a dose of their own medicine Friday, according to reports.

Winnfield also goes in for long end runs and boast a speedy halfback, Tucker, who has never failed the Winn eleven yet in adding yardage on long looping treks around either end. Tucker, it seems, is the main cog in the Winnfield backfield and is adept at fake reverse plays that have continually baffled opposing elevens.

Ben Cameron, former Centenary star, took over the coaching duties of the Winnfield squad this year and already has his Tigers looking their best in years.

The Neville team came out of the Ruston battle in good shape, although Haddad's knee is still bothering him some, Coach Brown said. However, the fast-stepping quarterback is expected to see plenty of action against Winnfield. Crews is back at his guard post, too, and the local Tigers should at least be able to present their full strength against the invaders.

COLORED HIGH TEAM WALLOPS ALEXANDRIA

Running behind a highly geared forward wall, the Monroe Colored high school Bulldogs' all-state backfield buried the highly touted Peabody Tigers, of Alexandria, beneath an avalanche of 55 points Friday night. The game was played at Forsythe park under the lights.

The game was the second for the Bulldogs for this season. Last Friday they played a scoreless tie against Second Ward high at Lake Charles.

Joe Gulley, L. C. Thomas, William McAdoo, Avery Lewis and Henry Johnson, veteran linemen, completely outplayed their heavier opponents and bottled up the Peabody running attack. Schwartz, Purnell, Washington, Van Buren and Edwards were constant backfield threats.

The Bulldogs will play the Arkansas State college freshman team here next Friday night, it was announced by Coaches Henry Carroll and Hayward Jackson.

KENTUCKY TROUNCES GEORGIA TECH, 25-6

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Kentucky's Wildcats wrecked Georgia Tech's Rambling Yellow Jackets on Stoll field here this afternoon by the score of 25 to 6, and served notice on Southeastern conference football championship aspirants that the Blue Grass squad must be reckoned with.

The Wildcats played without the services of their stellar halfback and all-American candidate, Bert Johnson, who is laid up with a leg ailment. In Johnson's absence Halfback Bob Davis scored three of Kentucky's four touchdowns and wore the visitors out by his broken-field running.

Pelicans Come From Behind To Trounce Lumberjack Eleven

CLARKS, La., Oct. 12.—(Special)—After being scored on in the first four minutes of play, the L. T. I. Pelicans unleashed a powerful attack in the last half to trim the Clarks Lumberjacks, 25 to 6, here Saturday.

After an exchange of punts, Clarks carried the ball from their own 42 to the Pelicans' goal line, Corbin taking it over on a wide end sweep. The try for extra point was blocked.

Midway in the second quarter, L. T. I. took a punt on the 50, and two passes and five running plays advanced it to Clarks' 5. On the next play Dedman took it over and then Spann hit the middle of the line for the extra point. The Pels led 7-6 at the half.

After each team had fumbled at the start of the second half, L. T. I. took the ball on their own 45, advanced to the Lumberjacks' 21, and then Spann hit the center of the line for the remaining yardage. The third touchdown was scored by Brouilette, who ran 15 yards for the score. The Pelicans' second team was sent in at the fourth quarter and scored L. T. I.'s final touchdown.

'BAMA'S DEFEAT FEATURES PLAY IN CONFERENCE

(By Associated Press)

Rising from the ashes of an early season defeat by Vanderbilt, Mississippi State overwhelmed Alabama, last year's Rose Bowl champions, 20 to 7, Saturday as Tennessee downed Auburn 13 to 6.

Alabama's loss dashed championship hopes of supporters of the team that swept to national honors last year while Tennessee's victory over the strong Auburn outfit placed it in a position of a leading contender for Southeastern conference honors in spite of a trouncing by North Carolina of the Southern conference.

Kentucky, rated as one of the Southeast's powers this year, showed to good advantage in its first conference test by whipping Georgia Tech, 25 to 6. Kentucky has lost only to Ohio State of the Big Ten conference.

The chances of the University of Georgia also were rated higher and the Bulldogs took on the look of a possible dark horse Saturday after defeating Furman, 31 to 7, in a homecoming tilt at Athens. Although Georgia has yet to meet a conference foe, supporters regard its early performances as impressive.

Louisiana State retained its previous rating among the best of the southern teams with a 32 to 0 march over Manhattan. L. S. U. is still to get a test in the conference.

Tulane, smarting from the drubbing Auburn gave it, took its revenge on Florida by defeating the 'Gators 19 to 7. Saturday's game was Florida's first in the S. E. C.

Friday night Vanderbilt got a 6 to 3 setback in an intersectional clash with Temple but remains in the conference race with a victory over Mississippi State. Mississippi easily routed Sewanee, 33 to 0, Friday night and also is unbeaten in the loo-

Major League Ball Clubs Had Nice Profits For '35

At Least Eleven Of Sixteen Teams Made Money Last Season

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—A marked decline in red ink consumption in the business offices of major league baseball clubs was one feature of the 1935 season which left the owners' faces wreathed in smiles which they refused officially to divulge their profit and loss figures.

While the magnates were cautious about mentioning definite amounts, an Associated Press survey disclosed today that at least 11 of the 16 major league clubs finished "in the black" or with nelgigible losses.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who began with the prestige of the 1934 world championship and neared the finish with a keen pennant fight with the Giants and Cubs, already have declared an estimated $100,000 dividend.

The Cards, the Detroit Tigers, newly crowned world champions, and the New York Giants apparently were the big money makers. The battered Boston Braves and the two Philadelphia clubs suffered the only serious losses.

The Cincinnati experiment with night baseball was profitable. The Reds paid for their $50,000 floodflighting equipment thrice over and finished about $50,000 or $75,000 to the good for the year. In 1934 the club lost $229,161.

The best estimates from St. Louis were that the Cards made a profit of about $300,000 for the year, but had to put around $50,000 back into their "chain store" system. The Browns not only picked up as drawing cards but probably made some money in the ivory market. The best estimates indicate a profit of $50,000 or more.

The Giants admitted their season was "very successful" financially and they drew well all through the year. Frank J. Navin, Tigers' owner, also reported a good year. The Tigers drew more than 1,000,000 customers at home but didn't do so well on the road.

The Chicago Cubs turned their $600,000 deficit of 1934 into a small profit.

Boston's Red Sox didn't draw quite as well as in 1934, but took in about $250,000 above the costs of operation.

The Chicago White Sox showed about 50 per cent improvement in drawing power.

The Braves, about $20,000 ahead July 1, wound up some $50,000 in the red after desperate late season appeals to the stockholders for enough cash to finish out the schedule. No comments could be obtained from either the Phillies or Athletics, but it seemed quite certain that neither made money with hopeless second division clubs.

The Indians, also keeping their silence, apparently should be listed among the losers. Clark Griffith of the Senators, admitted that Washington "finished on the wrong side of the ledger, but not enough to hurt us much."

The Yankees made some money but not as much as their early season success led them to hope for. The Dodgers showed their usual unimpressive but clear profit.

ILLINOIS WHIPS TROJANS, 19-0

Zuppke's Team Plays Perfect Football To Defeat Southern Cal.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Illinois unleashed an amazing display of football pyrotechnics to defeat Southern California here today, 19 to 0, in the west's first big intersectional encounter of the season.

Fifty thousand persons watched the fighting Illini play almost letter-perfect football as they passed their more ponderous opponents dizzy.

In the second period a blocked punt paved the way for Coach Bob Zuppke's eleven to score its initial touchdown. The second came directly from a blocked punt and the final counter, in the third period, was indirectly the result of the flying trapeze play.

KELLY-MARVIN BOUT TOPS ALL-STAR MAT CARD

MIDDLEKAUFF AND MANSOUR MEET IN SEMI-FINAL MATCH

Future Wrestling Shows Will Be Held On Thursday Nights

An all-star mat card which should rival last week's spectacular show has been booked for Roosevelt stadium Tuesday night, Promoter Charlie Bruscato announced yesterday. Ernest Kelly, popular Tennesseean, will meet Chief Tommy Marvin, veteran boxer and wrestler who specialized in bone crushing tactics, in the main event, and Bill Middlekauff, the former Florida U. football star who tips the beam at 225, will tangle with George Mansour, 225-pound Syrian husky, in the semi-final.

Bruscato also announced that all shows will be held on Thursday night in the future and that the 40 cents admission charge will be in effect as long as the customers respond as they did last week. A capacity crowd took advantage of the reduced prices last Thursday night and turned out for the best show staged at the stadium in many months.

The Kelly-Marvin match should furnish plenty of action. Kelly demonstrated last week that he could handle the tough boys when he defeated Hank Metheney, the Missouri meanie. Kelly went in there to satisfy a "grudge" against the spectacular Missourian and he gave a convincing exhibition in doing it.

Kelly is one of the most popular grapplers ever to perform here and he will have the crowd pulling for him when he attempts to subdue the rugged Marvin. Kelly is a scientific grappler and rarely resorts to rough stuff, but he may find it necessary to use his fists Thursday night.

The Tennesseean will have his hands full in Marvin. The big Indian who formerly was Jack Dempsey's chief sparring partner is a high-ranking heavyweight who is rated one of the toughest in the business. Carrying many scars of his ring battles, Marvin presents an ominous appearance and he wrestles just like he looks—and that's plenty tough.

Marvin's pet hold is a chin lock and he used it to beat Dr. Karl Van Horn in straight falls last week, despite the fact that Van Horn gave a worthy performance against overwhelming odds. Whether Marvin's chin lock proves more successful than Kelly's hook scissors, the Tennesseean's favorite grip, remains to be seen.

The Middlekauff-Mansour battle also is expected to produce its share of fireworks. Both are enormous fellows who can use their power to good advantage, either in scientific going or the rough stuff. Each has wrestled here before. They use a wide variety of holds but neither is the least bit backward about using his fists if the occasion arises.

They weigh the same but Middlekauff will have a slight advantage in height and reach. He uses his long legs to good advantage in gaining his bone-crushing scissors holds.

The main event will have a two-hour time limit, while the semi-final will be limited to one hour. Each will be best two out of three falls.

Promoter Bruscato said he would have a capable referee on hand to handle the matches.

FERRIDAY TROUNCES GLENMORA, 27 TO 6

FERRIDAY, La., Oct. 12.—(Special)—Ferriday's Bulldogs continued on their winning way in class "B" football Friday afternoon before a large crowd at the annual Concordia parish fair in Monterey, turning back the invading Glenmora Wildcats, 27 to 6.

On the second play of the opening quarter, Lamar Price, tossed a pass to Irving Baker, who tallied after going 15 yards. The Bulldogs came back again in the third quarter and scored two more markers. Price intercepting a pass from the Glenmora quarterback and dashing 25 yards to count the second Bulldog score. Joe McAdams, Clayton flash, reeled off the third tally with a wide end run and in the fourth quarter Baker scored on a broken field run. Baker also added two of the extra points on placement kicks.

Centenary Scores In Fourth Period To Nose Out Aggies

BOBBY JONES SAYS

Every time I find myself among a golf gallery at an important championship I am impressed by the fact that only a few are observing the play with real understanding. Most of the crowd merely see two balls come down the fairway and two shots come up to the green. They hold their breath while the putting is done and then scamper for the next tee. They usually know the state of the match and whether the scoring is good or bad. They usually appreciate the difficulties added by rough, bunkers, and trees. But it is safe to say that of the player's problem they see only a part.

The next time you see one of these supposedly expert players miss a yard putt, don't chuckle derisively and say to your companion that you could have made that one yourself. Don't assume that every putt of a yard is a set-up. Look carefully at the green and try to see what the putt was really like. Many times the little two and three footers present a fast-breaking slope that requires the ultimate in delicacy and accuracy. And often a putt that may look easy from the edge of the green, will be seen to lie along a ridge or hog-back when you get close to it. I have had putts of this length that looked impossible. When a player misses one of these he naturally doesn't enjoy hearing a guffaw from someone in the crowd who thought it was easy.

Two Lies Seldom Alike

When two balls lie side by side in the fairway, it is not fair to assume that the players have the same shot to play. One ball may be lying on closely cut grass so that it can be taken cleanly by the blade of the iron, while the other, a few feet away, may be nestling in soft grass, down only a little bit, but enough to interpose grass between the ball and the face of the club. If the shot be to a closely guarded green and if there be the added complication of a following breeze, the first player may have a comparatively simple shot while his opponent's may be almost impossible. From the clean lie the ball can be played with enough backspin to hold. From the heavier lie it can only be knocked into the air with the hope that it will stop somewhere on the green. The spectator who does not take this into account, when he sees one ball bite and hold and the other go bounding over, will naturally charge the second player with a bad shot which he did not make.

Short Chips Difficult

A short chip from rough grass just off the edge of the putting surface brings more "Ahs" and "Ohs" and moans ond groans from a gallery than any other shot. Actually, though it looks simple enough, such a shot is one of the most difficult in the game. One never knows just how the ball will come out, the grass is such an uncertain quantity. A player looks quite silly when he leaves his ball twenty feet short on such a chip, but it is easy to do.

Of course, it is hardly ever possible to breathe on a player's neck as he makes every shot. One cannot always inspect the lie of the ball or the line of a putt. But to realize that such things can make a lot of difference opens the way for some interesting speculation when direct observation is impossible. Watching the way the shot is played and the behavior of the ball often provides the clue. If you become able to only half-appreciate of how great importance a tiny worm-cast or one tuft of grass can be to a man who must get a short pitch not merely on the green but close to the hole, you will enjoy watching golf a lot more.

TINTAGEL WINS RICH FUTURITY

Marshall Field Thoroughbred Beats Favorites In Belmont Classic

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—He carried the label of a quitter as he went to the post today but a few minutes later when 18 of the country's ranking two-year-olds dashed down the Widener chute, it was Tintagel in front, carrying the silks of Marshall Field to victory in the 43th running of the futurity at Belmont park.

The bay son of Sir Gallahad III had won five of his eight previous starts largely because of his early speed but when the real tests confronted him he had folded up in the stretch. Today, however, before a crowd of 30,000, he refused to quit and coupling the new found stamina with his famous speed, finished the six and one-half furlongs a length in front of Hal Price Headley's Hollywood to earn $67,620—the winner's share of the turf's second richest prize amounting to $84,420.

With Silvio Coucci in the saddle, Tintagel, yet to meet defeat on the Widener course, shot out of the pack in the first furlong and with the little Bronx veteran speaking words of encouragement in his ears, staved off the closing challenge of his rivals. Hollywood, a 20 to 1 shot, just managed to take the place by a head from Walter M. Jeffors' fleet Jean Bart, seeking to duplicate the 1919 performance of his famous sire, Man o'War.

There were those in the crowd who packed the Westchester Racing association plant for the final day of the meeting, that had faith in the Field colt with the result he was quoted at 7 to 1 in a wide open betting race. The victory boosted his total earnings for the year to $76,270 and to the top of the money winning list in his division. Jean Bart, an easy winner of his previous race, was held at 8 to 1.

The disappointments of the race were Elmer Dale Shafers' Coldstream and C. V. Whitney's Red Rain, which figured to settle an argument that sent them into the race with one victory each and a dead heat. They went to the post the split favorites at 7 to 2 but neither figured seriously in the running, finishing eighth and tenth respectively.

DELHI BEARS SHADE CHOUDRANT TEAM, 6-0

CHOUDRANT, La., Oct. 12.—(Special)—The Bears of Delhi high school defeated the Choudrant Aggies 6 to 0 here yesterday in a close battle.

The Choudrant team made nine first downs to six for Delhi. The Bears made their winning touchdown on a series of line plays after along pass had placed the ball in scoring position.

The Aggies played good football despite the fact that they lost. Coach Willis was naturally disappointed that the Aggies lost but was well satisfied with the way Choudrant held the strong Delhi team, which was given a decided edge before game time.

TARHEELS TROUNCE MARYLAND, 33 TO 0

MUNICIPAL STADIUM, BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Striking early with a powerful rushing attack, coupled with a daring aerial barrage, North Carolina's Tarheels routed the Old Liners of Maryland here today, 33 to 0, to cover another long stride in their ambitious march toward Dixie's football championship.

More than 15,000 spectators attended. Maryland, victorious over Virginia Tech last week, was no match for the Carolinians, who served warning by their triumph over Tennessee last week that they not only had designs on the Southern conference championship, but also the gridiron laurels of the whole south.

GENTS TRIUMPH OVER TEXAS IN FINAL MINUTES

Crowther Scores Touchdown And Stokes Makes Extra Point To Win

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Centenary came from behind in the final period today to defeat Texas A. & M. 7 to 6 in a game which was marked by over-eagerness of both teams, as shown by offside penalties and fumbles. It was Centenary's fourth straight win of the season.

Two fumbles early in the first quarter proved costly to the Gents. However, Crowther punted out of danger but they had a disastrous effect upon the morale of the Centenary team, which was reflected in the Aggie touchdown, which came in the third quarter. Crowther, whose educated toe got Centenary out of trouble several times during the game, again punted out of danger but the Aggies came right back, assisted by two offside penalties on the Gents and two passes, Reid to Wilkins, totalled 18 yards.

A pass barrage placed the Aggies in scoring position in the third quarter. Wilkins dropped a 17-yard heave from Reid but the whistle had blown and it was ruled complete on the Gents' 31-yard line. Pitner fumbled after gaining eight yards through the line but Morrow recovered for the Aggies. After Manning had been thrown for a three-yard loss, Pitner passed to Manning for 20 yards and on an end-around play, Morrow, the sensational Aggie sophomore end, went the necessary four yards to score. Conway Baker, playing a stellar game at guard, blocked Morrow's placement kick.

The Gents got to pulling together better after the score and held the visitors to no gain at midfield as the third period ended.

Centenary received Pitner's punt on the locals' 32-yard line, opening the last quarter. Crowther passed to Hudgleston for 14 yards and then broke through tackle for seven yards.

Crowther failed to gain through left guard but scored when he next crashed right guard.

PLAINSMEN UPSET BY TENNESSEE IN CLOSE GAME, 13-6

Vols Score Two Touchdowns In Third Quarter To Trim Auburn

By Kenneth Gregory
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 12.—Tennessee's Volunteers rose from the ranks of the underdog to sweep back into championship contention in the Southeastern conference today with an impressive 13 to 6 triumph over the Plainsmen of Auburn.

Favored in the betting because of its early season triumph over Tulane, Auburn battled gamely but succumbed to an aroused Tennessee attack that rushed over a pair of touchdowns in the third period for a commanding lead.

The Tigers from the Alabama plains, playing before an enthusiastic audience of 15,716 spectators, saw an aroused Tennessee team, smarting under a week-old setback of 25 points by North Carolina, drive to a close victory.

Auburn rallied to outplay Tennessee in the final period, running up seven first downs to two by the Vols' and driving across for a touchdown with only a minute to play.

Trailing 13 to 0 and fighting a terrific uphill battle, the Plainsmen capitalized on a slugging penalty that removed Eugene Rose, Tennessee's veteran end who scored both Volunteer touchdowns, from the game. With the clock ticking off the fading seconds, Auburn scored as Billy Hitchcock fired a slanting pass to Joe Kilgore on the 3-yard line and the Tiger fullback stepped over the goal.

Tennessee had six first downs and Auburn, five, in the first half.

Taking advantage of a rebound of an Auburn punt that landed on the 27-yard line and rolled backward to the 19, Tennessee marched to its first touchdown. Phantom Phil Dickens, Tennessee halfback, advanced the ball to first down on the Tiger's seven on three plays and on fourth down fired a beautiful pass to Rose just inside the end zone for a touchdown. Dickens' placekick was blocked.

Less than two minutes later, the ever-alert Rose caught a fumble by Bunny O'Rourke, Auburn fullback, when it bounded into the air, and out-sprinted the Tiger secondary 44 yards to the goal. Frank Ditmore, substitute end, added the extra point from placement.

The game ended with Tennessee in possession of the ball on Auburn's 22-yard ine, folowing an exchange of punts.

The duel was fought mostly in midfield and failed to furnish spectators with expected thrills.

Tennessee (13)	Pos.	Auburn (6)

Locals Open Two-Game Series With Powerful Giants Today

The Monroe Monarchs, professional negro baseball club, open a two-day engagement with the powerful Milwaukee, Wis., Giants here this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Casino park. The second game will be played tomorrow afternoon.

Both teams are in fine shape for the contests, with the Giants, who claim to be the "fastest negro ball club in the world," anxious to chalk up their 99th and 100th victories of the season at the expense of the Monarchs.

The locals, however, are a hard team to beat and the invaders can be assured of having a hard fight on their hands.

Following the series with the Giants the Monarchs will engage their old rivals, the Pittsburgh Crawfords, in a game Tuesday afternoon.

The opposing pitchers for today's battle are scheduled to be Hilton Smith for the Monarchs, and K. J. Parker for the Giants.

STANFORD'S REIGN ON COAST IS ENDED

STANFORD STADIUM, PALO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Stanford's two-year reign as Pacific coast conference champion ended abruptly today as the mighty pigskin warriors coached by "Tiny" Thornhill went down to a 7-6 defeat before an alert band of Bruins of the University of California at Los Angeles.

The victory, climaxing the 10-year coaching regime of genial Bill Spaulding, came as a stunning upset to Stanford rooters while 25,000 fans gave the Bruins a rousing ovation.

Stanford scored mid-way of the first period with Bobby Grayson, 1934 all-American fullback, going over the last yard. Moscrip's place kick on the try for point was wide.

A few plays later the Bruins rushed over their touchdown with Ted Key, fullback, ripping through for the last two yards. Then Key toed the oval through the uprights, adding the lone point that brought victory.

Several times after the first scores Stanford had opportunities to increase the point total. Each attempt blew up as the Bruin squad fought back with desperate fury.

In the south, Duke and North Carolina kept pace as Southern conference leaders, the former trouncing Clemson, 38-12, while North Carolina was slugging Maryland into submission, 33-0. Tennessee, rallying from the North Carolina debacle of the previous week, turned on Auburn to hang up a Southeastern conference triumph, 13-6, and Tulane, beaten by Auburn a week ago, stopped Florida, 19-7. Kentucky looked powerful in a 25-6 rout of Georgia Tech.

Michigan State held its place close to the top of the mid-western rankings by pushing over Kansas 42-0, and Missouri, under Don Faurot's coaching, gave promise of future strength by walloping Colorado university, 20-6.

Among the Southwestern powers, Rice beat Creighton after a struggle, 14-0; Southern Methodist trounced Washington university, 35-6, and Texas upset Biff Jones' Oklahoma Sooners, 12-7. Utah won an impressive Rocky Mountain conference verdict over Montana State, 47-0.

California, upset conquerors of St. Mary's Gaels the previous week, just managed to nip Oregon, 6-0, and Washington State had all kinds of trouble winning from Montana, 13-7.

WISNER WINS FROM NEWELLTON, 14 TO 0

WISNER, La., Oct. 12.—(Special)—After defeating the Grayson eleven, 13 to 0, last week, the Wisner Bulldogs downed Newellton high, 14 to 0, here yesterday. Replacing his regulars with second and third stringers at frequent intervals, Coach Peel allowed his Bulldogs to score only two touchdowns against the inexperienced squad from Tensas parish.

The first touchdown came as the result of an end run by a second stringer with the extra point via line buck over center. The second touchdown was made by several long gains straight down the field to the visitors' eight yard line, where the ball was carried over by another line buck. Oglesby kicked the extra point.

Several new plays will be seen on the local gridiron during the coming week in preparation for the clash with the Delhi eleven here next Friday. The local boys contemplate a hard fought game with the Richland parish gridders but expect to hold them to a low score.

MIDDLEKAUFF AND MANSOUR MEET IN SEMI-FINAL MATCH

Future Wrestling Shows Will Be Held On Thursday Nights

An all-star mat card which should rival last week's spectacular show has been booked for Roosevelt stadium Tuesday night, Promoter Charlie Bruscato announced yesterday. Ernest Kelly, popular Tennesseean, will meet Chief Tommy Marvin, veteran boxer and wrestler who specialized in bone crushing tactics, in the main event, and Bill Middlekauff, the former Florida U. football star who tips the beam at 225, will tangle with George Mansour, 225-pound Syrian husky, in the semi-final.

Bruscato also announced that all shows will be held on Thursday night in the future and that the 40 cents admission charge will be in effect as long as the customers respond as they did last week. A capacity crowd took advantage of the reduced prices last Thursday night and turned out for the best show staged at the stadium in many months.

The Kelly-Marvin match should furnish plenty of action. Kelly demonstrated last week that he could handle the tough boys when he defeated Hank Metheney, the Missouri meanie. Kelly went in there to satisfy a "grudge" against the spectacular Missourian and he gave a convincing exhibition in doing it.

Kelly is one of the most popular grapplers ever to perform here and he will have the crowd pulling for him when he attempts to subdue the rugged Marvin. Kelly is a scientific grappler and rarely resorts to rough stuff, but he may find it necessary to use his fists Thursday night.

The Tennesseean will have his hands full in Marvin. The big Indian who formerly was Jack Dempsey's chief sparring partner is a high-ranking heavyweight who is rated one of the toughest in the business. Carrying many scars of his ring battles, Marvin presents an ominous appearance and he wrestles just like he looks—and that's plenty tough.

Marvin's pet hold is a chin lock and he used it to beat Dr. Karl Van Horn in straight falls last week, despite the fact that Van Horn gave a worthy performance against overwhelming odds. Whether Marvin's chin lock proves more successful than Kelly's hook scissors, the Tennesseean's favorite grip, remains to be seen.

The Middlekauff-Mansour battle also is expected to produce its share of fireworks. Both are enormous fellows who can use their power to good advantage, either in scientific going or the rough stuff. Each has wrestled here before. They use a wide variety of holds but neither is the least bit backward about using his fists if the occasion arises.

They weigh the same but Middlekauff will have a slight advantage in height and reach. He uses his long legs to good advantage in gaining his bone-crushing scissors holds.

The main event will have a two-hour time limit, while the semi-final will be limited to one hour. Each will be best two out of three falls.

Promoter Bruscato said he would have a capable referee on hand to handle the matches.

FERRIDAY, La., Oct. 12.—(Special)—Ferriday's Bulldogs continued on their winning way in class "B" football Friday afternoon before a large crowd at the annual Concordia parish fair in Monterey, turning back the invading Glenmora Wildcats, 27 to 6.

On the second play of the opening quarter, Lamar Price, tossed a pass to Irving Baker, who tallied after going 15 yards. The Bulldogs came back again in the third quarter and scored two more markers, Price intercepting a pass from the Glenmora quarterback and dashing 25 yards to count the second Bulldog score. Joe McAdams, Clayton flash, reeled off the third tally with a wide end run and in the fourth quarter Baker scored on a broken field run. Baker also added two of the extra points on placement kicks.

BOBBY JONES SAYS

Every time I find myself among a golf gallery at an important championship I am impressed by the fact that only a few are observing the play with real understanding. Most of the crowd merely see two balls come down the fairway and two shots come up to the green. They hold their breath while the putting is done and then scamper for the next tee. They usually know the state of the match and whether the scoring is good or bad. They usually appreciate the difficulties added by rough, bunkers, and trees. But it is safe to say that of the player's problem they see only a part.

The next time you see one of these supposedly expert players miss a yard putt, don't chuckle derisively and say to your companion that you could have made that one yourself. Don't assume that every putt of a yard is a set-up. Look carefully at the green and try to see what the putt was really like. Many times the little two and three footers present a fast-breaking slope that requires the ultimate in delicacy and accuracy. And often a putt that may look easy from the edge of the green, will be seen to lie along a ridge or hog-back when you get close to it. I have had putts of this length that looked impossible. When a player misses one of these he naturally doesn't enjoy hearing a guffaw from someone in the crowd who thought it was easy.

Two Lies Seldom Alike

When two balls lie side by side in the fairway, it is not fair to assume that the players have the same shot to play. One ball may be lying on closely cut grass so that it can be taken cleanly by the blade of the iron, while the other, a few feet away, may be nestling in soft grass, down only a little bit, but enough to interpose grass between the ball and the face of the club. If the shot be to a closely guarded green and if there be the added complication of a following breeze, the first player may have a comparatively simple shot while his opponent's may be almost impossible. From the clean lie the ball can be played with enough backspin to hold. From the heavier lie it can only be knocked into the air with the hope that it will stop somewhere on the green. The spectator who does not take this into account, when he sees one ball bite and hold and the other go bounding over, will naturally charge the second player with a bad shot which he did not make.

Short Chips Difficult

A short chip from rough grass just off the edge of the putting surface brings more "Ahs" and "Ohs" and moans ond groans from a gallery than any other shot. Actually, though it looks simple enough, such a shot is one of the most difficult in the game. One never knows just how the ball will come out, the grass is such an uncertain quantity. A player looks quite silly when he leaves his ball twenty feet short on such a chip, but it is easy to do.

Of course, it is hardly ever possible to breathe on a player's neck as he makes every shot. One cannot always inspect the lie of the ball or the line of a putt. But to realize that such things can make a lot of difference opens the way for some interesting speculation when direct observation is impossible. Watching the way the shot is played and the behavior of the ball often provides the clue. If you become able to only half-appreciate of how great importance a tiny worm-cast or one tuft of grass can be to a man who must get a short pitch not merely on the green but close to the hole, you will enjoy watching golf a lot more.

Gophers Put End To Huskers' Title Hopes In Close Battle

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Nebraska's dream of a national football championship lay trampled in the sod of Memorial stadium tonight.

Minnesota, undefeated since 1932 and rated as the national champion of 1934, bowled the Cornhuskers over today, 12 to 7, in a bruising battle, witnessed by 36,000 spectators, biggest crowd to see the Cornhuskers in action since 1925.

Big George Roscoe, Minnesota's 175 pound left halfback, grabbed the opening kickoff and galloped 74 yards behind massed interference. Five plays later the ball was over Nebraska's goal, Roscoe carrying it.

In the second period Roscoe again scored, scrambling over the goal line from Nebraska's four yard line. Both of Minnesota's attempts to annex the extra points were blocked.

The Cornhuskers' single touchdown was registered on two plays after the start of the second period.

PLAINSMEN UPSET BY TENNESSEE IN CLOSE GAME, 13-6

Vols Score Two Touchdowns In Third Quarter To Trim Auburn

By Kenneth Gregory
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 12.—Tennessee's Volunteers rose from the ranks of the underdog to sweep back into championship contention in the Southeastern conference today with an impressive 13 to 6 triumph over the Plainsmen of Auburn.

Favored in the betting because of its early season triumph over Tulane, Auburn battled gamely but succumbed to an aroused Tennessee attack that rushed over a pair of touchdowns in the third period for a commanding lead.

The Tigers from the Alabama plains, playing before an enthusiastic audience of 15,716 spectators, saw an aroused Tennessee team, smarting under a week-old setback of 25 points by North Carolina, drive to a close victory.

Auburn rallied to outplay Tennessee in the final period, running up seven first downs to two by the Vols' and driving across for a touchdown with only a minute to play.

Trailing 13 to 0 and fighting a terrific uphill battle, the Plainsmen capitalized on a slugging penalty that removed Eugene Rose, Tennessee's veteran end who scored both Volunteer touchdowns, from the game. With the clock ticking off the fading seconds, Auburn scored as Billy Hitchcock fired a slanting pass to Joe Kilgore on the 3-yard line and the Tiger fullback stepped over the goal.

Tennessee had six first downs and Auburn, five, in the first half.

Taking advantage of a rebound of an Auburn punt that landed on the 27-yard line and rolled backward to the 19, Tennessee marched to its first touchdown. Phantom Phil Dickens, Tennessee halfback, advanced the ball to first down on the Tiger's seven on three plays and on fourth down fired a beautiful pass to Rose just inside the end zone for a touchdown. Dickens' placekick was blocked.

Less than two minutes later, the ever-alert Rose caught a fumble by Bunny O'Rourke, Auburn fullback, when it bounded into the air, and out-sprinted the Tiger secondary 44 yards to the goal. Frank Ditmore, substitute end, added the extra point from placement.

The game ended with Tennessee in possession of the ball on Auburn's 22-yard ine, folowing an exchange of punts.

The duel was fought mostly in midfield and failed to furnish spectators with expected thrills.

Tennessee (13)	Pos.	Auburn (6)
Humphreys	LE	Strange
Silberman	LT	Paterson
Weaver	LG	Loflin
Tade	C	Gilbert
Dougherty	RG	McCroskey
F. Crawford	RT	Roton
Rose	RE	Morris

Sharpe	LH	Hitchcock
Palmer	RH	Tipper
Lippe	FB	Kilgore

Score by periods:

Tennessee	0	0	13	0	—13
Auburn	0	0	0	6	— 6

Tennessee scoring: Touchdowns, Rose (2). Points from try after touchdown, Ditmore (sub for Tansil), placement. Auburn scoring: Touchdown, Kilgore.

Locals Open Two-Game Series With Powerful Giants Today

The Monroe Monarchs, professional negro baseball club, open a two-day engagement with the powerful Milwaukee, Wis., Giants here this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Casino park. The second game will be played tomorrow afternoon.

Both teams are in fine shape for the contests, with the Giants, who claim to be the "fastest negro ball club in the world," anxious to chalk up their 99th and 100th victories of the season at the expense of the Monarchs.

The locals, however, are a hard team to beat and the invaders can be assured of having a hard fight on their hands.

Following the series with the Giants the Monarchs will engage their old rivals, the Pittsburgh Crawfords, in a game Tuesday afternoon.

STANFORD'S REIGN ON COAST IS ENDED

STANFORD STADIUM, PALO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Stanford's two-year reign as Pacific coast conference champion ended abruptly today as the mighty pigskin warriors coached by "Tiny" Thornhill went down to a 7-6 defeat before an alert band of Bruins of the University of California at Los Angeles.

The victory, climaxing the 10-year coaching regime of genial Bill Spaulding, came as a stunning upset to Stanford rooters while 25,000 fans gave the Bruins a rousing ovation.

Stanford scored mid-way of the first period with Bobby Grayson, 1934 all-American fullback, going over the last yard. Moscrip's place kick on the try for point was wide.

A few plays later the Bruins rushed over their touchdown with Ted Key, fullback, ripping through for the last two yards. Then Key toed the oval through the uprights, adding the lone point that brought victory.

Several times after the first scores Stanford had opportunities to increase the point total. Each attempt blew up as the Bruin squad fought back with desperate fury.

In the south, Duke and North Carolina kept pace as Southern conference leaders, the former trouncing Clemson, 38-12, while North Carolina was slugging Maryland into submission, 33-0. Tennessee, rallying from the North Carolina debacle of the previous week, turned on Auburn to hang up a Southeastern conference triumph, 13-6, and Tulane, beaten by Auburn a week ago, stopped Florida, 19-7. Kentucky looked powerful in a 25-6 rout of Georgia Tech.

Michigan State held its place close to the top of the mid-western rankings by pushing over Kansas 42-0, and Missouri, under Don Faurot's coaching, gave promise of future strength by walloping Colorado university, 20-6.

Among the Southwestern powers, Rice beat Creighton after a struggle, 14-0; Southern Methodist trounced Washington university, 35-6, and Texas upset Biff Jones' Oklahoma Sooners, 12-7. Utah won an impressive Rocky Mountain conference verdict over Montana State, 47-0.

California, upset conquerors of St. Mary's Gaels the previous week, just managed to nip Oregon, 6-0, and Washington State had all kinds of trouble winning from Montana, 13-7.

WISNER WINS FROM NEWELLTON, 14 TO 0

WISNER, La., Oct. 12.—(Special)—After defeating the Grayson eleven, 13 to 0, last week, the Wisner Bulldogs downed Newellton high, 14 to 0, here yesterday. Replacing his regulars with second and third stringers at frequent intervals, Coach Peel allowed his Bulldogs to score only two touchdowns against the inexperienced squad from Tensas parish.

The first touchdown came as the result of an end run by a second stringer with the extra point via line buck over center. The second touchdown was made by several long gains straight down the field to the visitors' eight yard line, where the ball was carried over by another line buck. Oglesby kicked the extra point.

Several new plays will be seen on the local gridiron during the coming week in preparation for the clash with the Delhi eleven here next Friday. The local boys contemplate a hard fought game with the Richland parish gridders but expect to hold them to a low score.

CITY BAKERY HAS 42-YEAR CAREER

Firm Is Oldest And One Of Most Modern In Monroe Territory

Beginning its business life in 1893, the City Bakery, 320 North Fourth street, is now completing its forty-second year of service to the public. It is the oldest establishment of its kind in northeast Louisiana, but from the viewpoint of modern equipment, methods and service, it is one of the most up-to-date bakeries of the state.

L. B. McCarthy, Sr., founder of the firm, is actively associated with its business life at this time. His two sons are associated with him in the business. They are Lawrence B. McCarthy, Jr., general manager, and John McCarthy, plant manager and assistant general manager.

It will be easily seen that the executives of this modern bakery know their business, the founder having spent most of his long life in it and his sons having been reared in the business.

Each member of the firm feels justifiably proud of the City Bakery's record of service to the public of northeast Louisiana. Their feature product, "Surprise Bread," is well known in thousands of homes of the territory.

Seven sales routes in the territory are covered by the bakery's salesmen.

A complete line of pastries is also made by the bakery. Its retail department, located in the front of the baking plant, is popular with housewives who desire a variety of delectables from which to select their bakery products.

cleanses the bowels as they were never cleansed before, removing foul impurities that may have been poisoning you continually, filling the blood stream with poisons to be spread throughout the system causing all kinds of aches and pains and being the real reason all along for terrible rheumatism, neuritis, stomach, liver, kidney, bowel or blood troubles which you never could understand or account for before.

"Since I began Gly-Cas I get perfect sleep, rest well at night and am ready for a full days work every morning," said Mrs. G. A. Takewell, 204 Seventh street, Monroe, well known and highly respected local lady in talking with the Gly-Cas man at the Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, this city. "Practically all my life I had been troubled with constipation, my stomach was in such condition that even the simplest of foods would upset me. Often after eating I would spit up the sourest of substances and the attacks of indigestion were unbearable. I was almost a nervous wreck, could not sleep at night for my kidneys and each morning I felt as if I had worked the entire ni . through. I was worn-out completely all the time and lacked the energy to do anything. I even had to force myself to get out of bed, had no appetite and had such sharp shooting pains throughout my body I felt as if it would soon affect my heart. I spe..t much money on many different kinds of medicines doing my best to get relief but everything failed. I was alarmed over my condition and realized I was growing worse each day. But when I finally heard of the amazing results others had received from Gly Cas' use I decided it was at least worth a TEST on my severe case—and I too found it even more than it was recommended to be."

"To my surprise that dreadful constipation was corrected in a few days most naturally," she continued, "My stomach and kidneys soon began functioning properly until I can now eat the foods I wish and enjoy my meals without any fear of distress afterwards. I get a perfect nights sleep, all pains have left me and my former energy has been restored. If there is any medicine on the market today that can even compare with Gly-Cas I do not know of it. My family and friends marvel at the wonderful change Gly-Cas has brought about for me."

The Gly-Cas man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, Monroe, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this new remedy.

INDUSTRIAL AND REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

Firm Is Oldest And One Of Most Modern In Monroe Territory

Beginning its business life in 1893, the City Bakery, 320 North Fourth street, is now completing its forty-second year of service to the public. It is the oldest establishment of its kind in northeast Louisiana, but from the viewpoint of modern equipment, methods and service, it is one of the most up-to-date bakeries of the state.

L. B. McCarthy, Sr., founder of the firm, is actively associated with its business life at this time. His two sons are associated with him in the business. They are Lawrence B. McCarthy, Jr., general manager, and John McCarthy, plant manager and assistant general manager.

It will be easily seen that the executives of this modern bakery know their business, the founder having spent most of his long life in it and his sons having been reared in the business.

Each member of the firm feels justifiably proud of the City Bakery's record of service to the public of northeast Louisiana. Their feature product, "Surprise Bread," is well known in thousands of homes of the territory.

Seven sales routes in the territory are covered by the bakery's salesmen.

A complete line of pastries is also made by the bakery. Its retail department, located in the front of the baking plant, is popular with housewives who desire a variety of delectables from which to select their bakery products.

Monroe Lady Given Surprising Results From Gly-Cas' Use

Tired, Worn-Out Feeling Has Gone Entirely, Can Eat A Good Meal Without Any Distress Afterwards; Stomach And Kidneys Regulated After Many Years Of Suffering.

Gly-Cas, the amazing new medical discovery is primarily a great system builder and purifier with an action on the entire intestinal tract that is simply astonishing. This new remedy cleanses the bowels as they were never cleansed before, removing foul impurities that may have been poisoning you continually, filling the blood stream with poisons to be spread throughout the system causing all kinds of aches and pains and being the real reason all along for terrible rheumatism, neuritis, stomach, liver, kidney, bowel or blood troubles which you never could understand or account for before.

"Since I began Gly-Cas I get perfect sleep, rest well at night and am ready for a full days work every morning," said Mrs. G. A. Takewell, 204 Seventh street, Monroe, well known and highly respected local lady in talking with the Gly-Cas man at the Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, this city. "Practically all my life I had been troubled with constipation, my stomach was in such condition that even the simplest of foods would upset me. Often after eating I would spit up the sourest of substances and the attacks of indigestion were unbearable. I was almost a nervous wreck, could not sleep at night for my kidneys and each morning I felt as if I had worked the entire ni . through. I was worn-out completely all the time and lacked the energy to do anything. I even had to force myself to get out of bed, had no appetite and had such sharp shooting pains throughout my body I felt as if it would soon affect my heart. I spe..t much money on many different kinds of medicines doing my best to get relief but everything failed. I was alarmed over my condition and realized I was growing worse each day. But when I finally heard of the amazing results others had received from Gly Cas' use I decided it was at least worth a TEST on my severe case—and I too found it even more than it was recommended to be."

"To my surprise that dreadful constipation was corrected in a few days most naturally," she continued, "My stomach and kidneys soon began functioning properly until I can now eat the foods I wish and enjoy my meals without any fear of distress afterwards. I get a perfect nights sleep, all pains have left me and my former energy has been restored. If there is any medicine on the market today that can even compare with Gly-Cas I do not know of it. My family and friends marvel at the wonderful change Gly-Cas has brought about for me."

The Gly-Cas man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, Monroe, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this new remedy.

SUPERINTENDENT HOME FINISHED

Two Story Brick Building Is Located Near The North Entrance

Along the north entrance drive of the Louisiana Training Institute grounds is located the new superintendent's residence, just recently completed. It is a beautiful two-story brick building of Colonial design, with a portico across the front, extending the full two stories in height. The large columns lend a dignity expected in such an important building.

The beauty of the typical Colonial entrance, flanked on either side with leaded glass side-lights, is enhanced by the wrought iron balcony immediately above, which feature was inspired by the superintendent.

The ground floor contains a large living room, with a marble mantel, dining room, study, kitchen, with pantry and butlery, kitchen porch and necessary closets.

The circular stairs lead to the upper floor where there are four large sleeping rooms, two bathrooms, cedar closet, and concealed stairs to attic space, which is to be used for general storage.

All interior walls and ceilings are plastered on metal lath and beautifully decorated. Floors throughout are quartered sawed oak finished in keeping with the balance of the building, with exception of the floors of bathrooms which are tile, as are the wainscots of the bathrooms. All tile is finished in soft colors.

The building was erected at a cost of fifteen thousand dollars and was made possible by the cooperation of the board of directors and the superintendent.

The board consists of Mr. P. M. Atkins, president; Mr. Fred Mitchell, and Mr. Barlow Inabnet. The superintendent of the institute is Judge Charles Shultz.

The contractor and builder was L. D. Davis of West Monroe and the architects were J. W. Smith, H. H. Land, and D. C. Smith.

The Monroe Hardware company furnished the paint and electrical supplies.

SANDWICH SHOP WELL KNOWN HERE

Tom Leos, Owner And Operator, Is Famous For His Various Dishes

Many people are enjoying their meals at the Dixie Sandwich shop, located at 407 Walnut street. Regular meals are a feature of the local establishment, and all of the best sandwiches are served.

Tom Leos, operator of the shop for the past two years, is famous for his many kinds of sandwiches. His barbecue is the best that can be found in the city. "Double deck" hamburgers are made by Tom himself.

There is plenty of parking space around the shop and excellent curb service is featured. So many customers find it convenient to drive by the Dixie and have supper in the car, while others like to eat at the tables and booths inside.

Due to an appendicitis operation Mr. Leos was not at his business for some time, but he is now able to resume his regular duties, and will be glad for all of his friends to call on him there. Mr. Leos wishes to thank his customers for their loyalty during his absence, and says that he will continue to give them the best service that he has always tried to give.

Many interesting and educational machine jobs are being done at Taylor Motor and Machine Works at Sixth and Adams. H. T. Taylor of the concern extends an invitation to all persons interested in seeing these operations to come to the shops. Markets--Financial

Grain

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Trading was almost at a standstill on the Winnipeg grain exchange today as a consequence of restricted market news due to holidays in the U. S. and Argentina.

Wheat prices at the close of the abbreviated session were 7-8 to 1-2 cent lower, October 91 1-2, November and December 92, and May at 95 7-8 to 86 cents.

Operations were at a minimum with the futures pits at times being deserted. Only a trickle of buying and selling orders filtered into the market with futures for most of the day showing little inclination to stray from Friday's close.

Country marketings of new crop wheat again were light Friday, aggregating 2,000,000 bushels. Hedging sales as a result were never in the market in any volume. Other selling was scattered.

Markets--Financial

Grain

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Trading was almost at a standstill on the Winnipeg grain exchange today as a consequence of restricted market news due to holidays in the U. S. and Argentina.

Wheat prices at the close of the abbreviated session were 7-8 to 1-2 cent lower, October 91 1-2, November and December 92, and May at 95 7-8 to 86 cents.

Operations were at a minimum with the futures pits at times being deserted. Only a trickle of buying and selling orders filtered into the market with futures for most of the day showing little inclination to stray from Friday's close.

Country marketings of new crop wheat again were light Friday, aggregating 2,000,000 bushels. Hedging sales as a result were never in the market in any volume. Other selling was scattered.

Sales of new passenger automobiles in Metropolitan New York for the first eight months of 1935 totaled 91,692 units as compared with 76,050 for the same period of 1934.

HUGE POLITICAL CAKE TO BE CUT

$4,000,000 Appropriation To Be Asked For Mississippi Relief

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 12.—(AP)—A "lame duck" Mississippi legislature, whose accomplishments for the first two weeks of an extraordinary session consist of the passage of two salary bills, senate approval of an emergency relief set-up and the introduction of a host of other measures, returns to the capitol Tuesday to cut a $4,000,000 cake.

The common schools, the veterans, the unemployables, and most important of all, the taxpayers, are clamoring for a slice of the "cake," and bills or resolutions running the gamut of the collective demands have been introduced in one or the other of the legislative chambers.

One million dollars of an estimated $4,000,000, which Governor Sennett Conner says will be left in the state treasury in the form of a cash surplus at the end of his administration in January, appears definitely earmarked for the relief of unemployables, of which there are now approximately 15,000 on the relief rolls, representing about 30,000 "family cases."

A relief bill appropriating such a sum has been passed by the senate, and if approved by the house and signed by the governor, will tide the unemployables over until a new state administration and a new legislature has firmly established itself. How the remainder of the cash surplus will be expended is a matter that awaits the pleasure of the legislature.

Members of the present legislature who were returned to their seats for another four-year term, are wondering what sort of a task will confront the new legislature if the cash surplus is depleted, and the ad valorem tax, which yields about $2,500,000 annually, is repealed as appears probable.

The attitude of the "lame ducks," representing more than 70 per cent of the membership of the legislature, apparently is inclined toward the view of Governor Conner that the surplus was piled up by "this administration," and it is the "right and duty of this administration" to return it to the taxpayers.

From some quarters, the cry has been raised that repeal of the ad valorem tax, and dissipation of the surplus will ham-string the incoming administration headed by Governor-elect Hugh L. White.

SEAL SALE MEET SLATED THURSDAY

District Conference Of Tuberculosis Workers To Be Held Here

A Christmas seal sale conference will be held here at the Hotel Virginia next Thursday by representatives of parish tuberculosis and public health organizations in the fifth district, it was announced by the Ouachita Tuberculosis and Public Health association.

Dr. Phillip P. Jacobs of New York City, director of publications and extensions of the National Tuberculosis association, and Mrs. John M. McBryde of New Orleans, executive secretary of the Louisiana State Tuberlosis association, will be the principal speakers of the conference.

The conference will be one of three similar meetings to be held in Louisiana. One of the conferences will be held at New Orleans on Wednesday and the other will be held at Shreveport on Friday.

The conference here will open at 10:30 o'clock in the morning in the Cameo room of the hotel, and will adjourn for lunch at noon. The afternoon session will begin at 2 o'clock.

27 INDICTMENTS ARE MADE PUBLIC

Only One Murder Case Is Included In Charges Of Grand Jury

Twenty-seven true bills which were returned by the Ouachita parish grand jury in its investigations for the fall term of district court were revealed yesterday.

There were no particularly outstanding cases, and only one murder case, in which a negro is charged with slaying another negro, was listed in the report.

One case is that of C. W. Wallace, a farmer, charged with parking a truck on a public highway without a rear light last August 9. Harvey Louis, of Cheniere, accidentally drove a car into the rear of the truck and was fatally injured. Wallace lives west of West Monroe.

A true bill was found against two negroes charged with kidnaping. They are Willie Calloway and Lawrence Bumper, accused of kidnaping Delia Shaw, negro woman residing on the White's Ferry road, and forcing her to accompany them to Shreveport. Calloway was also indicted for wounding less than mayhem.

Other cases in which true bills were returned are as follows: John A. Warren, negro, manslaughter in the death of Morris Johnson, negro; Harrison Davis, negro, manslaughter in the death of Charlie Davis, negro; R. C. Logue, T. L. Pace and H. L. Carney, three cases of breaking and entering; Claude Hapgood, disturbing the peace; W. R. Wooten, assault with a dangerous weapon, a pistol, with intent to kill; Briceland Windham, reckless driving; Grady Allen, operating an automobile while in an intoxicated condition; Joe Battaglia, breaking and entering a warehouse in the night; Roberta Sims, negro woman, advising use of drug for the purpose of violating the moral code; Walter Sims, Willie Mae Sims, Mary Henry Head and Casper Woodard, negroes, contributing to the delinquency of a minor; Roberta Sims, contributing to the delinquency of a minor; Houston Frost and Henry Green, assault and battery; Ventrus Thompson, larceny of automobile parts; Paul Correro and Phillip Alonzo, larceny of brass goods valued at $78.50, the property of the Louisville Cooperage company; Sammie Williams, negro, carrying a concealed weapon; Sandy Cheffie, Sr., negro, carrying a concealed weapon and assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill; Selvin Brisco negro, assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill.

There were four other cases in which true bills were returned, but names of the defendants were withheld pending their arrest.

WISNER MAN ILL

WISNER, La., Oct. 12.—(Special)—Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Segrest were called to Greenwood, Miss., Saturday due to the serious illness of Mrs. Segrest's father, J. C. Osborne, who has pneumonia. Mr. and Mrs. Osborne reside here and were on a visit to their son, Sam I. Osborne at the time Mr. Osborne became ill.

CULT CHIEFTAIN DEFENDS BELIEFS

Polygamy Vigorously Upheld During Hearing For Three Accused Men

KINGMAN, Ariz., Oct. 12.—(AP)—John Y. Barlow, spiritual leader of the Short Creek cult, defended vigorously today the belief in polygamy that caused three of his associates to be held for jury trial on charges of "open and notorious cohabitation."

"We are believers in the true, first Mormonism," declared Barlow. "We are directed to enter the new covenants of marriage, meaning the acceptance of a plurality of wives and the propagation of families, in the doctrines of the church.

"It is a God-given law, and we believe the power and the glory of the spirit in the hereafter depends upon the obedience of man to the law of God."

I. C. Spencer, Silvia Allred and Price Johnson, the three accused, were ordered tried after a prelliminary hearing that brought bizarre disclosures.

Howard Rourke, a relief investigator, related he had found Spencer and the Allred woman living together and that Spencer admitted he was "living in polygamy with Silvia Allred; my father and grandfather lived in polygamy, and I am d——proud of it."

Buck Lowry, Lee's Ferry resident, testified that during 1926 and 1927, 18 of the 19 children at the Lee's Ferry school were Johnson's.

The trio will be tried here, probably in December. They were en route home today with Barlow. Spencer made $500 bond. The Allred woman was released on her own recognizance. Johnson was granted 10 days to make $500 bond.

It was their third court appearance. They fled a first preliminary hearing in isolated Chort Creek, 400 miles from here north of the Grand canyon, and their second hearing was terminated abruptly and transferred here by Prosecutor E. E. Bollinger because of what he termed "antagonism" at Short Creek.

The first American Legion was composed of Tories and American deserters within the British lines during the Revolutionary War.

20TH CONSECUTIVE DIVIDEND CHECKS SENT STOCKHOLDERS

With the sale of Plough products continuing to soar in the third quarter of 1935, giving a clear indication that the advance predictions of "the greatest year in the history of Plough, Inc.," will be more than justified, the company, effective October 1, declared its largest dividend with $82,517.40 being sent to the 5,388 stockholders with this issue of Plough-Share, in 40 of the 48 states.

With increased advertising on fall schedules in both old and new sales areas and with other major improvements and advancements paving the way for greater public acceptance, Plough, Inc., looks forward to greater public demand in this country and in the export markets.

Backing up the intensive efforts of the company's expansive sales organization, several hundred newspapers over the nation, plus the outstanding group of women's magazines, will carry the message of Plough products to more than 25,000,000 readers, exclusive of export advertising, which has been considerably increased to meet the demand of growing business in foreign countries.

The growth of the common stockholders of Plough, Inc., has been steady and healthy with an increase of more than 1,000 stockholders in the last year, all receiving dividend checks at the rate of $1.20 per share per annum. HUGE POLITICAL CAKE TO BE CUT

$4,000,000 Appropriation To Be Asked For Mississippi Relief

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 12.—(AP)—A "lame duck" Mississippi legislature, whose accomplishments for the first two weeks of an extraordinary session consist of the passage of two salary bills, senate approval of an emergency relief set-up and the introduction of a host of other measures, returns to the capitol Tuesday to cut a $4,000,000 cake.

The common schools, the veterans, the unemployables, and most important of all, the taxpayers, are clamoring for a slice of the "cake," and bills or resolutions running the gamut of the collective demands have been introduced in one or the other of the legislative chambers.

One million dollars of an estimated $4,000,000, which Governor Sennett Conner says will be left in the state treasury in the form of a cash surplus at the end of his administration in January, appears definitely earmarked for the relief of unemployables, of which there are now approximately 15,000 on the relief rolls, representing about 30,000 "family cases."

A relief bill appropriating such a sum has been passed by the senate, and if approved by the house and signed by the governor, will tide the unemployables over until a new state administration and a new legislature has firmly established itself. How the remainder of the cash surplus will be expended is a matter that awaits the pleasure of the legislature.

Members of the present legislature who were returned to their seats for another four-year term, are wondering what sort of a task will confront the new legislature if the cash surplus is depleted, and the ad valorem tax, which yields about $2,500,000 annually, is repealed as appears probable.

The attitude of the "lame ducks," representing more than 70 per cent of the membership of the legislature, apparently is inclined toward the view of Governor Conner that the surplus was piled up by "this administration," and it is the "right and duty of this administration" to return it to the taxpayers.

From some quarters, the cry has been raised that repeal of the ad valorem tax, and dissipation of the surplus will ham-string the incoming administration headed by Governor-elect Hugh L. White.

SEAL SALE MEET SLATED THURSDAY

District Conference Of Tuberculosis Workers To Be Held Here

A Christmas seal sale conference will be held here at the Hotel Virginia next Thursday by representatives of parish tuberculosis and public health organizations in the fifth district, it was announced by the Ouachita Tuberculosis and Public Health association.

Dr. Phillip P. Jacobs of New York City, director of publications and extensions of the National Tuberculosis association, and Mrs. John M. McBryde of New Orleans, executive secretary of the Louisiana State Tuberlosis association, will be the principal speakers of the conference.

The conference will be one of three similar meetings to be held in Louisiana. One of the conferences will be held at New Orleans on Wednesday and the other will be held at Shreveport on Friday.

The conference here will open at 10:30 o'clock in the morning in the Cameo room of the hotel, and will adjourn for lunch at noon. The afternoon session will begin at 2 o'clock.

27 INDICTMENTS ARE MADE PUBLIC

Only One Murder Case Is Included In Charges Of Grand Jury

Twenty-seven true bills which were returned by the Ouachita parish grand jury in its investigations for the fall term of district court were revealed yesterday.

There were no particularly outstanding cases, and only one murder case, in which a negro is charged with slaying another negro, was listed in the report.

One case is that of C. W. Wallace, a farmer, charged with parking a truck on a public highway without a rear light last August 9. Harvey Louis, of Cheniere, accidentally drove a car into the rear of the truck and was fatally injured. Wallace lives west of West Monroe.

A true bill was found against two negroes charged with kidnaping. They are Willie Calloway and Lawrence Bumper, accused of kidnaping Delia Shaw, negro woman residing on the White's Ferry road, and forcing her to accompany them to Shreveport. Calloway was also indicted for wounding less than mayhem.

Other cases in which true bills were returned are as follows: John A. Warren, negro, manslaughter in the death of Morris Johnson, negro; Harrison Davis, negro, manslaughter in the death of Charlie Davis, negro; R. C. Logue, T. L. Pace and H. L. Carney, three cases of breaking and entering; Claude Hapgood, disturbing the peace; W. R. Wooten, assault with a dangerous weapon, a pistol, with intent to kill; Briceland Windham, reckless driving; Grady Allen, operating an automobile while in an intoxicated condition; Joe Battaglia, breaking and entering a warehouse in the night; Roberta Sims, negro woman, advising use of drug for the purpose of violating the moral code; Walter Sims, Willie Mae Sims, Mary Henry Head and Casper Woodard, negroes, contributing to the delinquency of a minor; Roberta Sims, contributing to the delinquency of a minor; Houston Frost and Henry Green, assault and battery; Ventrus Thompson, larceny of automobile parts; Paul Correro and Phillip Alonzo, larceny of brass goods valued at $78.50, the property of the Louisville Cooperage company; Sammie Williams, negro, carrying a concealed weapon; Sandy Cheffie, Sr., negro, carrying a concealed weapon and assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill; Selvin Brisco negro, assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill.

There were four other cases in which true bills were returned, but names of the defendants were withheld pending their arrest.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborne reside here and were on a visit to their son, Sam I. Osborne at the time Mr. Osborne became ill.

CULT CHIEFTAIN DEFENDS BELIEFS

Polygamy Vigorously Upheld During Hearing For Three Accused Men

KINGMAN, Ariz., Oct. 12.—(AP)—John Y. Barlow, spiritual leader of the Short Creek cult, defended vigorously today the belief in polygamy that caused three of his associates to be held for jury trial on charges of "open and notorious cohabitation."

"We are believers in the true, first Mormonism," declared Barlow. "We are directed to enter the new covenants of marriage, meaning the acceptance of a plurality of wives and the propagation of families, in the doctrines of the church.

"It is a God-given law, and we believe the power and the glory of the spirit in the hereafter depends upon the obedience of man to the law of God."

I. C. Spencer, Silvia Allred and Price Johnson, the three accused, were ordered tried after a preliminary hearing that brought bizarre disclosures.

Howard Rourke, a relief investigator, related he had found Spencer and the Allred woman living together and that Spencer admitted he was "living in polygamy with Silvia Allred; my father and grandfather lived in polygamy, and I am d——proud of it."

Buck Lowry, Lee's Ferry resident, testified that during 1926 and 1927, 18 of the 19 children at the Lee's Ferry school were Johnson's.

The trio will be tried here, probably in December. They were en route home today with Barlow. Spencer made $500 bond. The Allred woman was released on her own recognizance. Johnson was granted 10 days to make $500 bond.

It was their third court appearance. They fled a first preliminary hearing in isolated Chort Creek, 400 miles from here north of the Grand canyon, and their second hearing was terminated abruptly and transferred here by Prosecutor E. E. Bollinger because of what he termed "antagonism" at Short Creek.

20TH CONSECUTIVE DIVIDEND CHECKS SENT STOCKHOLDERS

With the sale of Plough products continuing to soar in the third quarter of 1935, giving a clear indication that the advance predictions of "the greatest year in the history of Plough, Inc.," will be more than justified, the company, effective October 1, declared its largest dividend with $82,517.40 being sent to the 5,388 stockholders with this issue of Plough-Share, in 40 of the 48 states.

With increased advertising on fall schedules in both old and new sales areas and with other major improvements and advancements paving the way for greater public acceptance, Plough, Inc., looks forward to greater public demand in this country and in the export markets.

Backing up the intensive efforts of the company's expansive sales organization, several hundred newspapers over the nation, plus the outstanding group of women's magazines, will carry the message of Plough products to more than 25,000,000 readers, exclusive of export advertising, which has been considerably increased to meet the demand of growing business in foreign countries.

The growth of the common stockholders of Plough, Inc., has been steady and healthy with an increase of more than 1,000 stockholders in the last year, all receiving dividend checks at the rate of $1.20 per share per annum. This marks the twentieth consecutive dividend paid to the common stockholders.

Advent Of Autumn Weather Stirs Social Activity In Monroe

Junior Charity League To Stage Fashion Show

Violet Meyer Returns To Take Up Reins Of Leadership; Eight Beautiful Women Are To Act As Models

By Eve Bradford

These perfect days are set against the autumn like bas-relief upon a Wedgewood vase. All signs point to the dying year—crackling fires on cool nights, mellowing fruit, barns bursting with plenty. Golden October gives us glorious days that stimulate our energy to the limits of human activity. All but lost under a drift of autumn leaves are the summer trails, but the pathways of October, that lead back to club activity, are teeming with feminninity again. Every one is refreshed and eager for what the months ahead have to offer of work, of pleasure in the company of friends, old and new.

The tang of fall has swept away the languid humidities of summer and an infectious gusto seems to emanate from Junior league circles, where members have completed plans for their annual fall fashion show. Violet Meyer, refreshed and electrified from a summer beneath the snow-capped mountains of Lake Placid, has taken up the reins of leadership and announced proudly to us yesterday that eight beautiful, slender women will walk down the length of the Cherokee terrace of the Frances hotel on the night of the twenty-sixth. And are we excited? We were fortunate enough to get a peep at those creations she selected for the show. New shades that look like copper—"hunter's pink," that you should know is red—"burnt stenna," "electric blue," "deep violet" and all those stained glass shades that have crept into tweeds, oddly enough, by the ecclesiastical revival.

When Ann Speed spread the snowy napery for Elisabeth Platt and John Dubuisson last week, a feeling of sentiment crept in, when she recalled that beautiful day in the past when she trotted out the family silver and china for Elisabeth's parents, who were her guests at luncheon on their wedding day.

Will you ever forget the wedding night of this romantic pair (Elisabeth and John)? In the dusk of twilight in the old gardens of the Layton place, Whistler might have made a nocturne on canvas. Figures walking in the dim shadows drinking in the night air drenched with the fragrance of sweet olive, herbs and a thousand forms of plant life in every section of the old garden that has slumbered under peaceful southern skies for 60 years and more. If you just lift the gossamer veil that separates yesterday from today, you will see a picture of the glory that surrounded Layton place during those romantic ante-bellum days. The same harvest moon looked down on happy couples strolling under the towering oaks and majestic magnolias in the dew-drenched garden, where the mocking birds added enchantment to the night.

After Elisabeth cut her wedding cake, the guests sauntered through the moonlight to the Platt home, where the wedding gifts were on display.

Still on the subject of the wedding, out of the fullness of our heart we must say something about that handsome bridegroom. After shaking hands with him we knew why he has been the toast of Monroe these many months. Friends have been fighting among themselves for the pleasure of entertaining him when he made those numerous visits to Monroe. No one but a natural born diplomat could have stepped from one invitation to another so gracefully.

Forgive us if we gossip with a hop, skip and jump. During the past week we have gleaned the following facts:

A certain Monroe boy is marking time, impatiently, until a Shreveport girl names the day. She is a college senior and can't study and he is a young professional man who can't work, so you can expect to hear wedding bells any day now.

Brunswig Sholars, the versatile, sat on the floor in the radiance of his own hearth fire with his supper guests gathered around him when he played host last week.

A popular couple who were very much in love a few years ago but were separated by a rift in the clouds are seen together again and there seems to be a silver lining to that particular cloud.

We hope so at least, as they are both favorites of ours.

Maud Stubbs was milling around at the Platt-Dubuisson nuptial event in a blue gown with blue sequins collar and cuffs just the color of her beautiful eyes.

Little Carol Layton, the very essence of sweetness and grace, was dancing around on her toes at the wedding—evidently she has inherited the talent of her lovely mother.

Mary Stuart Kellogg, that lovely blonde daughter of Louise Kellogg's, is going to be one of the belles of Monroe, unless our predictions go wrong—she still wears those long curls, but possesses the charm, the poise and the interest in life of a debutante.

Mrs. R. W. O'Donnell was looking unusually charming the other night in a blue gown with silver roses at her throat.

Dorothy Sholars, gracious and vivacious, and so delightfully genuine, was wearing a smart brown taffeta evening coat with beige lace frock at the wedding Wednesday night.

Saw J. H. Trousdale hurrying under the big top at the circus the other afternoon with his two grandchildren in tow—it was difficult to decide which one of the trio was the most interested.

The Toby Bancrofts were out with their little brood—and such handsome children they are. It took the big strong arm of the nurse, however, to keep Ochiltree from being trampled underfoot.

Bano Lamkin was munching peanuts with much gusto when we found him leaning over the ropes that hedged in the elephants.

Dell Paine is wearing a perfectly stunning black outfit these days—the hat is a perfect honey and very becoming.

Once upon a time the social calendar was a conglomeration of superfluous affairs that took one hither and yon—dates with the dress maker, parties galore, a few gentle gestures toward charity and a polite interest in sports and things cultural. The consequences were a successful marriage—and jolly well earned. Today's society woman is no idle dreamer but goes about her business with purposeful plans of accomplishment, letting the wedding bells ring as they will. Out for jobs, they go to shops, newspaper offices and business offices—and not always just for a lark, but more often with the pay check the chief objective. Little they care if father is a banker or broker, or mother a social grand dame. The finishing school, college and sorority prestige, the social register and family traditions are but stepping stones toward a bigger and better job. Just peek around at some of our young ladies whose names are listed on payrolls.

Viola Perkins breezed into town the other day from Texas, where she has been filling a man's size job for two years. She is quite the most enthusiastic young business woman we have seen in many a day. Her son, Tommy, being a favorite of ours, we naturally were anxious of news of him. Viola produced a picture that told louder than words of his outlook on life. The same happy, smiling face looked out at us, and that same mop of curly hair that will make him a heart breaker in years to come.

Another Monroe girl who stepped out and landed a nice big job and incidentally a husband in Washington was Mary Lee Sullivan, or rather Mary Lee Hancock, as she is now known. We can look forward to meeting the man of her choice during the holidays.

Miss Mary O'Kelly, president, presided over the business meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club at the clubhouse last week. Many important matters were discussed, outstanding being the annual barbecue to be held Monday night at the Bernstein country place with Mrs. Johnnie Elbert chairman.

Members attending this meeting were: Mmes. Johnnie S. Elbert, Frances Riter, Bessie Sterne, Lillian Jackson, Jennie Thornton, Dora Anish, and Mary Bally, and Misses Mary O'Kelly, Florence Powers, Hazel Wakefield, Alice Baur, Wilma Pace, Zelda Moss, May Read, Bernice Wright, Eleanor Faulk, Nora Downs, Mae McIntosh and Mamie Ober.

Art Club Meets

The Fine Arts club met in the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Wright on Rochelle avenue for the first meeting of the year, with Mrs. H. H. Douglas, Miss Ladelle Duke and Miss Lila Scoggin co-hostess.

Mrs. Raymond, president, presided, with twenty-four members answering the roll call. In the absence of Mrs. Darwin Nichols, secretary, Mrs. H. M. James recorded the proceedings of the meeting. Mrs. Louis Hullum, state president, was a welcomed visitor and, in characteristic, gracious manner, spoke interestingly of music club work. Miss Puckett of the Ouachita Parish High school faculty was also an interesting visitor.

Miss Juanita Porter, program chairman, was introduced and gave current events in the music world. Particularly noteworthy was information that the L. S. U. school of music has the largest enrollment of any university in the country.

Mrs. Dean Selig's splendid interpretation of Chopin's Valse in A Flat was prefaced with a short sketch on the life of the composer. Mrs. Selig also reminded everyone to listen in on the first radio broadcast of Paderewski on Saturday morning, 10:30 to 12 o'clock over NBC chain.

Mrs. C. W. Oseland's beautiful lyric soprano voice was heard in "In My Garden," by Ida Belle Firestone. Mrs. Joseph Monroe accompanied Mrs. Oseland.

Mrs. Marvin Johnson's contribution to the evening's pleasures was "Moments Musical" by Schubert.

Closing the musical program was a lovely vocal duet beautifully rendered by Mrs. Ben Anders and Mrs. J. P. Royce, with Mrs. P. A. Poag as accompanist.

A social hour, a delightful feature of these monthly meetings, followed. The guests were invited into the candle-lit dining room where assorted sandwiches, luscious cakes and hot chocolate were served. The lace covered table was exceptionally attractive, centered with a silver basket of gold and purple asters. Those present were: Mrs. Raymond Spence, Miss Stella Vinson, Mrs. Dean Selig, Mrs. H. J. Fernandez, Mrs. R. F. McCook, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Ben J. Stern, Miss Lila Scoggin, Miss Ladelle Duke, Mr. and Mrs. Louise Hullum, Mrs. J. P. Royce, Mrs. Ben Anders, Miss Juanita Porter, Miss Puckett, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hennen, Mr. Leon Hammond, Mrs. L. V. Tarver, Mrs. C. W. Oseland, Mrs. Marvin Johnson, Mrs. P. A. Poag, Mrs. H. H. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Wright, Mr. R. J. Goza and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wamsley.

P.-T. A. Meeting Held

During the second meeting of the Sherrouse P.-T. A. of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers, plans for a two-week membership drive were perfected, personal contact with every parent being the objective of the chairman, Mrs. John McCarthy.

Mrs. J. E. Pope, publications chairman, reported promise of a splendid subscription to both the national and state magazines.

Mrs. H. M. Linquist, program chairman, is compiling booklet containing the year's program, P.-T. A. songs, its creed, etc., for each member. They will be ready for distribution at the next regular meeting.

Publicity, under Mrs. M. Burgess, is being stressed this year, especially through a correspondence course to be conducted by Mrs. Edward Brown. A larger number than usual has expressed the desire to take this interesting subject.

Finance presented its customary problem. However, with determined spirit, it will be solved somehow.

Visitor Entertained

Mrs. Viola Perkins of Brownwood, Texas, a former resident of this city and a great favorite socially has been much feted during her visit in the home of Mrs. Newton Knowles.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Knowles gathered old friends together for an afternoon of bridge complimentary to Mrs. Perkins. Beautiful flowers, lovely bridge gifts, the serving of a luscious sea food course and the presence of Mrs. Perkins all conspired to render the afternoon exceptionally delightful.

Mrs. B. D. Hodges and Mrs. Samuel Ivy entertained at bridge at the home of Mrs. Ivy Thursday afternoon and Mrs. B. Braswell's bridge on Friday brought a few congenials together, with Mrs. Perkins the central figure. Mrs. William Harper has planned a small bridge affair for Tuesday.

Luncheons and other affairs of an informal nature have been planned for each day of Mrs. Perkins' visit in the city.

Birthday Party Given

Witches and goblins chased each other in typical Halloween manner up and down the spacious ball room floor at Lakeside Country club, where Rhoda Kellog, lovely seven-year-old blonde daughter of Mrs. Robert L. Kellogg, entertained the younger beau monde with a birthday party Thursday afternoon, between the hours of 4 and 6.

In the shadowy corners witches bent over great caldrons overflowing with gifts for every child. Witches with their proverbial broom sticks presided in other sections of the ball room and told weird stories of ghosts and black cats that stalk the world when the Hollowe'en season arrives.

Refreshments were found at a long table covered with gold paper and decorated with golden pumpkins and flowers of vivid hue. Mary Stuart Kellogg and Peggy Prindle, in smart little black dresses with white aprons and jaunty white caps perched on their long curls, served the children a mystic brew from immense crystal bowls.

The three-tiered birthday cake with its bright yellow frosting was decorated with animals reminiscent of the circus attended by the children the day before. With visions of grizzly bears, lions, monkeys and giraffes still dancing in their head, the cake proved a real sensation.

Rhoda, wearinga rose-colored French frock, with rose colored ribbons entwined in her blonde curls, was assisted in welcoming her friends by her mother and Mrs. Richard Kellogg, Mrs. Howard Greene, Mrs. O. R. Lewis and Mrs. Christine Moore.

Course On Books

A course on books and their authors will be offered Louisiana clubwomen by the general extension division of Louisiana State university, it was announced Saturday by extension course leaders. The course to consist of 12 lectures will be conducted by Miss Annette Duchein of Baton Rouge and will be open to women's clubs throughout Louisiana.

Organized through women's groups, the classes will meet once a week for three months in their respective towns to hear the lictures given by Miss Duchein. On completion of the initial course on "Writers of the South," courses are being planned in contemporary American literature as well as on the literature of England, Europe and the East.

Certificates will be awarded persons completing the course. The lectures will be given before any club which organizes a class of 35 and full information may be obtained by writing Miss Duchein at the general extension division of the university in Baton Rouge.

Miss Duchein is a graduate of L. S. U., having received her B. A. degree in 1927. She spent two years in New York and attended the school of journalism at Columbia university, receiving her degree of bachelor of journalism. While at Columbia, she studied contemporary novelists with Carl van Doren, widely known critic, and with John Erskine, novelist.

While in New York Miss Duchein studied book reviewing with Allen St. Clair Wills, associate editor of the New York Times book section. She wrote special feature stories for the New York Herald Tribune and returned to Louisiana to become reporter and feature writer for the Times-Picayune. While holding this position she reviewed books for "Literature and Less" and became well acquainted with Louisiana's contemporary writers.

In 1932, Miss Duchein was added to the staff of L. S. U., winning a scholarship in journalism. She received her master of arts degree in 1933 and then served as editorial assistant and publicity director of the Southwest Review and later for the Southern Review.

The course which she will conduct is designed to give Louisiana women additional information on books and their authors and to stimulate group discussions on this topic.

Miss Duchein's itinerary is now being arranged and clubs desiring her services are invited to write her at the university. She will arrange book reviews for special programs and will arrange courses of study for book clubs requesting them.

The course has been endorsed by President James Monroe Smith of the university and by Mrs. Ralph H. Agate, president of the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs.

The topic for the lecture course was selected because the south is entering upon a literary renaissance, Miss Duchein points out, and because southerners are anxious to learn about the trend in southern literature.

The work of outstanding southern authors will be discussed and reviews of current novels will be given by Miss Duchein at the weekly meetings of the classes.

Sandwich Spread

Families have a way of being hungry, even on Sunday night after the housewife has exhausted her full supply of culinary ambition on a big noonday dinner. A well stocked pantry that has a shelf reserved for a variety of sandwich spreads is the answer on such an occasion, suggests Mrs. Ruby Mendenhall Smith, extension economist in food preservation, University of Arkansas.

Vegetables from fall gardens offer possibilities for wholesome and delicious sandwich spreads. Mrs. Smith suggests an unusual recipe for a spread made of garden products.

For sweet vegetable sandwich spread, ten medium size cucumbers, the same number of medium size carrots, and two each of medium size sweet red peppers and sweet green peppers are required. Run all vegetables through a food chopped. Sprinkle two tablespoonfuls of salt over the ground vegetables, cover with vinegar, and let stand over night.

Next morning drain, cover with water and scald the vegetables, and then drain well. Mix together three tablespoonfuls of flour and three-fourths cup of sugar and one teaspoonful of ground mustard. Add eight tablespoons of butter, four well beaten eggs, and one pint of weak vinegar. Cook until the mixture is smooth and thick. Add one cup of sweet cream and allow to simmer five minutes, then pour the mixture over the vegetables. Mix thoroughly, heat to the boiling point, and boil five minutes. Pack boiling hot into sterilized pint jars, seal, and process fifteen minutes at simmering temperature in a hot water bath.

Fashion Asks, 'Italian Or Ethiopian?' And You Get Choice In New Frocks

By Millie Hudson

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A review of the couture showings indicates fashions for 1936 are taking on a topical note, "Italian versus Ethiopian."

The Italian influence is inspired by Florentine paintings of the 15th century and by the exhibition of Italian Renaissance paintings in Paris.

What is termed the Ethiopian influence, indicated by clothes quasi-military in type much braided and befrogged, reminiscent of the more picturesque Ethiopian uniforms. This, however, is moxed with an oriental, or rather "near-east," influence that crops up in many models.

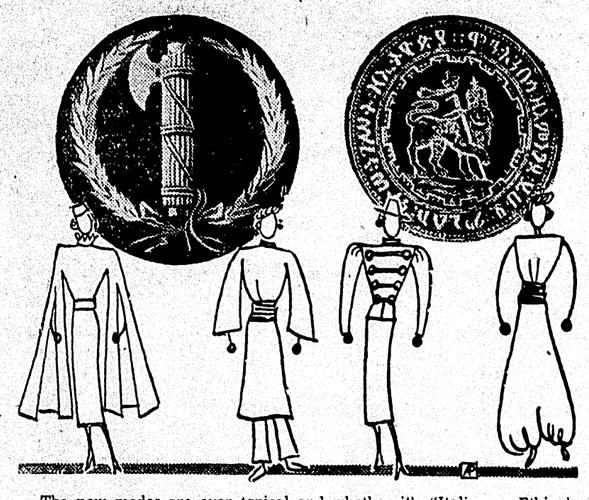
Period clothes from Renaissance paintings cannot be merely copied for the active modern woman who has to go places. The new influences appear in subtle changes of line and cut, in Renaissance colorings, the use of trimmings an dbraidings, and in gilt and be-jewelled belts and accessories.

The more formal frocks take on the chaste, flowing lines of fifteenth century Italy, whereas day clothes mimic glamorous military effects.

For afternoons or quiet evening wear there are Franciscan monk robes with monastic rope girdles.

Sweaters and knitted garments are influenced in colorings both by Italian and Ethiopian sources. Delustred synthetic silk is used for hand and machine knitting.

Sports ensembles sometimes have three-quarter to five-eighth length coats hanging from the shoulders on loose lines with side fullness. Some coats and suits are quite military looking, some cloaks have ecclesiastical hoods, and some dresses and coats are made entirely of fine pleated material.



The new modes are ever topical and whether it's "Italian or Ethiopian" merely is a matter of taste for 1936. The two sketches at left show how the Italian influence is making itself felt in the new fashions, while two right show use of the Ethiopian theme with a touch of the "Near East."

Sleeves are significant with the fullness at the top, and are either gathered into the wrist or left loose—the "best" new sleeve is knee length! Shoulders are widened, often padded. Waists are in the natural position, or a shade higher.

The chief colors are rich Florentine reds, rouge "Gallois," royal blue, deep wine, imperial violet, navy, beige, steel grey, black and "chocolate paper." Also one or two faded false shades, such as old blue, old green and dull purple are used.

Fancy gadgets are medieval jewelled belts, silver and gold coin trimmings, leather belts worked with coronets, cocks, padlocks and keys, gold intaglio belts in Italian designs, and turreted and heraldic belts with bracelets to match.

Advent Of Autumn Weather Stirs Social Activity In Monroe

Junior Charity League To Stage Fashion Show

By Eve Bradford

These perfect days are set against the autumn like bas-relief upon a Wedgewood vase. All signs point to the dying year—crackling fires on cool nights, mellowing fruit, barns bursting with plenty. Golden October gives us glorious days that stimulate our energy to the limits of human activity. All but lost under a drift of autumn leaves are the summer trails, but the pathways of October, that lead back to club activity, are teeming with femininity again. Every one is refreshed and eager for what the months ahead have to offer of work, of pleasure in the company of friends, old and new.

The tang of fall has swept away the languid humidities of summer and an infectious gusto seems to emanate from Junior league circles, where members have completed plans for their annual fall fashion show. Violet Meyer, refreshed and electrified from a summer beneath the snow-capped mountains of Lake Placid, has taken up the reins of leadership and announced proudly to us yesterday that eight beautiful, slender women will walk down the length of the Cherokee terrace of the Frances hotel on the night of the twenty-sixth. And are we excited? We were fortunate enough to get a peep at those creations she selected for the show. New shades that look like copper—"hunter's pink," that you should know is red—"burnt stenna," "electric blue," "deep violet" and all those stained glass shades that have crept into tweeds, oddly enough, by the ecclesiastical revival.

When Ann Speed spread the snowy napery for Elisabeth Platt and John Dubuisson last week, a feeling of sentiment crept in, when she recalled that beautiful day in the past when she trotted out the family silver and china for Elisabeth's parents, who were her guests at luncheon on their wedding day.

Will you ever forget the wedding night of this romantic pair (Elisabeth and John)? In the dusk of twilight in the old gardens of the Layton place, Whistler might have made a nocturne on canvas. Figures walking in the dim shadows drinking in the night air drenched with the fragrance of sweet olive, herbs and a thousand forms of plant life in every section of the old garden that has slumbered under peaceful southern skies for 60 years and more. If you just lift the gossamer veil that separates yesterday from today, you will see a picture of the glory that surrounded Layton place during those romantic ante-bellum days. The same harvest moon looked down on happy couples strolling under the towering oaks and majestic magnolias in the dew-drenched garden, where the mocking birds added enchantment to the night.

After Elisabeth cut her wedding cake, the guests sauntered through the moonlight to the Platt home, where the wedding gifts were on display.

Still on the subject of the wedding, out of the fullness of our heart we must say something about that handsome bridegroom. After shaking hands with him we knew why he has been the toast of Monroe these many months. Friends have been fighting among themselves for the pleasure of entertaining him when he made those numerous visits to Monroe. No one but a natural born diplomat could have stepped from one invitation to another so gracefully.

Forgive us if we gossip with a hop, skip and jump. During the past week we have gleaned the following facts:

A certain Monroe boy is marking time, impatiently, until a Shreveport girl names the day. She is a college senior and can't study and he is a young professional man who can't work, so you can expect to hear wedding bells any day now.

Brunswig Sholars, the versatile, sat on the floor in the radiance of his own hearth fire with his supper guests gathered around him when he played host last week.

A popular couple who were very much in love a few years ago but were separated by a rift in the clouds are seen together again and there seems to be a silver lining to that particular cloud.

We hope so at least, as they are both favorites of ours.

Maud Stubbs was milling around at the Platt-Dubuisson nuptial event in a blue gown with blue sequins collar and cuffs just the color of her beautiful eyes.

Little Carol Layton, the very essence of sweetness and grace, was dancing around on her toes at the wedding—evidently she has inherited the talent of her lovely mother.

Mary Stuart Kellogg, that lovely blonde daughter of Louise Kellogg's, is going to be one of the belles of Monroe, unless our predictions go wrong—she still wears those long curls but possesses the charm, the poise and the interest in life of a debutante.

Mrs. R. W. O'Donnell was looking unusually charming the other night in a blue gown with silver roses at her throat.

Dorothy Sholars, gracious and vivacious, and so delightfully genuine, was wearing a smart brown taffeta evening coat with beige lace frock at the wedding Wednesday night.

Saw J. H. Trousdale hurrying under the big top at the circus the other afternoon with his two grandchildren in tow—it was difficult to decide which one of the trio was the most interested.

The Toby Bancrofts were out with their little brood—and such handsome children they are. It took the big strong arm of the nurse, however, to keep Ochiltree from being trampled underfoot.

Bano Lamkin was munching peanuts with much gusto when we found him leaning over the ropes that hedged in the elephants.

Dell Paine is wearing a perfectly stunning black outfit these days—the hat is a perfect honey and very becoming.

Once upon a time the social calendar was a conglomeration of superfluous affairs that took one hither and yon—dates with the dress maker, parties galore, a few gentle gestures toward charity and a polite interest in sports and things cultural. The consequences were a successful marriage—and jolly well earned. Today's society woman is no idle dreamer but goes about her business with purposeful plans of accomplishment, letting the wedding bells ring as they will. Out for jobs, they go to shops, newspaper offices and business offices—and not always just for a lark, but more often with the pay check the chief objective. Little they care if father is a banker or broker, or mother a social grand dame. The finishing school, college and sorority prestige, the social register and family traditions are but stepping stones toward a bigger and better job. Just peek around at some of our young ladies whose names are listed on payrolls.

Viola Perkins breezed into town the other day from Texas, where she has been filling a man's size job for two years. She is quite the most enthusiastic young business woman we have seen in many a day. Her son, Tommy, being a favorite of ours, we naturally were anxious of news of him. Viola produced a picture that told louder than words of his outlook on life. The same happy, smiling face looked out at us, and that same mop of curly hair that will make him a heart breaker in years to come.

Another Monroe girl who stepped out and landed a nice big job and incidentally a husband in Washington was Mary Lee Sullivan, or rather Mary Lee Hancock, as she is now known. We can look forward to meeting the man of her choice during the holidays.

Mrs. C. W. Oseland's beautiful lyric soprano voice was heard in "In My Garden," by Ida Belle Firestone. Mrs. Joseph Monroe accompanied Mrs. Oseland.

Mrs. Marvin Johnson's contribution to the evening's pleasures was "Moments Musical" by Schubert.

Closing the musical program was a lovely vocal duet beautifully rendered by Mrs. Ben Anders and Mrs. J. P. Royce, with Mrs. P. A. Poag as accompanist.

A social hour, a delightful feature of these monthly meetings, followed. The guests were invited into the candle-lit dining room where assorted sandwiches, luscious cakes and hot chocolate were served. P.-T. A. Meeting Held

During the second meeting of the Sherrouse P.-T. A. of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers, plans for a two-week membership drive were perfected, personal contact with every parent being the objective of the chairman, Mrs. John McCarthy.

Mrs. J. E. Pope, publications chairman, reported promise of a splendid subscription to both the national and state magazines.

Publicity, under Mrs. M. Burgess, is being stressed this year, especially through a correspondence course to be conducted by Mrs. Edward Brown. A larger number than usual has expressed the desire to take this interesting subject.

Finance presented its customary problem. However, with determined spirit, it will be solved somehow.

Visitor Entertained

Mrs. Viola Perkins of Brownwood, Texas, a former resident of this city and a great favorite socially has been much feted during her visit in the home of Mrs. Newton Knowles.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Knowles gathered old friends together for an afternoon of bridge complimentary to Mrs. Perkins. Beautiful flowers, lovely bridge gifts, the serving of a luscious sea food course and the presence of Mrs. Perkins all conspired to render the afternoon exceptionally delightful.

Mrs. B. D. Hodges and Mrs. Samuel Ivy entertained at bridge at the home of Mrs. Ivy Thursday afternoon and Mrs. B. Braswell's bridge on Friday brought a few congenials together, with Mrs. Perkins the central figure. Mrs. William Harper has planned a small bridge affair for Tuesday.

Luncheons and other affairs of an informal nature have been planned for each day of Mrs. Perkins' visit in the city.

Course On Books

A course on books and their authors will be offered Louisiana clubwomen by the general extension division of Louisiana State university, it was announced Saturday by extension course leaders. The course to consist of 12 lectures will be conducted by Miss Annette Duchein of Baton Rouge and will be open to women's clubs throughout Louisiana.

Organized through women's groups, the classes will meet once a week for three months in their respective towns to hear the lictures given by Miss Duchein. On completion of the initial course on "Writers of the South," courses are being planned in contemporary American literature as well as on the literature of England, Europe and the East.

Certificates will be awarded persons completing the course. The lectures will be given before any club which organizes a class of 35 and full information may be obtained by writing Miss Duchein at the general extension division of the university in Baton Rouge.

Miss Duchein is a graduate of L. S. U., having received her B. A. degree in 1927. She spent two years in New York and attended the school of journalism at Columbia university, receiving her degree of bachelor of journalism. While at Columbia, she studied contemporary novelists with Carl van Doren, widely known critic, and with John Erskine, novelist.

While in New York Miss Duchein studied book reviewing with Allen St. Clair Wills, associate editor of the New York Times book section. She wrote special feature stories for the New York Herald Tribune and returned to Louisiana to become reporter and feature writer for the Times-Picayune. While holding this position she reviewed books for "Literature and Less" and became well acquainted with Louisiana's contemporary writers.

In 1932, Miss Duchein was added to the staff of L. S. U., winning a scholarship in journalism. She received her master of arts degree in 1933 and then served as editorial assistant and publicity director of the Southwest Review and later for the Southern Review.

The course which she will conduct is designed to give Louisiana women additional information on books and their authors and to stimulate group discussions on this topic.

Miss Duchein's itinerary is now being arranged and clubs desiring her services are invited to write her at the university. She will arrange book reviews for special programs and will arrange courses of study for book clubs requesting them.

The course has been endorsed by President James Monroe Smith of the university and by Mrs. Ralph H. Agate, president of the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs.

The topic for the lecture course was selected because the south is entering upon a literary renaissance, Miss Duchein points out, and because southerners are anxious to learn about the trend in southern literature.

The work of outstanding southern authors will be discussed and reviews of current novels will be given by Miss Duchein at the weekly meetings of the classes.

Sandwich Spread

Families have a way of being hungry, even on Sunday night after the housewife has exhausted her full supply of culinary ambition on a big noonday dinner. A well stocked pantry that has a shelf reserved for a variety of sandwich spreads is the answer on such an occasion, suggests Mrs. Ruby Mendenhall Smith, extension economist in food preservation, University of Arkansas.

Vegetables from fall gardens offer possibilities for wholesome and delicious sandwich spreads. Mrs. Smith suggests an unusual recipe for a spread made of garden products.

For sweet vegetable sandwich spread, ten medium size cucumbers, the same number of medium size carrots, and two each of medium size sweet red peppers and sweet green peppers are required. Run all vegetables through a food chopped. Sprinkle two tablespoonfuls of salt over the ground vegetables, cover with vinegar, and let stand over night.

Next morning drain, cover with water and scald the vegetables, and then drain well. Mix together three tablespoonfuls of flour and three-fourths cup of sugar and one teaspoonful of ground mustard. Add eight tablespoons of butter, four well beaten eggs, and one pint of weak vinegar. Cook until the mixture is smooth and thick. Add one cup of sweet cream and allow to simmer five minutes, then pour the mixture over the vegetables. Mix thoroughly, heat to the boiling point, and boil five minutes. Pack boiling hot into sterilized pint jars, seal, and process fifteen minutes at simmering temperature in a hot water bath.

Fashion Asks, 'Italian Or Ethiopian?' And You Get Choice In New Frocks

By Millie Hudson

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A review of the couture showings indicates fashions for 1936 are taking on a topical note, "Italian versus Ethiopian."

The Italian influence is inspired by Florentine paintings of the 15th century and by the exhibition of Italian Renaissance paintings in Paris.

What is termed the Ethiopian influence, indicated by clothes quasi-military in type much braided and befrogged, reminiscent of the more picturesque Ethiopian uniforms. This, however, is moxed with an oriental, or rather "near-east," influence that crops up in many models.

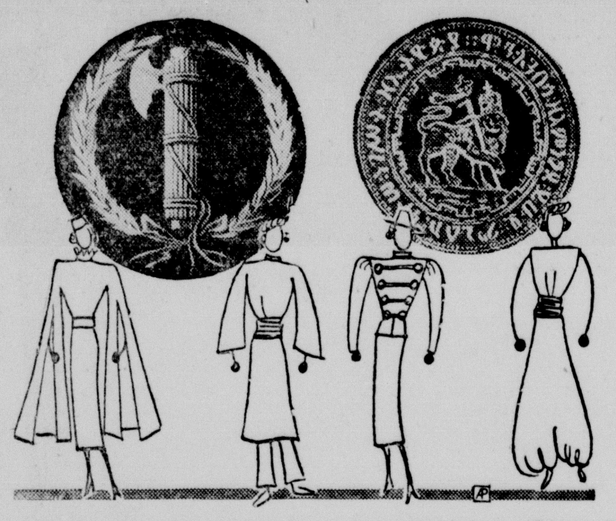
Period clothes from Renaissance paintings cannot be merely copied for the active modern woman who has to go places. The new influences appear in subtle changes of line and cut, in Renaissance colorings, the use of trimmings an dbraidings, and in gilt and be-jewelled belts and accessories.

The more formal frocks take on the chaste, flowing lines of fifteenth century Italy, whereas day clothes mimic glamorous military effects.

For afternoons or quiet evening wear there are Franciscan monk robes with monastic rope girdles.

Sweaters and knitted garments are influenced in colorings both by Italian and Ethiopian sources. Delustred synthetic silk is used for hand and machine knitting.

Sports ensembles sometimes have three-quarter to five-eighth length coats hanging from the shoulders on loose lines with side fullness. Some coats and suits are quite military looking, some cloaks have ecclesiastical hoods, and some dresses and coats are made entirely of fine pleated material.



The new modes are ever topical and whether it's "Italian or Ethiopian" merely is a matter of taste for 1936. The two sketches at left show how the Italian influence is making itself felt in the new fashions, while two right show use of the Ethiopian theme with a touch of the "Near East."

Sleeves are significant with the fullness at the top, and are either gathered into the wrist or left loose—the "best" new sleeve is knee length! Shoulders are widened, often padded. Waists are in the natural position, or a shade higher.

The chief colors are rich Florentine reds, rouge "Gallois," royal blue, deep wine, imperial violet, navy, beige, steel grey, black and "chocolate paper." Also one or two faded false shades, such as old blue, old green and dull purple are used.

Fancy gadgets are medieval jewelled belts, silver and gold coin trimmings, leather belts worked with coronets, cocks, padlocks and keys, gold intaglio belts in Italian designs, and turreted and heraldic belts with bracelets to match.

Miss Elisabeth Platt Becomes Bride Of John F. Dubuisson

Wedding Is Solemnized At Layton Place Here

Ceremony Performed By Father Vandegaer; Miss Ann Platt Sister's Attendant; Edward Dubuisson Best Man

When the twilight shadows deepened, friends gathered in the spacious hall at Layton place, ancestral home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Layton, Wednesday evening, October the ninth, for the wedding of Miss Elisabeth Tucker Platt, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Warren Platt of this city, and Mr. John Francis Dubuisson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Dubuisson of Opelousas. Reverend Father N. F. Vandegaer, pastor of St. Matthew's Catholic church, officiated.

In the lower hallway, old Spanish water jars of vivid hue supported tall palms and grasses. Entrance to the hall on the second floor, where the ceremony was performed, was also marked by immense urns overflowing with golden chrysanthemums.

Handsome, antique, floor-length mirrors reflected myriad cathedral tapers burning in white candelabra in aisle formation in the center of the hall. Tall crystal floor urns overflowing with pale gold chrysanthemums were also reflected in a gilt framed mirror of regal proportions that formed the background. Southern smilax, from the gardens of the Layton place, trailed its sinuous length along the lofty ceiling and hung in graceful festoons from the chandeliers.

Old friends, many of whom were present when the bride's parents walked down the same hall to the strains of Lohengrin, mingled on this occasion and enjoyed meeting the bridegroom's distinguished parents and other members of the Dubuisson family.

Miss Ann Platt, sister of the bride and her only attendant, wore a picturesque model of turquoise blue velvet, entrain and of classic design. She carried a sheaf of pale gold chrysanthemums. Mr. Edward Dubuisson acted in the capacity of best man.

The bride, walking with her father, who gave her in marriage, wore a typical wedding gown of ivory duchess satin of classic simplicity. The neck was square cut and the sleeves long and tight with tiny satin buttons to the elbow. The skirt molded the figure and fell in a court train. A short veil of illusion, caught to the hair cap effect with orange blossoms, was worn over the handsome veil of Renaissance lace that fell in billowy folds far beyond the hemline of the skirt. Her arm bouquet was fashioned of waxen bride's roses and valley lilies, caught with silver tulle.

A reception following the ceremony, permitted friends to press forward and offer their felicitations. The bride's mother extended courtesies in a black Princess lace model and the bridegroom's mother wore a handsome garnet velvet model. Misses Rosemary and Belle Dubuisson, the bridegroom's sisters, handsomely gowned, were also introduced. Mrs. Robert Layton wore a purple and orchid moire evening frock and Mrs. J. B. Vaughan, who assisted in the courtesies, wore a white satin and black lace evening frock. Present also were several members of the younger set, who assisted in the serving of iced frappe and individual wedding cakes. They were Misses Jean Dryburgh, Ellen Kent Millsaps, Leigh Russell, Adelia Sandel, Elizabeth Kennedy and Betty Reily and Mrs. Charles Womack and Mrs. James Trousdale.

The wedding cake, a handsome confection embossed in white with a spray of pink crystalized roses across the flat surface, was placed at one end of the long table overlaid with Chinese lace and embroidery. A mound of pink roses and graceful sprays of rose of Montana centered the table. Tall white tapers in silver candlesticks gleamed along the board. The bride cut the wedding cake and then changed her bridal raiment for a smart tailleur of olive green wool with three-quarter length coat. Accessories of brown were worn.

Following a honeymoon on the coast, Mr. and Mrs. Dubuisson will be at home in Opelousas, where Mr. Dubuisson is associated with his father in the practice of law. He attended Notre Dame university, South Bend, Indiana, and Louisiana State university, Baton Rouge, and was graduated from the law school of Tulane university, New Orleans. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. Mr. Dubuisson is a member of an aristocratic old southern family, all of whom have been prominently identified with the civic life of south Louisiana.

Mrs. Dubuisson, a young woman of culture and unusual charm, was born and reared in this city. She attended Hollins college, Hollins, Virginia, and was graduated from Louisiana State university. For the past two years she has been a member of the Ouachita Parish grammar school faculty. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority. She is also a member of the Junior Charity league.

Beautiful wedding gifts were showered upon this popular young couple, prominent among them being a chest of flat silver, silver goblets and coffee services and a set of Colonial Wedgewood china. Other articles of crystal and china and bric-a-brac were noted.

Switzer-Patterson

A marriage that came as a complete surprise to their many friends of Shreveport and Monroe, was that of Miss Doris Louise Patterson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Patterson of Monroe, and Mr. Fred A. Switzer, also of Monroe. The wedding took place in Shreveport on Monday evening, September 23, at 9 o'clock at the Park Avenue Methodist parsonage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Ware.

Mrs. Switzer finished high school at Mooringsport, later moving to Monroe, where she finished at the Northeast Center of L. S. U. and from the Monroe Commercial college, and for the past nine months has been employed by a Shreveport attorney.

Mr. and Mrs. Switzer will at present live in Vivian, where Mr. Switzer has been transferred by the United Gas company.

Rundell-Simmons

Of interest to friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Marguerite Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Simmons, and Mr. E. Rundell of Delhi, September the twenty-seventh, at the Baptist church parsonage in Rayville, with the pastor, Reverend E. N. Weaver, officiating.

The bride's attendant was Miss Irma McKinnis of Delhi. Mr. M. Thornton served in the capacity of best man.

The bride has been a student at L. P. I. in Ruston for the past two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Rundell will make their home in Delhi.

Mrs. Benjamin W. Kernan completed a pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. Allain Freret and returned to her home in New Orleans last week. She was accompanied by Mrs. P. Coquille, who enjoyed a visit in the home of her sister, Mrs. E. Tew.

George Breard, student at L. S. U., is spending the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Breard.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Marsala are receiving the congratulations of friends over the arrival of a son, Vincent Carnelo, at the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic on the seventh of October. Mrs. Marsala was formerly Miss Rosalee Varrino of Bastrop.

Mrs. C. E. Slagle and Mrs. Horace Wilkinson, Jr., of Port Allen and Mrs. W. E. Jones of Homer were guests in the home of Mrs. Elmer Slagle and Mrs. F. P. Stubbs on Friday. They were en route to St. Louis and points in Iowa, where they will be the guests of relatives for a few weeks.

Miss Eloise Goyne has improved sufficiently from a recent operation at St. Francis sanitarium to receive her friends. Her room number is 232.

Friends will regret to learn that Mrs. L. A. Austin is suffering an attack of malarial fever at her home, 712 North Fourth street, West Monroe.

Mrs. Henry Guerriero and infant son have left St. Francis sanitarium and are now at home to their friends at their home on M street.

People everywhere are coming to think in terms of tree preservation and to learn and practice ordinary caution in the woods, as typical Canadians have long done. It is coming to be the regular thing, instead of the exception, in most communities, for people starting fires among the trees, for picnics or other purposes, to safeguard them from being blown by the wind and to put them out completely before leaving. This reform alone, in the long run, to a nation traditionally careless of its natural wealth, might be worth more than the forest relief employment has cost.

Mr. and Mrs. Albin Lassiter are receiving the congratulations of friends over the arrival of their first child, a splendid son, at St. Francis sanitarium on the twelfth of October.

Miss Elisabeth Platt Becomes Bride Of John F. Dubuisson

Wedding Is Solemnized At Layton Place Here

Ceremony Performed By Father Vandegaer; Miss Ann Platt Sister's Attendant; Edward Dubuisson Best Man

When the twilight shadows deepened, friends gathered in the spacious hall at Layton place, ancestral home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Layton, Wednesday evening, October the ninth, for the wedding of Miss Elisabeth Tucker Platt, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Warren Platt of this city, and Mr. John Francis Dubuisson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Dubuisson of Opelousas. Reverend Father N. F. Vandegaer, pastor of St. Matthew's Catholic church, officiated.

In the lower hallway, old Spanish water jars of vivid hue supported tall palms and grasses. Entrance to the hall on the second floor, where the ceremony was performed, was also marked by immense urns overflowing with golden chrysanthemums.

Handsome, antique, floor-length mirrors reflected myriad cathedral tapers burning in white candelabra in aisle formation in the center of the hall. Tall crystal floor urns overflowing with pale gold chrysanthemums were also reflected in a gilt framed mirror of regal proportions that formed the background. Southern smilax, from the gardens of the Layton place, trailed its sinuous length along the lofty ceiling and hung in graceful festoons from the chandeliers.

Old friends, many of whom were present when the bride's parents walked down the same hall to the strains of Lohengrin, mingled on this occasion and enjoyed meeting the bridegroom's distinguished parents and other members of the Dubuisson family.

Mr. Don Brittenmoser, pianist, and Miss Eileen McKinnon, violinist, rendered a pre-nuptial concert and, at the appointed hour, rendered the wedding march.

Miss Ann Platt, sister of the bride and her only attendant, wore a picturesque model of turquoise blue velvet, entrain and of classic design. She carried a sheaf of pale gold chrysanthemums. Mr. Edward Dubuisson acted in the capacity of best man.

The bride, walking with her father, who gave her in marriage, wore a typical wedding gown of ivory duchess satin of classic simplicity. The neck was square cut and the sleeves long and tight with tiny satin buttons to the elbow. The skirt molded the figure and fell in a court train. A short veil of illusion, caught to the hair cap effect with orange blossoms, was worn over the handsome veil of Renaissance lace that fell in billowy folds far beyond the hemline of the skirt. Her arm bouquet was fashioned of waxen bride's roses and valley lilies, caught with silver tulle.

A reception following the ceremony, permitted friends to press forward and offer their felicitations. The bride's mother extended courtesies in a black Princess lace model and the bridegroom's mother wore a handsome garnet velvet model. Misses Rosemary and Belle Dubuisson, the bridegroom's sisters, handsomely gowned, were also introduced. Mrs. Robert Layton wore a purple and orchid moire evening frock and Mrs. J. B. Vaughan, who assisted in the courtesies, wore a white satin and black lace evening frock. Present also were several members of the younger set, who assisted in the serving of iced frappe and individual wedding cakes. They were Misses Jean Dryburgh, Ellen Kent Millsaps, Leigh Russell, Adelia Sandel, Elizabeth Kennedy and Betty Reily and Mrs. Charles Womack and Mrs. James Trousdale.

The wedding cake, a handsome confection embossed in white with a spray of pink crystalized roses across the flat surface, was placed at one end of the long table overlaid with Chinese lace and embroidery. A mound of pink roses and graceful sprays of rose of Montana centered the table. Tall white tapers in silver candlesticks gleamed along the board. The bride cut the wedding cake and then changed her bridal raiment for a smart tailleur of olive green wool with three-quarter length coat. Accessories of brown were worn.

Following a honeymoon on the coast, Mr. and Mrs. Dubuisson will be at home in Opelousas, where Mr. Dubuisson is associated with his father in the practice of law. He attended Notre Dame university, South Bend, Indiana, and Louisiana State university, Baton Rouge, and was graduated from the law school of Tulane university, New Orleans. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. Mr. Dubuisson is a member of an aristocratic old southern family, all of whom have been prominently identified with the civic life of south Louisiana.

Mrs. Dubuisson, a young woman of culture and unusual charm, was born and reared in this city. She attended Hollins college, Hollins, Virginia, and was graduated from Louisiana State university. For the past two years she has been a member of the Ouachita Parish grammar school faculty. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority. She is also a member of the Junior Charity league.

Beautiful wedding gifts were showered upon this popular young couple, prominent among them being a chest of flat silver, silver goblets and coffee services and a set of Colonial Wedgewood china. Other articles of crystal and china and bric-a-brac were noted.

Switzer-Patterson

A marriage that came as a complete surprise to their many friends of Shreveport and Monroe, was that of Miss Doris Louise Patterson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Patterson of Monroe, and Mr. Fred A. Switzer, also of Monroe. The wedding took place in Shreveport on Monday evening, September 23, at 9 o'clock at the Park Avenue Methodist parsonage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Ware.

Mrs. Switzer finished high school at Mooringsport, later moving to Monroe, where she finished at the Northeast Center of L. S. U. and from the Monroe Commercial college, and for the past nine months has been employed by a Shreveport attorney.

Mr. and Mrs. Switzer will at present live in Vivian, where Mr. Switzer has been transferred by the United Gas company.

Of interest to friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Marguerite Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Simmons, and Mr. E. Rundell of Delhi, September the twenty-seventh, at the Baptist church parsonage in Rayville, with the pastor, Reverend E. N. Weaver, officiating.

The bride's attendant was Miss Irma McKinnis of Delhi. Mr. M. Thornton served in the capacity of best man.

The bride has been a student at L. P. I. in Ruston for the past two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Rundell will make their home in Delhi.

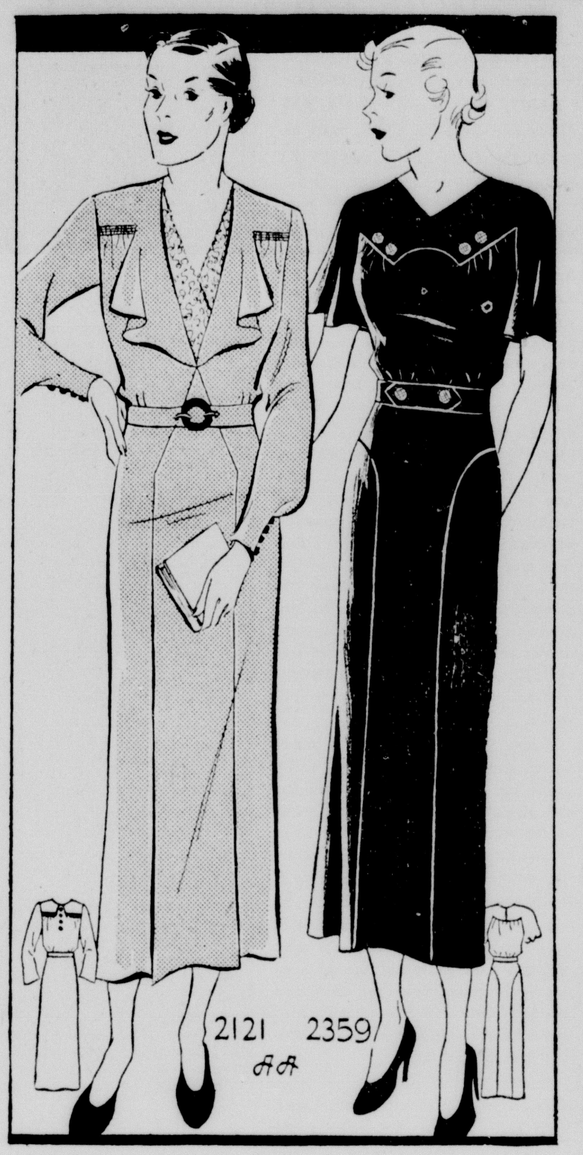
Soft Lines Give Appeal



PATTERNS 2121 AND 2359

Soft, flattering lines and feminine "appeal" are topics of common interest when a size "sixteen" walks hand in hand with a "forty-six." Pattern 2121, of soft dull crepe or satin, with a dainty lace inset, shows the heavier figure a means to slim perfection in its tapering V-neckline, concealing jabot, and slenderizing skirt panel. And pattern 2359, appealing by its utter simplicity, has graceful sleeves cut in one with the deep yoke. No matter what your measurements, you'll look a "slim, young thing" in this smooth "softie" of lustrous satin, or surface-interest crepe, highlighted with sparkling buttons.

Pattern 2121 is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3 3-4 yards 39 inch fabric and 1-2 yard 27 inch lace. Price 15c.

Pattern 2359 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1-2 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coin or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern. THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Important to send for your NEW ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK FOR FALL AND WINTER! It pictures the newest styles and glorious new fabrics and shows how you can outfit yourself and family—easily and inexpensively. Gives pattern-designs for lovely gifts, and tells how to look more charming by suiting your clothes and accessories to your own personality. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

October Creates Longing In Feminine Heart For Clothes

Big Variety Of Color Combinations Offered

Autumn Hues Are Matched By Attires Seen In Football Stadiums; Suggestions Made On Proper Dressing

October, with its golden promise of rich harvest yield and that delicious, indescribable something in the air that stirs us to activity, also creates a longing for clothes in every feminine heart.

Cheers of the football fans resounding from the sunny shores of Louisiana to the frosty air of Lake Michigan remind us that it is the feminine fans who create the color in the grandstands. They match the chromatics of autumn in their sports attire. Add to these the expected football hues that are never unfaded—the tree greens, the bronzy browns, the gay and somber variations of red with blue from soldier red with French blue to grayish blues with ox-blood and you have fashion's new palette for sportswear.

From these colors you are to choose the tweed for your suit, the felt or velours for your hat, the bucko for your shoes, the leather for your bag, the suede for your gloves and the yarn for your sweaters. May the best girl win!

Soft, rich colors are appropriate for town. Bright colors are right for the country.

Color contrast carried out to the letter in every accessory is monotonous. You can always spot the amateur by her wine and blue tweed suit, her wine hat, her wine shoes, her wine gloves, her wine bag. Too obvious! The champion springs the unexpected, hardest to achieve and is applauded. Her suit may also be wine and blue tweed. Her shoes and, yes, her hose, too, may be wine this year. But her hat will be a rich blue that makes her eyes deepen, and her bag and belt will be natural saddle leather. Not to be appraised in one glance.

And in New York, where many of the designers are sportswomen, we find plum with light blue, bright green suede with mixture woolen; red and navy with soft blue; blue accenting garnet corduroy; lots of gray jersey, often pleated, and black jersey worn with "crottle" gloves.

You might as well admit at the start that tweeds are indispensable not only for strictly country wear but for all day, for town and for travel as well. Now that the accessory makers have become so well acquainted with them the color game takes on a new thrill. Make the most of the grandest color season we have ever known! Pick your favorites early, and wear them!

The younger crowd have been bewitched by velveteen. They are wearing any amount of it, and in lovely warm shades with metal gadgets or wooden ones by way of buckles and buttons. These are among the simple things one is finding to their liking in a world gone mad over elaborate ones. "Simple" draperies have become most complicated. These seem, in many instances, to have got out of hand.

There's no doubt about the success of the brief fur garment, be it cape or jacket, or about the success of coats that are free from the shoulder, and may be worn with or without a belt. There is no doubt of the success of coats with snug, not overly abundant, collars. As a contradiction to this there are other coats with rippling revers or straight ones, and coats with enormous collars. But, after all, one has one's choice.

Repeal Given Credit

Repeal, and the consequent escape of convivial parties from the stuffy speakeasy to the spacious hotel or restaurant is the cause of the new elegance in women's dress, according to Walter Plunkett, Hollywood studio designer.

Woman's environment, particularly the background of her social activities, guides her choice of dress, Plunkett declares. And so, in 1935, smart women again feel the urge to wear the jeweled tiaras and "dog collars" which once were the sartorial requisites for dining at fashionable restaurants.

In addition to that, they go back into history to give current styles an even greater grandeur than the prewar fashions. They borrow the draperies of the Greeks, the rich fabrics of the Medes and Persians, and the dazzling jewels and warm, rich colors of the Renaissance.

Effective dress demands that all these rich fabrics and jewels be used discreetly, Plunkett insists. He illustrates his point with reference to the costumes designed by him for Heather Angel, Margot Graham, and Rosamond Pinchot to wear in "The Three Musketeers."

"The heavy gold baroque jewelry set with precious stones, as worn in this picture, might well be used as single pieces to adorn a simple daytime dress or evening gown," Plunkett suggests. "Large brooches, pendants, and rings, jeweled ferrets at the tips of the sashes, lacings, slashed sleeves, flared gauntlets, peplum coats, and heavy, luscious Venice or Brussels lace, all from the period of the three musketeers, are excellent accents in modern clothes, which already are being adapted and adopted by well dressed American women."

If his costumes in "The Three Musketeers" give fresh impetus to the trend toward elegance it will not be the first time Plunkett has influenced American styles. The gowns he created for Katharine Hepburn to wear in "Little Women" were a strong stimulant to the recent enthusiasm for rustling taffetas and Victorian bustles and bodices.

Drapery Sweeps Into Style Pageant With Hints Of Old Greece And Egypt

By Adelaide Kerr

(Associated Press Fashion Editor)

PARIS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Greek goddesses and Egyptian sirens have inspired the Paris evening gowns for 1936.

Drapery is the watchword. It is everywhere—veiling shoulders, molding hips, flowing backward in sculptured folds and making some of the most picturesque gowns the fashion world has created since the war. Every designer has used it in his own fashion, working with the soft crepes, chiffons, velvets and lames which best lend themselves to the molded effect.

Maggy Rouff throws great folds of velvet over shoulders to fall softly down the front. Lanvin favors the soft straight folds seen in the robes of Renaissance saints and Molyneux concentrates horizontal shirring down the center seam of a gown until it molds the figure like a glove.

Despite their variation, the draperies have two things in common—(1) most of them tend to reveal the lines of the figure rather than veil them and (2) they are the most complicated pieces of dressmaking Paris has produced in many a day.

Besides the draped effects Paris shows a few full-skirted gowns with fairly low decolletes and rather close fitting bodices and a number of long-sleeved dinner gowns inspired by the Rennaissance.

Paris is using more drapery this year than in all the past 10 years put together. Schiaparelli drapes the skirt of this shimmering wine red satin up in front to reveal the light blue satin evening trousers worn instead of a petticoat. The mannequin carries the new evening mask with red leather eyelashes mounted on a gilded stick and wears her hair in a gold mesh net.

October Creates Longing In Feminine Heart For Clothes

Big Variety Of Color Combinations Offered

October, with its golden promise of rich harvest yield and that delicious, indescribable something in the air that stirs us to activity, also creates a longing for clothes in every feminine heart.

Cheers of the football fans resounding from the sunny shores of Louisiana to the frosty air of Lake Michigan remind us that it is the feminine fans who create the color in the grandstands. They match the chromatics of autumn in their sports attire. Add to these the expected football hues that are never unfaded—the tree greens, the bronzy browns, the gay and somber variations of red with blue from soldier red with French blue to grayish blues with ox-blood and you have fashion's new palette for sportswear.

From these colors you are to choose the tweed for your suit, the felt or velours for your hat, the bucko for your shoes, the leather for your bag, the suede for your gloves and the yarn for your sweaters. May the best girl win!

Assuming that we're all a bit out of practice after a summer of pastels, let's review a few of the rules for the game:

Two colors are more interesting than one and safer than three.

Soft, rich colors are appropriate for town. Bright colors are right for the country.

Color contrast carried out to the letter in every accessory is monotonous. You can always spot the amateur by her wine and blue tweed suit, her wine hat, her wine shoes, her wine gloves, her wine bag. Too obvious! The champion springs the unexpected, hardest to achieve and is applauded. Her suit may also be wine and blue tweed. Her shoes and, yes, her hose, too, may be wine this year. But her hat will be a rich blue that makes her eyes deepen, and her bag and belt will be natural saddle leather. Not to be appraised in one glance.

Peek at a few of the answers: Vionnet combines a mixed tweed jacket and a burnt sienna skirt; Schiaparelli, soldier red and French blue in a two-piece woolen; Digby Morton in London combines electric blue and deep violet; Molyneux, wine with green tweed for the country.

And in New York, where many of the designers are sportswomen, we find plum with light blue, bright green suede with mixture woolen; red and navy with soft blue; blue accenting garnet corduroy; lots of gray jersey, often pleated, and black jersey worn with "crottle" gloves.

You might as well admit at the start that tweeds are indispensable not only for strictly country wear but for all day, for town and for travel as well. Now that the accessory makers have become so well acquainted with them the color game takes on a new thrill. Make the most of the grandest color season we have ever known! Pick your favorites early, and wear them!

The younger crowd have been bewitched by velveteen. They are wearing any amount of it, and in lovely warm shades with metal gadgets or wooden ones by way of buckles and buttons. These are among the simple things one is finding to their liking in a world gone mad over elaborate ones. "Simple" draperies have become most complicated. These seem, in many instances, to have got out of hand.

There's no doubt about the success of the brief fur garment, be it cape or jacket, or about the success of coats that are free from the shoulder, and may be worn with or without a belt. There is no doubt of the success of coats with snug, not overly abundant, collars. As a contrediction to this there are other coats with rippling revers or straight ones, and coats with enormous collars. But, after all, one has one's choice.

Repeal Given Credit

Repeal, and the consequent escape of convivial parties from the stuffy speakeasy to the spacious hotel or restaurant is the cause of the new elegance in women's dress, according to Walter Plunkett, Hollywood studio designer.

Woman's environment, particularly the background of her social activities, guides her choice of dress, Plunkett declares. And so, in 1935, smart women again feel the urge to wear the jeweled tiaras and "dog collars" which once were the sartorial requisites for dining at fashionable restaurants.

In addition to that, they go back into history to give current styles an even greater grandeur than the prewar fashions. They borrow the draperies of the Greeks, the rich fabrics of the Medes and Persians, and the dazzling jewels and warm, rich colors of the Renaissance.

Effective dress demands that all these rich fabrics and jewels be used discreetly, Plunkett insists. He illustrates his point with reference to the costumes designed by him for Heather Angel, Margot Graham, and Rosamond Pinchot to wear in "The Three Musketeers."

"The heavy gold baroque jewelry set with precious stones, as worn in this picture, might well be used as single pieces to adorn a simple daytime dress or evening gown," Plunkett suggests. "Large brooches, pendants, and rings, jeweled ferrets at the tips of the sashes, lacings, slashed sleeves, flared gauntlets, peplum coats, and heavy, luscious Venice or Brussels lace, all from the period of the three musketeers, are excellent accents in modern clothes, which already are being adapted and adopted by well dressed American women."

If his costumes in "The Three Musketeers" give fresh impetus to the trend toward elegance it will not be the first time Plunkett has influenced American styles. The gowns he created for Katharine Hepburn to wear in "Little Women" were a strong stimulant to the recent enthusiasm for rustling taffetas and Victorian bustles and bodices.

Drapery Sweeps Into Style Pageant With Hints Of Old Greece And Egypt

By Adelaide Kerr
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)

PARIS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Greek goddesses and Egyptian sirens have inspired the Paris evening gowns for 1936.

Drapery is the watchword. It is everywhere—veiling shoulders, molding hips, flowing backward in sculptured folds and making some of the most picturesque gowns the fashion world has created since the war. Every designer has used it in his own fashion, working with the soft crepes, chiffons, velvets and lames which best lend themselves to the molded effect.

Lelong creates gowns of soft chiffon, with drapery turned back from hemline to shoulder, the whole flowing backward in a fluid effect recalling the figures on Grecian urns. Patou uses crepes to swath the hips and fall in long straight draperies down the front like the figures seen on ancient Egyptian bas reliefs. Schiaparelli drapes shimmering satin around figures, lifting it in front to reveal bright colored satin evening trousers beneath.

Maggy Rouff throws great folds of velvet over shoulders to fall softly down the front. Lanvin favors the soft straight folds seen in the robes of Renaissance saints and Molyneux concentrates horizontal shirring down the center seam of a gown until it molds the figure like a glove.

Despite their variation, the draperies have two things in common—(1) most of them tend to reveal the lines of the figure rather than veil them and (2) they are the most complicated pieces of dressmaking Paris has produced in many a day.

Besides the draped effects Paris shows a few full-skirted gowns with fairly low decolletes and rather close fitting bodices and a number of long-sleeved dinner gowns inspired by the Rennaissance.

Paris is using more drapery this year than in all the past 10 years put together. Schiaparelli drapes the skirt of this shimmering wine red satin up in front to reveal the light blue satin evening trousers worn instead of a petticoat. The mannequin carries the new evening mask with red leather eyelashes mounted on a gilded stick and wears her hair in a gold mesh net.

Joan Crawford Has New Leading Man In 'I Live My Life'

Star's New Picture At Paramount

Brian Aherne Featured Opposite Crawford; Big Cast In Film

JOAN Crawford brings a new kind of picture as well as a new leading man to the Paramount theater this week with her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "I Live My Life."

The story is novel, dramatic and at times uproariously funny. The leading man is Brian Aherne, the distinguished English actor, who with this picture comes into his own as a leading man to be reckoned with.

Aherne is an archeologist in "I Live My Life," as hard-boiled and city-hating as they come. When first he sees the beautiful girl from the yacht in the quiet bay of the Greek island where he has been digging, he's uninterested.

She's obviously rich, and rich girls to him are parasites. When she tells him, however, that she is the owner's secretary, love comes in a rush. Thus begins a romance that rises to all-absorbing proportions.

When, however, the archaeologist follows the girl to New York, discovers that she is in reality the rich man's spoiled daughter, trouble—and laughter—begin.

Miss Crawford has never been more glamorous than in this sprightly, magnificently mounted production. Her Adrian-designed costumes are quieter, yet more stunning than ever before. Interior settings are in exquisite taste, while the out-of-door scenes are as magnificent as only great landscapes and seascapes can be.

Eric Blore, the hilarious waiter of "Gay Divorcee," is now a butler—and a funnier butler never lived, unless he is Arthur Treacher, also prominent in the picture.

The genius which made Director Van Dyke's name famous is apparent in every scene of "I Live My Life"—in its swift pace and true dramatic accent.

These Stars Feature Screen Attractions Here This Week

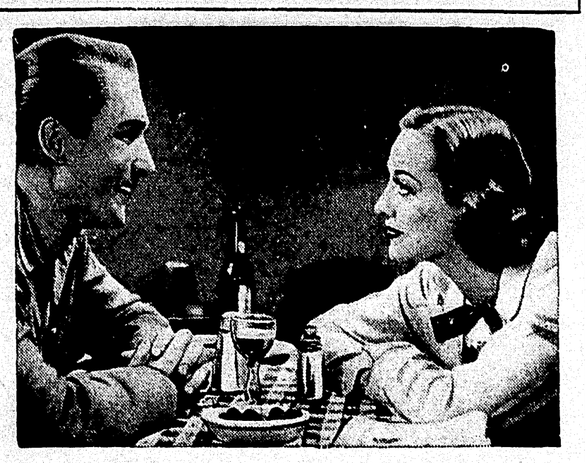
Comedy, pathos and a dramatically powerful story are deftly blended into a picture that for the first time presents the spirit of the circus with all its thrills, in "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," coming to the Paramount theater Thursday and Friday. A new face is presented in Leona Maricle, who was brought from the Broadway stage to make her debut as Wallace Beery's wife. Others of the cast include Jackie Cooper, Spanky McFarland and Henry Stephenson.

The first picture to dramatize the radio amateur hour fad is "Every Night at Eight," coming to the Capitol theater Thursday and Friday, with George Raft in the starring role, Frances Langford, Patsy Kelly, Alice Faye and a set of laugh-provoking amateurs with Walter Catlett acting as master of ceremonies. "Every Night at Eight" is definitely a new idea in musical comedies with six hit tunes.

Sylvia Sidney is the featured player of Paramount's "Accent on Youth," coming to the Paramount theater Tuesday and Wednesday, with other important roles played by Herbert Marshall, Phillip Reed, Holmes Herbert and Astrid Allwyn. "A man is only as old as the girl he loves" is the general theme of the gay comedy situation presented by "Accent on Youth."

W. C. Fields, laugh promoter of the age, reaches the top of his form as a comedian and pantominist in his latest laugh riot, "The Man On the Flying Trapeze," coming to the Capitol theater Wednesday. With his particular gift for comedy given full sway, Fields carries the picture from one uproarious situation into another. He is abetted in his monkeyshines by Mary Brian, as his daughter, Kathleen Howard, as his nagging wife, and his in-laws portrayed by Grady Sutton, Lucien Littlefield and Vera Lewis.

Howard Hughes' first multi-million dollar spectacle, "Hell's Angels," depicting all the fury of aerial combat, and the love of two brothers for a war-time entertainer, plays at the Capitol theater today and Monday. Ben Lyon and James Hall enact the roles of the brothers and the girl in question is Jean Harlow (above).



Joan Crawford, beautifully photographed, lavishly gowned and speaking some of the most sparkling dialogue yet to reach the screen, is at her best in "I Live My Life," the attraction at the Paramount theater today and Monday. Brian Aherne, her new leading man, as a penniless archaeologist, makes his character warm and humorous. Equally stimulating is the supporting cast with Frank Morgan up to his old laugh provoking tricks, Aline MacMahon, Eric Blore and Arthur Treacher.

No shouting preachment for the department of justice . . . but rather a tremendously exciting story of the adventures of one government agent in his campaign to round up an underworld gang describes "Men Without Names," coming to the Capitol theater Tuesday. Fred MacMurray is the principal character enmeshed in exciting adventure and as charming a romance as the screen has told. Lynne Overman is the gentleman listening intently to MacMurray's conversation which more than likely is with Madge Evans.

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Hubbard Keavy

HOLLYWOOD. — Watching the wheels go 'round:

Eric Linden is delivering a speech to a schoolrom full of empty desks (a bit of action for "Ah, Wilderness") and he begins the lines he knows so well very confidently, indeed.

"You read about me in the papers," he says, to the imaginary pupils, "and about what I've done. Well, all I can say is that what I've done has been for the sake of . . ." Embarrassing pause.

"What the heck is it for the sake of?" he asks Director Clarence Brown. "For the sake of humanity in general," prompts Brown. "Let's try it again. . . ."

The schoolroom and the school hall for "Ah, Wilderness" is not your usual movie schoolroom. It is an exact replica of a room that used to be, 30 years ago, in Knoxville, Tenn. When he started the picture, Brown dug up his class annual of "K. H. S." and, from pictures of the school in it, has the class room and the hall reproduced. The desks, the maps, the pictures, the statues and the blackboards are as like those of Knoxville High school in 1905 as painstaking set designers can make them. The period of the story is the same year.

While Fannie Fans

On an adjoining stage, the period is 10 years later, or 1915, and Fannie Brice is doing a fan dance! She is about to be discovered by Flo Ziegfeld who, in the person of William Powell, is very busy on another picture on another stage while Fannie is fanning). Fannie is doing her dance with the aid of an assortment of beefy blondes for a comedy number in "The Great Ziegfeld."

The audience, made up mostly of men, hasn't seen Fanny dancing, actually. The dance is shot and then the reactions of the audience are shot. In the cutting room, audience and entertainers will be fused in such a fashion as to give the impression it all happened simultaneously. So will Ziegfeld's entrance and "discovery" scene, to be shot some days hence, be "cut in" in the same manner.

On Shirley's Set

Next call: The Shirley Temple set. Shirley is resting in her neat blue and white dressing room. John Boles, in all the accoutrements of a southern colonel—except that he is wearing a loud checked sports coat—studies his lines for the next scene in "The Littlest Rebel."

Two dozen others, players and technicians, are grouped around a camera. Something serious, it appears, is delaying production. Well, maybe it's serious. The boys are forming a pool on the Baer-Louis fight!

Hawaii Gives Soo Yong

Soo Yong, 24-year-old Chinese student and actress—and very eye-filling, two—was hired two years ago to play the lead in "The Good Earth." She was in the Hawaiian islands when M. G. M. heard about her. There also was Cecil B. DeMille, making a picture for Paramount. M. G. M. enabled DeMille to make a test of Miss Yong, which he did. As a consequence, Miss Yong was hired. But "The Good Earth" is yet to be filmed and, anyway, when it is, an English cast will make-up for it.

Now, however, Soo Yong is working for Paramount, which originally tested her. She's Mae West's maid in "Klondike Lou."

Soo is working for a Ph. D. in education at the University of California; she has a B. A. from the University of Hawaii and an M. A. from Columbia.

Air Thriller Showing At The Capitol

Harlow Tops Cast In Spectacular Hughes Film, 'Hell's Angels'

MOVING picture critics and audiences are unanimous in the belief that no other picture has ever equalled the daring and breath taking magnitude of Howard Hughes' "Hell's Angels," mighty spectacle and first multi-million dollar talkie produced, that opens a two-day engagement at the Capitol theater today.

The picture will get a gasp from any audience. One cannot sit and watch the thrilling "dog fights" in the air, spectacular crack-ups, the amazing exploits of Baron Von Richtofen's "flying circus," without emotion.

"Hell's Angels" introduced for the first time the platinum blonde star, Jean Harlow, who with Ben Lyon and James Hall, have the featured roles. In addition to the 18 players listed by name in the cast there are some 20 others in minor roles. A triangular romance between Hall, Lyons, and Miss Harlow is enacted against a background of the world conflict. The picture actually shows things as they were at the front during the World war, military critics state. It puts on the screen the things which the gang who flew at the front have been trying to explain for years.

Dubach

The Women's Missionary society of the First Baptist church met recently at the church in a regular business session. A report was made by all officers, after which new officers were elected.

Joan Crawford Has New Leading Man In 'I Live My Life'

Star's New Picture At Paramount

Brian Aherne Featured Opposite Crawford; Big Cast In Film

JOAN Crawford brings a new kind of picture as well as a new leading man to the Paramount theater this week with her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "I Live My Life."

The story is novel, dramatic and at times uproariously funny. The leading man is Brian Aherne, the distinguished English actor, who with this picture comes into his own as a leading man to be reckoned with.

Aherne is an archeologist in "I Live My Life," as hard-boiled and city-hating as they come. When first he sees the beautiful girl from the yacht in the quiet bay of the Greek island where he has been digging, he's uninterested.

She's obviously rich, and rich girls to him are parasites. When she tells him, however, that she is the owner's secretary, love comes in a rush. Thus begins a romance that rises to all-absorbing proportions.

When, however, the archaeologist follows the girl to New York, discovers that she is in reality the rich man's spoiled daughter, trouble—and laughter—begin.

Miss Crawford has never been more glamorous than in this sprightly, magnificently mounted production. Her Adrian-designed costumes are quieter, yet more stunning than ever before. Interior settings are in exquisite taste, while the out-of-door scenes are as magnificent as only great landscapes and seascapes can be.

Supporting the leading players is a superb cast. Frank Morgan is at his fumbling, mumbling best as the well-meaning father.

Aline MacMahon gives a sterling performance as the woman archaeologist who loves her man too much to rob him of his happiness with another woman.

Eric Blore, the hilarious waiter of "Gay Divorcee," is now a butler—and a funnier butler never lived, unless he is Arthur Treacher, also prominent in the picture.

The genius which made Director Van Dyke's name famous is apparent in every scene of "I Live My Life"—in its swift pace and true dramatic accent.

These Stars Feature Screen Attractions Here This Week

Comedy, pathos and a dramatically powerful story are deftly blended into a picture that for the first time presents the spirit of the circus with all its thrills, in "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," coming to the Paramount theater Thursday and Friday. A new face is presented in Leona Maricle, who was brought from the Broadway stage to make her debut as Wallace Beery's wife. Others of the cast include Jackie Cooper, Spanky McFarland and Henry Stephenson.

Sylvia Sidney is the featured player of Paramount's "Accent on Youth," coming to the Paramount theater Tuesday and Wednesday, with other important roles played by Herbert Marshall, Phillip Reed, Holmes Herbert and Astrid Allwyn. "A man is only as old as the girl he loves" is the general theme of the gay comedy situation presented by "Accent on Youth."

Joan Crawford, beautifully photographed, lavishly gowned and speaking some of the most sparkling dialogue yet to reach the screen, is at her best in "I Live My Life," the attraction at the Paramount theater today and Monday. Brian Aherne, her new leading man, as a penniless archaeologist, makes his character warm and humorous. Equally stimulating is the supporting cast with Frank Morgan up to his old laugh provoking tricks, Aline MacMahon, Eric Blore and Arthur Treacher.

The first picture to dramatize the radio amateur hour fad is "Every Night at Eight," coming to the Capitol theater Thursday and Friday, with George Raft in the starring role, Frances Langford, Patsy Kelly, Alice Faye and a set of laugh-provoking amateurs with Walter Catlett acting as master of ceremonies. "Every Night at Eight" is definitely a new idea in musical comedies with six hit tunes.

W. C. Fields, laugh promoter of the age, reaches the top of his form as a comedian and pantomimist in his latest laugh riot, "The Man On the Flying Trapeze," coming to the Capitol theater Wednesday. With his particular gift for comedy given full sway, Fields carries the picture from one uproarious situation into another. He is abetted in his monkeyshines by Mary Brian, as his daughter, Kathleen Howard, as his nagging wife, and his in-laws portrayed by Grady Sutton, Lucien Littlefield and Vera Lewis.

Howard Hughes' first multi-million dollar spectacle, "Hell's Angels," depicting all the fury of aerial combat, and the love of two brothers for a war-time entertainer, plays at the Capitol theater today and Monday. Ben Lyon and James Hall enact the roles of the brothers and the girl in question is Jean Harlow (above).

No shouting preachment for the department of justice . . . but rather a tremendously exciting story of the adventures of one government agent in his campaign to round up an underworld gang describes "Men Without Names," coming to the Capitol theater Tuesday. Fred MacMurray is the principal character enmeshed in exciting adventure and as charming a romance as the screen has told. Lynne Overman is the gentleman listening intently to MacMurray's conversation which more than likely is with Madge Evans.

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Hubbard Keavy

HOLLYWOOD. — Watching the wheels go 'round:

Eric Linden is delivering a speech to a schoolrom full of empty desks (a bit of action for "Ah, Wilderness") and he begins the lines he knows so well very confidently, indeed.

"You read about me in the papers," he says, to the imaginary pupils, "and about what I've done. Well, all I can say is that what I've done has been for the sake of . . ." Embarrassing pause.

"What the heck is it for the sake of?" he asks Director Clarence Brown. "For the sake of humanity in general," prompts Brown. "Let's try it again. . . ."

The schoolroom and the school hall for "Ah, Wilderness" is not your usual movie schoolroom. It is an exact replica of a room that used to be, 30 years ago, in Knoxville, Tenn. When he started the picture, Brown dug up his class annual of "K. H. S." and, from pictures of the school in it, has the class room and the hall reproduced. The desks, the maps, the pictures, the statues and the blackboards are as like those of Knoxville High school in 1905 as painstaking set designers can make them. The period of the story is the same year.

While Fannie Fans

On an adjoining stage, the period is 10 years later, or 1915, and Fannie Brice is doing a fan dance! She is about to be discovered by Flo Ziegfeld who, in the person of William Powell, is very busy on another picture on another stage while Fannie is fanning). Fannie is doing her dance with the aid of an assortment of beefy blondes for a comedy number in "The Great Ziegfeld."

The audience, made up mostly of men, hasn't seen Fanny dancing, actually. The dance is shot and then the reactions of the audience are shot. In the cutting room, audience and entertainers will be fused in such a fashion as to give the impression it all happened simultaneously. So will Ziegfeld's entrance and "discovery" scene, to be shot some days hence, be "cut in" in the same manner.

On Shirley's Set

Next call: The Shirley Temple set. Shirley is resting in her neat blue and white dressing room. John Boles, in all the accoutrements of a southern colonel—except that he is wearing a loud checked sports coat—studies his lines for the next scene in "The Littlest Rebel."

Two dozen others, players and technicians, are grouped around a camera. Something serious, it appears, is delaying production. Well, maybe it's serious. The boys are forming a pool on the Baer-Louis fight!

Hawaii Gives Soo Yong

Soo Yong, 24-year-old Chinese student and actress—and very eye-filling, two—was hired two years ago to play the lead in "The Good Earth." She was in the Hawaiian islands when M. G. M. heard about her. There also was Cecil B. DeMille, making a picture for Paramount. M. G. M. cabled DeMille to make a test of Miss Yong, which he did. As a consequence, Miss Yong was hired. But "The Good Earth" is yet to be filmed and, anyway, when it is, an English cast will make-up for it.

Now, however, Soo Yong is working for Paramount, which originally tested her. She's Mae West's maid in "Klondike Lou."

Soo is working for a Ph. D. in education at the University of California; she has a B. A. from the University of Hawaii and an M. A. from Columbia.

Patricia Ellis has joined the ranks of guests who are asked to sing for their supper, at Hollywood parties. 'Twas her warbling in "Bright Lights" that did it.

Air Thriller Showing At The Capitol

Harlow Tops Cast In Spectacular Hughes Film, 'Hell's Angels'

MOVING picture critics and audiences are unanimous in the belief that no other picture has ever equalled the daring and breath taking magnitude of Howard Hughes' "Hell's Angels," mighty spectacle and first multi-million dollar talkie produced, that opens a two-day engagement at the Capitol theater today.

The picture will get a gasp from any audience. One cannot sit and watch the thrilling "dog fights" in the air, spectacular crack-ups, the amazing exploits of Baron Von Richtofen's "flying circus," without emotion.

"Hell's Angels" introduced for the first time the platinum blonde star, Jean Harlow, who with Ben Lyon and James Hall, have the featured roles. In addition to the 18 players listed by name in the cast there are some 20 others in minor roles. A triangular romance between Hall, Lyons, and Miss Harlow is enacted against a background of the world conflict. The picture actually shows things as they were at the front during the World war, military critics state. It puts on the screen the things which the gang who flew at the front have been trying to explain for years.

More BUILDING Necessary for Entire Nation!

PLAN ASSISTS SMALL OFFICE, SHOP REPAIRS

$50,000 Extension Helps To Meet Competitive Conditions

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Owners of small office buildings with ground floor space for two or more businesses such as drug stores, cigar stands, and the like, will find new opportunity to convert, improve, or repair their property through the provisions of the Federal Housing administration's amended modernization credit plan.

Modernization credit in amounts up to $50,000 are now available at private lending institutions approved by the Federal Housing administration for the purpose of modernizing office buildings, hotels, business or other commercial buildings, hospitals, orphanages, colleges, schools, or manufacturing or industrial plants.

Repairs Needed

An exhaustive survey of the country has shown that there are scores of thousands of commercial establishments in urgent need, not only of structural repair and changes to bring them up to par, but of re-equipment for such concerns to keep abreast the competitive developments in their respective fields.

An outstanding feature to the amended modernization plan which will be of great interest to small office building owners is the belief that much if not all of the modernization work and re-equipment to be fostered under the $50,000 extension of credit limitation will actually produce the income to liquidate the debt incurred in its purchase. Therefore, the economic value of the work to be done in each instance becomes of great importance in a credit decision.

Increase Income

Through this new channel of credit the small commercial building owner may convert outmoded and deteriorating property into modern, efficient, and income-producing assets. Concurrently, modernization produces an automatic improvement in the risk rating applied to such properties by banks.

Actual cases that have been reported to the housing administration show that such modernization, in many cases, has produced definite profit increases, both to the owner of the building as well as to tenants who rent business spaces.

Full details concerning possibilities under the amended modernization credit plan are available at any local bank or insuring office of the administration or from federal housing headquarters in Washington.

As the Federal Housing administration's modernization credit plan expires April 1, 1936, unless extended by a further amendment to the national housing act, the small office building owner interested in conversion or improvement of his property should take immediate steps to acquaint himself with its possibilities.

ENTRANCE LAMP IS AN AID TO MOTOR DRIVERS

It is often difficult to locate a driveway unless it is marked in some manner. Of course, it is more difficult in the country, but many urban residences also have drives which are not easy to locate at night.

Attractive lamps may be placed at the entrance. These may be placed on gate posts or on special standards erected for the purpose. The name or street number of the residence can be cut out of a flat metal piece and used in the shade for the light. If properly designed, this will add to the attractiveness as well as the usefulness of the lamps.

The lights need not be bright. On the contrary, a soft glow is preferable and will satisfactorily serve to mark the dimensions of the drive.

Profitable Repairs

Garden Enhanced By Night Illumination

Many residences are surrounded by well-designed, well-kept gardens, but their enjoyment is largely relegated to the daylight hours. With proper illumination, the garden may become an evening living or dining room during the warm summer months.

Suitable lights suspended from tree limbs overhead or mounted on the wall of the house can accomplish this. If there are no trees and the area to be lighted is some distance from the house, portable garden lamps may be used. All outdoor fixtures should be made of durable weather-resistant materials.

It is quite necessary to place the lights high enough (a minimum of seven or eight feet) to prevent glare and avoid the annoyance of flying bugs who collect around the light source. If the area to be lighted is near the house, a light enclosed within a suitable reflector may be mounted as high as possible so that the light may be directed nearly straight down, thus eliminating excessive glare.

A light placed beneath the garden umbrella, the canopy of the lawn swing, or canvas awning will prove very effective if light-colored canvas is selected. Light reflected from canvas is mellow and free from glare. Dark-colored canvas absorbs light.

Several lighting units of small wattage will be found more desirable than one large unit. Lamps of over 200 watts are seldom used in the garden for direct lighting.

Colored lights are not generally used, because they tend to distort natural colors.

For paths, stairways, etc., permanent properly located equipment is usually preferable to portable fixtures. It is advantageous to have these areas under the control of a central switch in the house. Care should be exercised in locating the light source so that it will shield the eyes, but will project directly onto the desired areas.

Repair Program Improves Paint Exports, Sales

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Few commodities exceed the world-wide distribution of American ready-mixed paints, enamels, and stains.

In May of this year 87 foreign markets bought 192,700 gallons of American paint products, with a value of $339,700. This is an increase of 19 per cent both in quantity and value over the same month last year and more than double that of May 1933.

The outstanding foreign markets for these products, according to good authority, were the Argentine, Philippine Islands, Colombia, Cuba, Belgium, and Canada. Exports to foreign markets during the first five months of this year showed an increase of 30 per cent in quantity and 24 per cent in value over the corresponding period of 1934.

In the Philippines a satisfactory increase in importations of paint occurred during 1934. More than 70 per cent of these products were shipped in from the United States.

According to reports, the expansion of the market was caused by the great amount of repairing and improving of property which was postponed during the depression. Also there has been a gradual increase in the use of paint in the Islands during the last few years.

American ready-mixed paints are known the world over for their high standard of quality and compete in most markets on a quality rather than a price basis, it is stated.

GOOD LIGHTING

Don't run the risk of the results of poor lighting. If the light is not properly located and adequately intense, a person reading will find his eyes tire easily and then serious eye strain results.

Your local electrical contractor will measure the intensity of your present light and remedy it. He will advise you also on the location of lights to be used for different purposes.

PRESS NEEDS MACHINERY, CHECK SHOWS

Letter Reveals Needs Of Weekly And Small Daily Newspapers

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Definite indication of a nationwide market for machinery and equipment for newspaper plants was shown in approximately 200 communications received here from newspaper owners.

An analysis of these communications shows a preponderance of interest in the amended plan on the part of weekly papers. Of the letters received 151 were from weeklies and 22 from dailies. Two foreign language newspapers also wrote to the housing administration for additional information. The queries came from 38 states in the union.

In response to a letter explaining the modernization possibilities under the Federal Housing Administration's amended modernization credit plan, 191 individual newspapers and printing concerns with an aggregate circulation of 463,918, answered with queries concerning not less than $190,414 worth of newspaper repair and improvement projects. This dollar total is conservative as many who wrote to the Housing Administration did not mention the amount of money involved in the projects contemplated.

According to the letters received the demand for equipment and machinery far exceeded desire to alter or modernize plants. Of the total, 180 newspapers requested information concerning machinery and equipment; 50 inquired about plant alterations possible under the amended plan.

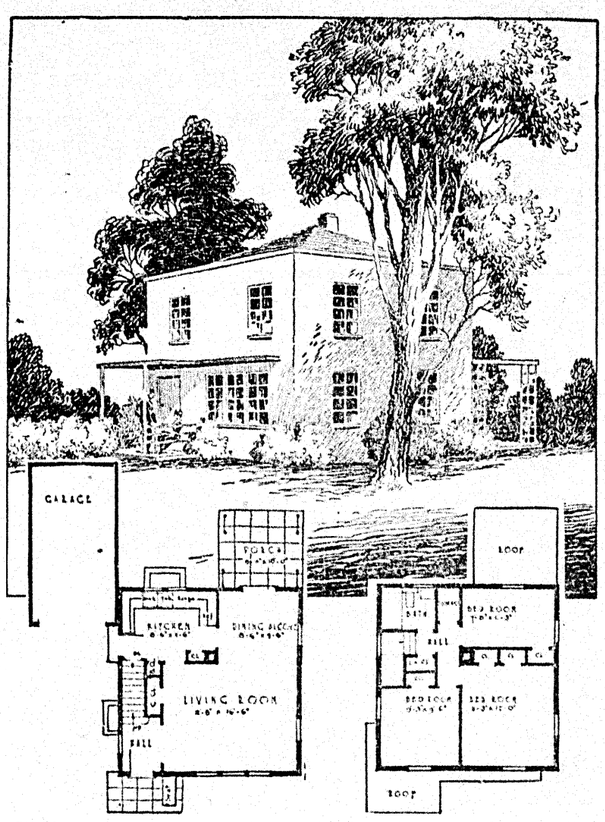
The amended modernization credit plan now makes it possible for newspapers to repair, convert, or improve their properties or to purchase machinery and equipment with funds obtained from private lending institutions holding Federal Housing Administration insurance contracts. When complying with regulations credit advances in amounts up to $50,000 will be insured by the Housing Administration.

ATTRACTIVE CLOSETS

Make bedroom closets more attractive by painting the interiors a color which will contrast with the main color in the bedroom. With a bedroom in which blue-green predominates use a warm rust tone. Paint the inside of the closet door the same rust tone and it will add an interesting color change to the bedroom when the closet door is opened.

Finish all accessories to match. Shoe racks, shelves, cupboards, etc. Enamel plain wooden hangers. The smooth surface makes it easier to slip garments on and off the hangers.

THIS LIVING ROOM IS 'LIVABLE'



Simple line of grace and dignity mark this two-story house designed to meet the purse requirements of the low-salaried man's income.

In it, the architect has borne in mind the meaning of "living room," and has designed one that is truly "livable." Ranging over almost all of the first floor, it includes a dining alcove and egress to a porch, the whole offering commodious lines and freedom of movement. To the left of the dining alcove is the kitchen unit. A garage balances the porch.

Three bedrooms are included on the second floor, with numerous closets and the roof of the porch reached through one of the bedrooms, offering facilities for a summer terrace.

A basement has facilities for laundry, storage and heating plant.

The foundation of the house is concrete. Exterior walls are stuccoed. Brick veneer is an alternative. The inside finish is plaster or wall board. Windows are double-hung.

The arrangement offers opportunities for effective landscaping. The design was submitted by the firm of Ely Jacques Kahn for the New York chapter of the American Institute of Architects' low cost housing competition.

BANKERS JOURNAL TELLS OF FHA'S OPPORTUNITY

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The August issue of Banking, journal of the American Bankers' association, says:

"Bankers who have had experience with the federal housing administration know that it works more speedily than many governmental agencies. When all necessary information is given, a loan may be obtained and construction started within a period of 10 days."

OUTSIDE OUTLETS

For a slightly additional amount an outside convenience outlet can be included in wiring plans.

Garden lighting, electrical hedge clippers, and car washers are a few of the many items which should have convenient outlets.

If outlets are designed to meet future needs and installed when the house is built, they will cost less and be less trouble.

More BUILDING Necessary for Entire Nation!

PLAN ASSISTS SMALL OFFICE, SHOP REPAIRS

$50,000 Extension Helps To Meet Competitive Conditions

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Owners of small office buildings with ground floor space for two or more businesses such as drug stores, cigar stands, and the like, will find new opportunity to convert, improve, or repair their property through the provisions of the Federal Housing administration's amended modernization credit plan.

Modernization credit in amounts up to $50,000 are now available at private lending institutions approved by the Federal Housing administration for the purpose of modernizing office buildings, hotels, business or other commercial buildings, hospitals, orphanages, colleges, schools, or manufacturing or industrial plants.

Repairs Needed

An exhaustive survey of the country has shown that there are scores of thousands of commercial establishments in urgent need, not only of structural repair and changes to bring them up to par, but of re-equipment for such concerns to keep abreast the competitive developments in their respective fields.

An outstanding feature to the amended modernization plan which will be of great interest to small office building owners is the belief that much if not all of the modernization work and re-equipment to be fostered under the $50,000 extension of credit limitation will actually produce the income to liquidate the debt incurred in its purchase. Therefore, the economic value of the work to be done in each instance becomes of great importance in a credit decision.

Increase Income

Through this new channel of credit the small commercial building owner may convert outmoded and deteriorating property into modern, efficient, and income-producing assets. Concurrently, modernization produces an automatic improvement in the risk rating applied to such properties by banks.

Actual cases that have been reported to the housing administration show that such modernization, in many cases, has produced definite profit increases, both to the owner of the building as well as to tenants who rent business spaces.

Full details concerning possibilities under the amended modernization credit plan are available at any local bank or insuring office of the administration or from federal housing headquarters in Washington.

As the Federal Housing administration's modernization credit plan expires April 1, 1936, unless extended by a further amendment to the national housing act, the small office building owner interested in conversion or improvement of his property should take immediate steps to acquaint himself with its possibilities.

ENTRANCE LAMP IS AN AID TO MOTOR DRIVERS

It is often difficult to locate a driveway unless it is marked in some manner. Of course, it is more difficult in the country, but many urban residences also have drives which are not easy to locate at night.

Attractive lamps may be placed at the entrance. These may be placed on gate posts or on special standards erected for the purpose. The name or street number of the residence can be cut out of a flat metal piece and used in the shade for the light. If properly designed, this will add to the attractiveness as well as the usefulness of the lamps.

The lights need not be bright. On the contrary, a soft glow is preferable and will satisfactorily serve to mark the dimensions of the drive.

Profitable Repairs

NEW WHOLESALE GROCER CONCERN IS OPENED HERE

Announcement is made of the opening of the Gatlin Wholesale Grocer company, Inc., at North Sixth and Olive streets as Monroe's newest wholesale enterprise.

Ralph Gatlin, formerly with the Ritchie Grocer company, is owner of the new business.

He resigned August 1 to open his own store. Mr. Gatlin is widely known as an able wholesale grocerman and has a wide acquaintance among wholesale grocers, manufacturers and packers throughout the country.

U. S. TICK PLAN IS RULED LEGAL

Porterie Says Recent Legislative Act Does Not Apply To Program

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 12.—(AP)—The federal tick eradication program in Louisiana, like the federal farm program, was today declared by Attorney-General Gaston L. Porterie exempt from the legislative act Senator Huey P. Long ordered passed a few days before he died making "unconstitutional" federal activities in the state punishable by jail terms.

Porterie wrote Dr. W. A. McDonald, federal bureau of animal industry inspector for Louisiana, who had requested a ruling, that the act did not apply to the bureau's campaign to rid Louisiana of cattle ticks in 1936 in cooperation with the state livestock sanitary board.

Several weeks ago the attorney-general rendered a similar opinion to Marcel J. Voorhies, AAA representative for Louisiana, placing his sanction upon federal crop control contracts and benefit payments.

LOUISIANA WOMAN DIES IN CRASH IN ASCENSION PARISH

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Mrs. H. E. Ney of Madisonville, La., was fatally injured and four other persons hurt today in an automobile collision at Gonzalez, La., 20 miles south of here in Ascension parish.

Mrs. Ney died several hours after her skull was fractured in a smash-up between a car in which she was riding with Wilder Perkins and his daughter, Miss Alameda Perkins of Madisonville, and an automobile occupied by the Rev. D. F. Kernaghan of St. Joseph's Catholic church, New Orleans, and his mother.

Perkins and his mother, and the priest and his mother were painfully but not critically injured.

SCOUT POLAR EXPLORER WILL SPEAK OVER RADIO

Paul A. Siple, who represented the Boy Scouts of America on the two Byrd artarctic expeditions, will speak on "Exploration and Adventure" during a coast to coast broadcast next Wednesday from 9:45 a.m. to 11 a.m., Monroe time. The broadcast will be made from Station WJZ in New York City and will be relayed over the NBC network.

Siple was chosen from 625,000 Boy Scouts of America to accompany Admiral Byrd on his first Antarctic expedition. On his second trip to the Antarctic with Admiral Byrd, Siple was the chief biologist and leader of the Marie Byrd land exploring party. He was designated by Admiral Byrd to erect and equip the tiny base, 123 miles south of Little America, in which Admiral Byrd lived alone for four and a half months in 1934, studying weather condifions.

Three important lectures on current questions will be delivered in Monroe today and tomorrow by A. Lawren Brown, specialist in political economy and one of the foremost speakers in the country on economic problems.

Dr. Brown will speak in the First Methodist church at 7:30 tonight on the subject, "Crime and Its Relation to Education." At 8:30 tomorrow morning he will speak at Neville high school and at 9:30 in the auditorium of Northeast Center L. S. U. on "The Science of Money Management." The latter address, which will be accompanied by a pictorial presentation, is under the auspices of the P.-T. A. council of the Twin Cities.

Dr. Brown has had a wide training and experience as an economist and lecturer on economic subjects. He is a former instructor in Moulton college, Canada, and organized the first social settlement in the Dominion. He is vice-president of the National Institute on Mercenary Crime and a director of the U. S. Board of Trade. He is now a member of the speaker's bureau of the American Association of Economic Education. He is also head of the public relations department of the Investors' Syndicate of Minneapolis.

Dr. Brown believes that the cause of the depression can be summed up in two words, "financial education."

"Every year two billion of dollars are spent in Canada and the United States for education and every year the schools turn out two million students who know little, if anything, about how to manage the money that they will earn," he said.

"Boys and girls are taught to make money," he said, "but it is a lot more important for people to hang on to their money after they have made it," he added, "yet when they grow up they are trusted with important business and public offices.

"This lack of financial training," he said, "could be termed a major cause of depression. There are other factors, of course, Mr. Brown stated, but if people know how to handle money then they can take care of them."

U. S. TICK PLAN IS RULED LEGAL

Porterie Says Recent Legislative Act Does Not Apply To Program

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 12.—(AP)—The federal tick eradication program in Louisiana, like the federal farm program, was today declared by Attorney-General Gaston L. Porterie exempt from the legislative act Senator Huey P. Long ordered passed a few days before he died making "unconstitutional" federal activities in the state punishable by jail terms.

Porterie wrote Dr. W. A. McDonald, federal bureau of animal industry inspector for Louisiana, who had requested a ruling, that the act did not apply to the bureau's campaign to rid Louisiana of cattle ticks in 1936 in cooperation with the state livestock sanitary board.

Several weeks ago the attorney-general rendered a similar opinion to Marcel J. Voorhies, AAA representative for Louisiana, placing his sanction upon federal crop control contracts and benefit payments.

LOUISIANA WOMAN DIES IN CRASH IN ASCENSION PARISH

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Mrs. H. E. Ney of Madisonville, La., was fatally injured and four other persons hurt today in an automobile collision at Gonzalez, La., 20 miles south of here in Ascension parish.

Mrs. Ney died several hours after her skull was fractured in a smash-up between a car in which she was riding with Wilder Perkins and his daughter, Miss Alameda Perkins of Madisonville, and an automobile occupied by the Rev. D. F. Kernaghan of St. Joseph's Catholic church, New Orleans, and his mother.

Perkins and his mother, and the priest and his mother were painfully but not critically injured.

The Madisonville residents were driving to the south Louisiana fair at Donaldsonville, where the priest's car was moving in the opposite direction.

Paul A. Siple, who represented the Boy Scouts of America on the two Byrd artarctic expeditions, will speak on "Exploration and Adventure" during a coast to coast broadcast next Wednesday from 9:45 a.m. to 11 a.m., Monroe time. The broadcast will be made from Station WJZ in New York City and will be relayed over the NBC network.

On his second trip to the Antarctic with Admiral Byrd, Siple was the chief biologist and leader of the Marie Byrd land exploring party. He was designated by Admiral Byrd to erect and equip the tiny base, 123 miles south of Little America, in which Admiral Byrd lived alone for four and a half months in 1934, studying weather conditions.

THE CANNIBALS' TRAP

FROM THE CHIEFTAIN'S SPEECH, TARZAN JUDGED THAT THE LION WAS TO KILL THE VICTIMS FOR THE CANNIBAL FEAST!

"THAT LION SHALL KILL NO ONE," HE MURMURED. HE DREW HIS BOW. AN ARROW WHIRRED--AND PIERCED THE VENERATED BEAST.

THEN THE APE-MAN'S VOICE BOOMED FROM THE FOREST "FREE THE WHITE PRISONERS, OR YOU, CHIEF, SHALL SUFFER THE SAME FATE!"

CRAFTY MENGO LEAPED BEHIND SIGREDA FOR PROTECTION, AND CALLED: "WHO ARE YOU WHO SLAYS SIMBA, LORD OF THE LION PEOPLE?"

AND THE VOICE ANSWERED: "I AM TARZAN, LORD OF JUNGLE BEASTS---AND JUNGLE MEN. WHO DEFIES ME, DIES!"

AT MENTION OF HIS DREADED NAME, MENGO AND HIS RETINUE FLED THROUGH THE GATEWAY, DRAGGING THEIR PRISONERS.

BUT SIGREDA SMILED RADIANTLY AS SHE THOUGHT "TARZAN HAS COME TO SAVE ME, BECAUSE HE LOVES ME."

PRESENTLY MENGO TOLD THE ELDERS. "TONIGHT, SURELY, THE APE-MAN WILL SEEK TO SPY UPON US FROM OUR COUNCIL TREE. WISE MENGO WILL TRAP HIM."

FROM THE BOUGHS OF THE TREE, THE SAVAGES REMOVED SECTIONS OF BARK, CUT DEEP INTO THE WOOD, AND REPLACED THE BARK

"WHEN HE LEAPS INTO THE BRANCHES," MENGO CHUCKLED, "THEY WILL BREAK, AND THE MAN-BEAST WILL DROP INTO OUR HANDS!"

AS TWILIGHT FELL, TARZAN SWUNG TOWARD THE VILLAGE, RESOLVED TO FIND SOME MEANS OF SETTING SIGREDA FREE.
